Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

The January thaw experienced here last week removed most of the snow from Garrett County and drove ice fishermen from most area waters as large portions of the ice cover turned punky. By Saturday, Deep Creek Lake was showing large areas of open water, as was the very low Savage River Reservoir.

However, there were a number of area fly fishermen taking advantage of the mild weather. Virtually every pool on the Savage was being worked as water levels looked just about perfect and water color ideal. Access to the river was somewhat complicated by the snow and ice remaining deep in the valley. Finding a good parking spot was tricky, though the pull-off below the second suspension bridge was open.

Since water flow here is controlled primarily by releases from the reservoir rather than run-off, the stream was very fishable even though tributaries such as Crabtree Creek were quite high. This is something to remember when looking for streams to fish during periods of winter rains when most area rivers and streams are impossible.

The Yough Reservoir that had been at its lowest levels since the 1950s has filled dramatically. The old arch bridge was completely submerged by last weekend, and the water level looks to be approaching the halfway mark of summer levels.

Recent rains and snow melt should improve water levels on the Casselman and Yough rivers. This will offer opportunities for anglers to work the Casselman for holdovers and trout from the winter stockings. The trout shoulda't be as skittish, although best results will still come from fishing the pools slow and deep. Beadheads, hare's ear, and pheasant tale nymphs should be some of the first flies tried. Also, minnow imitations such as muddlers and various buggers should produce some action, particularly as water temperatures moderate.

NEW PUBLICATION FOR TROUT FISHERMEN

Medicines Used for Two Seizure Types

A seizure or convulsion is caused by abnormal activity in the brain. Seizures may be associated with brain injury before or at the time of birth, high fever during childhood, infection involving the nervous system, poisons, brain tumors, and nutritional deficiencies. Prescription medicines used to prevent or control seizures limit the occurrence of seizures by depressing abnormal nerve discharges in the brain. Some seizure medicines provide better control when they are used with other seizure medicines.

Grand mal seizures are the most common type, typically lasting from 2 to 5 minutes. These usually are noticeable in that the person may have severe muscle contractions, fall to the floor, and lose consciousness.

Petit mal seizures do not involve severe muscle contractions. They usually affect children and typically appear as a sudden cessation of activity and staring by the child for a few seconds.

QUICK TO RESPOND - Shortly after Hurricane Mitch dovestated Central America, members of the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland voted to use a portion of the club's annual Antique Show profits to support Dr. Dona Alvarez's emergency drive to help the stricken residents of Honduras. Dr. Alvarez, an Oakland surgeon, had presented a slide program to the club members last August showing the deplorable conditions that exist in Honduras, where she had done missions work. Destruction from the hurricane moved the members to act immediately by making a donation. Pictured from left above are Jane Frawley and Betty Malloy, club members, with Dr. Alvarez. They also presented her additional monies from the Deep Creek Lioness Club. According to Dr. Alvarez, the drive for money, non-perishable food, clothing, and other needed items was "highly successful."

PIRATE FEST

Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and children attended the Pirate Fest at the Carnegie Science Center in Pittsburgh on Saturday. Also joining the crowd for the Fest were Lenny, Sally, and Torrey Poholsky. The Poholskys also visited with Andy and Mary Salak in Kittanning on Saturday.

VISITING THE SICK AND SHUT-INS

Visitors at the Ralph and Ethel Buckel home last week were Doyle and Louise Biser, Oakland, Barbara and Arnold Feather, Oakland, and Ken Buckel, Ralph Buckel Jr., Chestertown, Jeff Buckel, New Jersey, and Mark Buckel, Hershey, Pa., were weekend guests of the Buckels.

Ken and Harriett Buckel visited Mary Harman and Stella Bittinger at the Goodwill Nursing Home Sunday afternoon. Stella Bittinger, a former resident of Garrett County, is recuperating from a broken hip. Stella will be celebrating her birthday this week.

Ferne Beachy visited her sister-in-law, Mosella Buckel, LaVale, last week. Mosella is recovering at home after a recent hospital stay.

OTHER VISITS

Blair Buckel was a Monday evening dinner guest of Bill and Sheila Southerly and sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Bass and children recently visited Kevin's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Merrick, at Altoona, Pa.

MY COMMENTS

The good news around Bittinger this week is that we got some much-needed rain. If this, along with the snow melting, does not pump the ground water up, I don't know what will do it. According to Gary Buckel's "old time wisdom," you need a thaw after a dry fall and some early winter weather before you can have more winter weather. Gary quotes Roy Beitzel as the 'old timer.' That will make my husband Lloyd happy.

He is now excited about getting a chance to "go and jump in the lake" for a fund-raising event. The fund-raiser is for the Special Winter Olympics, competitions for physically and mentally challenged individuals, held in Garrett County. Why he wants to do it I don't know, but I am behind him 100% if this is what he wants to do. He is looking for some more sponsors. Maybe a few old friends of mine will pay some big money to see him do this. (Hint, hint.) This would make my day, as I need a lift now. I am pretty low.

But on the other hand, I attended one of the most fun-filled parties I ever attended — my Meredith's 8th birthday on Thursday evening at the swimming pool in McHeary. About 20 little kids whooped it up and they were so cute and her cousin, Blakely Glotfelty, did a great job of supervising a few games in the pool. After swimming they feasted on ice cream cake and Mere was showered with tons of nice gifts.

We also celebrated Mere's birthday at a dinner with Pappy Dale and Aunt Helen Englar, Westminster, who was also up to celebrate the birthday of her son, Courtney, at Dale's home.

Strategies Task Force Issues Report, Statistics

by Charlene Pullias

At its most recent meeting at Frostburg State University last Saturday, the Governor's Western Maryland Economic Development Strategies Task Force issued a report and statistical documentation illustrating the decline of the six "distressed communities" in the state of Maryland. A distressed community is defined as one with 1½ times the unemployment rate of the state of Maryland.

Currently, those jurisdictions are Worcester County at 15.3%, Garrett County at 9.3%, Somerset County at 8.7%, Baltimore City at 8.2%, Allegany County at 7.8%, and Dorchester County at 7.8%. The state of Maryland is at 4.2%.

A collection of statistical tables of data from the last 10 years exhibited these jurisdictions as consistently having had the highest unemployment, lowest household median income, and receiving the highest percentage of total county personal income from state and federal "transfer payments." Transfer payments are forms of governmental supplemental income and family maintenance support, such as Medicare, Medicaid, unemployment compensation, and others.

"Clearly the continued Band-Aid approach has not and will not work," said Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and Task Force Chairman Casper R. Taylor (D-Allegany).

The task force has listed 38 individual items or projects, which it believes are necessary for the revitalization of the two mountain counties of Maryland.

First and foremost on the list is the passage of what has been termed the "One Maryland" legislative program for distressed counties. This program creates a separate state revolving loan fund for the distressed counties to use for water and sewer lines, roads, industrial parks, shell buildings, and other infrastructure projects. The legislation calls for funding this program at $40 million for the six jurisdictions that are currently eligible.

To pursue the additional 37 items, Taylor appointed Lee Fiedler, the retiring CEO of the Kelley-Springfield corporate headquarters in Cumberland, as the steering committee chairman of the task force and announced 10 subcommittees with co-chairs from each county. They are charged with the task of following up on those items.

"The task force report and statistical data plainly show the state can pay now — with passage of this legislation — or continue to pay with transfer and support payments to the distressed jurisdictions. The choice is theirs," said Delegate George Edwards (R-Garrett), task force member, chairman of the Western Maryland House of Delegates Delegation, and co-sponsor of this legislation. "But only one has a realistic chance of actually providing the structural change necessary for economic growth and opportunity in the distressed counties."

PARENT GROUP HOLDS RAFFLE - The Dennett Road Head Start Parent Group held a drawing for four Ty Beanie Babies last month. Parent group president Ardra Sharpless, left, presented the Princess Diana Bear and Glory Bear to winner Linda Wolfe, Mtn. Lake Park. Second place winner Vicky Thayer received Fortune Bear and Curly Bear. VARSITY BLUES

Rated R - Running time: 1:44

I'm as much a fan of football as the next girl, but I must admit I don't see the point of movies like Brian Robbins's Varsity Blues, written by W. Peter Iliff. Football is entertaining because, theoretically, the outcome is not certain. But in Varsity Blues, it is never in doubt; we know from its list of trite and predictable plot elements: The home team is faced with some major handicap, and must fight against all odds. There is a love affair, some troubled players, and a problem coach. As we rush toward "the big game," it looks increasingly uncertain whether the team can overcome all these obstacles. Any guesses?

Luckily there are some good performances by some of the supporting players, which keep this film from being a complete waste of time--but a few good scenes are little help against stereotypical characterizations and a laughable storyline.

West Canaan, Texas is a small town with a big high school football record. The team's head coach, Bud Kilmer (Jon Voight) has a record of two state championships and 22 regional titles. With an undefeated season so far, it looks like the Coyotes are headed toward another triumphant finish, led by star quarterback Lance Harbor (Paul Walker). But a torn ligament ends Lance's career prematurely and puts second-string quarterback Jonathan Moxon (James Van Der Beek, Dawson's Creek) on the field, even though the coach hates him and he has hardly ever played. He is ready to step up to the challenge, but what he's not ready for is the sudden fame he achieves simply by being the Coyotes' starting QB.

Of the notable supporting performances mentioned, perhaps the best is by Ron Lester as Billy Bob, the huge offensive lineman who, after a slip-up that really wasn't his fault, blames himself for the team's downfall. Lester's Billy Bob starts out as nothing more than a syrup-swilling good ole boy, but develops into one of the best-defined characters in the film--with some actual emotion, which is rare elsewhere.

Van Der Beek is mostly like a deer caught in the headlights, never really showing us how "Mox" feels about anything. Voight's coach is the worst kind of cardboard cut-out (adding to his recent string of such characters), with apparently no life off the field. His open hatred for Mox makes us wonder why he put him on the team in the first place. And the two girls in the picture are also stock characters: Darcy (Ali Larter) is the cheerleader who wants to be with the quarterback, any quarterback, no matter who he is, because she thinks he'll be her "ticket out" of small town life. And Julie (Amy Smart) is Mox's girlfriend who loved him when he was a bench warmer but is turned off by his newfound stardom (even though Van Der Beek's characterization doesn't change one bit to provoke this).

There are glimmers of realism in these actors' performances, but not enough to sustain more than passing interest on the part of the audience. Awkwardly thrown in is a minor sub-plot involving Mox's spiritual little brother trying on various religions for size, which (I guess) is supposed to generate some kind of comic relief. But given the more serious tone of the rest of the film, it is completely out of place and damages the flow.

If you like thoughtful movies, don't bother. If you like football, you might enjoy the scenes on the field. But if you want to see a high school girl wearing nothing but a whipped-cream bikini, this is your film. ★★½

Previously Reviewed:

AT FIRST SIGHT ★★★½ (PG-13/2:08/1-21) The light of reality is apparently too bright for this impaired script.

THE THIN RED LINE ★★★★½ (R/2:50/1-21) This film meanders through the jungle of philosophy, drawing fire.

A CIVIL ACTION ★★★★ (PG-13/1:52/1-21) Lawyers battle for a small town's right to pure, clear leukemia.

IN DREAMS ★★★ (R/1:40/1-21) Abstract apparition abducts angel, attacks angry airhead asleep among apples.

Domestic Assaults Net 18 Months For Oakland Man

Among the rulings handed down during recent Garrett County District Court proceedings was an 18-month jail sentence for an Oakland man who had been convicted earlier on a pair of second-degree assault charges in two separate cases.

Dennis Lee Dalton, 40, received a five-year sentence for each of the assault convictions, and all but nine months of each sentence was suspended with the balance to be served in consecutive terms. In passing the sentence, Judge Ralph Burnett also placed Dalton on three years of supervised probation.

Dalton, who had pleaded guilty to the charges in an earlier hearing, was arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in late September for a pair of alleged assaults on a female acquaintance. The first charge stemmed from a Sept. 14 incident in which Dalton reportedly raped the woman; the second charge stemmed from a Sept. 20 domestic altercation when he allegedly beat her, one of an ongoing series of domestic assaults, according to the charging statement.

Additional charges of second-degree rape, attempted second-degree sex offense, and fourth-degree sex offense were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In other district court hearings recently, a McHenry woman was sentenced after pleading guilty to theft of a credit card.

Rhonda Renee Carr, 32, was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on two years of supervised probation, and ordered to make a $1,041 restitution payment. Sheriff's deputies arrested her in July for taking several cash advances on an acquaintance's credit card without her permission.

A Mtn. Lake Park man facing a charge of telephone misuse through repeated phone calls was nonetheless convicted.

Paul Kip Burns, 28, was handed a 30-day suspended sentence and placed on one year of unsupervised probation. He had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in December for repeatedly calling the Mtn. Lake Park residence of a man slated to be a juror at a pending trial in which Burns himself was the defendant.

Additional charges of harassment and attempted juror influencing/intimidation were not prosecuted against Burns.

Terry Leroy Cavey Jr., 20, Old Fields, W.Va., pleaded guilty to making a false statement to a police officer and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ). Cavey's July arrest by Maryland State Police troopers came after it was learned that he had wrecked and abandoned his vehicle on Savage River Road, although he had initially told a trooper that it had been stolen.

Charges of second-degree assault and felony theft faced by Peter Lionel Grycko, 45, Richmond, Ohio, were placed onto the stet docket, while an additional charge of robbery was not prosecuted.

Grycko had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in November after he allegedly stole a diamond ring off the finger of an acquaintance while she was sleeping at her Oakland residence.

A harassment charge faced by Ellen Sue Moats, 37, Grantsville, was placed on the stet docket. Sheriff's deputies arrested her in November after she allegedly made repeated phone calls to another Grantsville woman.

Nathan Joseph Bridges, 19, Frostburg, was found in violation of a probation order that stemmed from an assault conviction. A 30-day jail sentence was reimposed and his probation was revoked.

Paul Arnold Dixon, 38, Frederick, was found in violation of a probation order stemming from a conviction for not making court-ordered child support payments. Although sanctions were withheld, Dixon's probation was modified to run for a five-year period and he was ordered to pay $150 in restitution and comply with the terms of the child support ruling.

A possession of marijuana conviction faced by John Lee Knox Jr., 19, Grantsville, was revised to reflect a PBJ.

Charges of second-degree assault, child abuse, reckless endangerment, and misdemeanor theft faced by Junior Lee Guthrie, 40, Oakland, were not prosecuted.

Two counts of a violation of ex parte order faced by Patricia Ann Michaels, 27, Swanton, were not prosecuted.

Two counts of second-degree assault faced by Jerry Allen Dawson, 32, Elk Garden, W.Va., were not prosecuted.

Dennis Wayne Boyd, 49, Frostburg, was exonerated of charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

DWIs/DUIs

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs were heard in district court recently.

James Edward Moon, 29, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $200, handed a 30-day sentence with all but two days suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

James Quintin Reeb, 33, Terra Alta, W.Va., pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ, fined $255, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Michael Wayne Rodeheaver, 28, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ, fined $255, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Rondal Lee White Jr., 38, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $255, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Robert James Welch, 47, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 20 hours of community service.

Angela Jean Hebb, 26, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Kathy Jo Stalnaker, 36, McHenry, pleaded guilty to DUI and was fined $200, handed a 60-day sentence with all but two days suspended, placed on two years of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Bruce Gary Van Wagner, 39, Accident, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $100, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Gregory Alan Dawson, 25, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $100, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

DWI charges faced by Stephen Allan Rodeheaver, 25, Mtn. Lake Park, and John Edward Kent, 30, Swanton, were placed onto the stet docket, with the stipulation that Rodeheaver complete 80 hours of community service and Kent complete 40 hours of community service.

Area Lutheran Group Reports Year's Activity

Western Maryland/West Virginia Branch 8483 of Lutheran Brotherhood recently released a summary of volunteer work and financial contributions to communities and individuals during 1998.

Throughout the area served by the organization, a total of $10,832 in projects and donations were recorded for the year, along with 16,691 volunteer hours. Garrett County benefited from many of the Brotherhood's projects.

In the aftermath of tornados in the western Maryland area, Branch 8483 contributed matching funds of $500 to the Lutheran Disaster Response Fund. Matching funds of $1,525 were donated to the family of Glenn Keller, Accident, to help with medical bills.

Through the New Friends in Deed program, the Branch reported that volunteers purchased $200 worth of food for the House of Hope and $200 worth of food and clothing for the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary for needy veterans in the area. The New Friends also donated $200 for paper to make Bibles for the blind and $800 for playground equipment in the Accident town park.

Through the branch ReSpecTeen Service Project, Lutheran youth helped to assemble the playground equipment at the Accident park. Volunteers from the branch also worked at the Accident Cultural and Historical Society art show.

St. John's Lutheran Church, Oakland, received a $200 donation for a family that lost its home and two children.

Volunteers To Review Foster Care Sought

The Allegany/Garrett Counties Citizens' Review Board For Children (formerly the Foster Care Review Board) is "urgently" seeking persons to serve as citizen volunteers on its board.

The 1998 Maryland General Assembly passed legislation that will improve services and advocacy for children, according to a board spokesperson. HB 1093, prompted by the landmark federal legislation The Adoptions and Safe Families Act, is designed to have a significant impact on reunification services, adoption procedures, safety of children, and citizen review. It is hoped that this bill, coupled with the Child Welfare Work Force Initiative, which will re-professionalize the child welfare work force, will expedite the process of achieving permanent placements for children, the spokesperson said.

The board, which has seven members, reviews the cases of all children who have been in foster care for six months or more to determine if appropriate steps are being taken by the local departments of social services to find permanent living arrangements for children.

"Volunteers should have an interest in the welfare of children and a willingness to become advocates for them. It is a unique opportunity to make a real difference in the life of a child," the spokesperson said.

Board members are appointed by the governor to serve four-year terms. The board meets one day a month from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the local of social services department to review cases. A two-day initial training course is required.

The Citizens' Review Board members must be residents of the jurisdictions in which they serve. For more information, and to request an application, interested persons may call collect, 410-767-7771.

Number Available To Appeal Denied Insurance Claims

Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. wants all Marylanders to know that a new state law gives them assistance in appealing decisions made by their HMO or health plan to deny them health care claims or authorization for care.

The Appeals and Grievances Law, which took effect January 1, requires insurance carriers to alert patients whose claims have been denied on the basis on medical necessity that they can seek help from the Attorney General's Health Advocacy Unit by calling toll-free 1-877-261-8807, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"This new law is one of the most consumer-friendly in the country," said Curran. "Patients who need medical treatment can now get explicit answers from their health plans about why their coverage has been denied, and they have a strong ally in appealing those denials."

The following are helpful hints consumers should know:

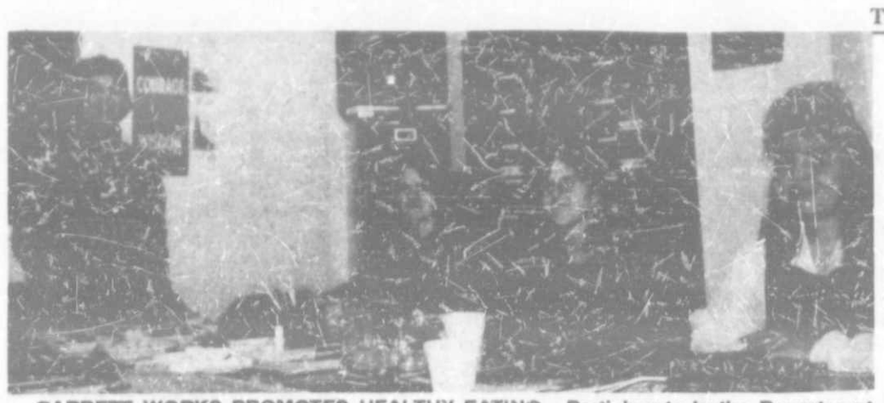
· If your HMO or health plan denies coverage for treatment because it determines that the treatment is not medically necessary or appropriate, it must inform you in writing of its adverse decision. With that written decision it must give you details of its internal grievance process and the toll-free number of the Health Advocacy Unit.

· If the denial of coverage involves a medical emergency, you should call the Maryland Insurance Administration at 1-800-492-6116 for assistance. That agency will render a decision within 24 hours in emergency cases.

· In all other cases, if you decide to appeal the decision, call the Health Advocacy Unit and it will gather information from you, your doctor, and the health plan to encourage the plan to reverse its decision. If this mediation approach is unsuccessful, the Health Advocacy Unit will help you — or your doctor — file a formal appeal with the plan's internal grievance process.

· If you are not satisfied with your plan's grievance decision, the Health Advocacy Unit will assist you in filing a complaint with the Maryland Insurance Administration. That agency will have medical experts assist in reviewing the decision by the health plan and, if appropriate, it will overturn the health plan's decision.

· If you have been denied coverage because your plan does not believe the treatment is medically necessary or if you have a question about your rights under this new Maryland law, please call the Health Advocacy Unit at 1-877-261-8807.



GARRETT WORKS PROMOTES HEALTHY EATING - Participants in the Department of Social Services' Garrett Works Program recently took part in an informative training session on the value of good nutrition and how to make healthy eating choices. Brady's presentation helped participants incorporate a variety of sound nutritional practices into their daily lives to ward off heart disease and cancer.

State Seminar On Leadership Seeks Nominees

Nominations are still being accepted for high school sophomores to attend the Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership's (HOBY) 1999 Maryland Leadership Seminar. The event will be held April 15-18 at the Sheraton Columbia Inn, Columbia.

HOBY is an international organization that seeks out, recognizes, and develops the leadership potential of high school sophomores. The Maryland Leadership Seminar, held annually since 1978, builds leadership through a series of workshops and discussion groups coordinated by a group of dedicated volunteers.

Through HOBY, students are provided an opportunity to interact with leaders from the fields of business, government, education, science, and the arts. Special events include a career luncheon and field trips around Maryland.

HOBY was established in 1958 by actor Hugh O'Brian, who portrayed television's Wyatt Earp. Inspired by a visit with Dr. Albert Schweitzer, he founded the organization as his contribution to society.

For deadlines and information about the seminar, interested educators may contact John Schissler at HOBYmd1999@aol.com or 410-665-7079.

the situation.

"I for one fully support extracurricular activities," he said. "I fully understand the need for these things. The issue here is really finances, though, and we have to study it. You deserve a quick response and you will have one shortly."

Holliday stated near the end of the conversation that he has faith in the board of education and its staff.

"I just had some questions and I needed to ask them," he said.

pired.

Keyser had its best shooting game of the season, while the Rams had their worst. No Southern player scored more than six points, with Mike Browning and Paesani reaching that modest level. Andrews, the team's leading scoring with a 20-point average, was held to 1 point.

Andrews and the rest of the Rams got back on track last night in a make-up game against Mount Savage, however, as he led the team in scoring with 25 points. It was the 13th straight WMIL win for the Rams over the past two seasons.

The Rams took an early lead and never relinquished it. They were on top 19-12 by the end of the first quarter, and then went on a 28-12 tear in the second period to take a comfortable 47-24 lead into the locker room at halftime. The Rams continued to pour it on in the third period, which ended with a 65-32 score. Coach Tom Bosley substituted freely throughout the second half, and every player on the roster scored.

Also reaching double figures for the Rams, besides Andrews, were Paesani and Mike Pamepinto, who each had 13 points. Paesani also pulled down eight rebounds.

Leading the Indians, who dropped to 2-12 and are winless in the WMIL (0-8) were Steve Bennett and Adam Stafford, who recorded 14 and 13 points, respectively. Larry O'Baker added 11.

The Southern junior varsity also got back into the win column by embarrassing the jayvee Indians in the preliminary game, 82-27. Keith Steyer scored 22 points and Jared Fike hit 12 to lead the Rams. Darren Johnson paced Mt. Savage with nine points.

The Rams will play again this Friday at the Cove against county rival Northern in another WMIL match-up and then play a league contest at Westmar next Tuesday.

ARCHERY LEAGUE REPORT

Local archery leagues have been shooting for a couple of weeks now, but it is still early for establishing clear team leaders; however, in the Appalachian Mountain Crafts League, individuals worth mentioning are men's leaders Brian Davis, Greg Iden, and Jim Haller. The top female shooters at AMC are Cheryl Iden, Kelly Frolmer, and Contlie Bowser. Last week's top shooters in the D&B Sports Shop League were Tom Layton with a 216, followed closely by Brian Roderick with a 208.

EPA PUBLIC MEETINGS

The DNR has scheduled a series of public meetings in conjunction with the Maryland Department of the Environment and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to discuss the progress toward meeting the state's environmental goals and gather public ideas and concerns about the major issues facing Maryland in the areas of public and ecosystem health. Key themes of the meeting are to be water quality, tidal aquatic systems, non-tidal aquatic systems, biological diversity issues (such as bald eagle nesting success and forest interior breeding birds), air quality, and hazardous material exposure.

Meetings have already been held in La Plata and Perryville, and additional meetings are planned in Silver Spring on Monday, Feb. 1; Cambridge on Wednesday, Feb. 3; Hagerstown on Monday, Feb. 8; and Baltimore on Wednesday, Feb. 10. It seems that Hagerstown is the only somewhat convenient meeting site for western Marylanders. According to DNR's published schedule, that meeting will be held at Hagerstown Community College, 11400 Robinwood Drive, in Room CLR 111 of the classroom building.

W.VA. DEER HARVEST DOWN

The deer harvest in West Virginia was down sharply this past season compared to levels of 1997's record harvest. According to the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources, hunters harvested 74,639 bucks, which was a 28 percent drop from 1997's 102,484. Doe hunters harvested 77,643 antlerless deer, which was down only 3 percent. Bowhunters took 28,430 deer, reflecting a 17 percent decline from the previous year but only a 1 percent lag below the five-year average. Black powder hunters harvested 12,396 deer, 32 percent below 1997's figure and 10 percent off the five-year average.

A Time For Learning

These are wonderful years, when there is so much to learn–and hours enough in which to learn it.

Youth has an unquenchable thirst for knowledge; also the desire, the capacity and the energy to absorb–if given even a little encouragement. But today, perhaps more than ever before in history, youth need guidance. This is certainly not limited to "book" knowledge. Our youth need time to learn about relationships, values, and their creator.

These lessons are learned from significant people who care to spend time in daily involvement with them. Surround them with these people - some of which can be found in your house of worship. Guide our young people in this direction.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

MAKING KNOWN THE 'UNKNOWN GOD'
January 31, 1999

Background Scripture:
Acts 17:16-34
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 96:1-13

Paul's visit to Athens is commonly regarded as a failure. He argued in the synagogue and Acts does not record a favorable response. He gave an exposition of his Christian discipleship on the Areopagus, one the favorite gathering places of Greek philosophers, but only a few "joined him and believed." In 1 Cor.16:15 when he speaks of "the first converts in Achaia," he mentions Stephanus of Corinth, but no Athenians.

Some complain that in Athens Paul forsook his own principles, trying to reach his listeners with Greek philosophy instead of the principle in 1 Cor. 2:1-6 where he says he preaches only "Christ crucified" and disclaims all "plausible words of wisdom." Some scholars believe that it was because of his "failure" in Athens that Paul arrived in Corinth determined to preach only "Christ crucified."

I don't know how God judged Paul's brief experience in Athens, but I would not want to hastily conclude it had all been a failure. True, the converts, if any, were few. True, there is no evidence that his efforts produced a church there. But shall we judge our efforts for Christ only in terms of statistics? The mission of Christ in our world cannot be adequately evaluated by "bean-counters." It is the Lord's judgement call.

THEIR OWN LEVEL

I admire Paul's effort to reach the Atheneans on their own level. Quoting from philosophers they knew, he weaved all of this into a tapestry into which he finally introduced Jesus Christ the Resurrected Lord. This was a wise approach because the Atheneans were renowned for their curiosity about things philosophical.

One of the reasons we often fail in evangelism today, I think, is because we do not translate the meaning of the gospel into words and concepts that are familiar and meaningful to those whom we want to reach. We not only want others to believe just as we do, but we want them to vocalize their beliefs in the very same words.

Paul referred to the two leading schools of Greek philosophy, the Epicureans and Stoics. The Epicurean school was founded by Epicures around 300 BC and its goal was "happiness." The Stoic school was founded about the same time by Zeno and it advocated conduct "according to nature." There was not much difference between their goals.

VERY RELIGIOUS

First, he says: "Men of Athens, I perceive that in every way you are religious." Observing the numerous altars and religious sites to various gods, he might have said, "Men of Athens, I perceive that you are thorough-going heathens and your religion is pure foolishness!" Theologically that may or may not have been accurate, but it certainly would have turned-off his audience. Too often, we begin our appeal for Christ with the condemnation of other religious ideas and practices.

Paul tells of an altar he found with the inscription, "To an unknown god," and he says: "What therefore you worship as unknown, this I proclaim to you." He acknowledges their religious quest and tells them that the God he worships is the fulfillment of what they also seek. This God who created "the world and everything in it." He is the universal God of all humankind. Furthermore, this God does not live in shrines, nor is he constrained by anything made by human hands. He is a much bigger, greater God than they have been worshipping. Yet. for all of his greatness, "he is not far from each of us." Until now this God has been patient with their ignorance, but there will now be a day of judgment and they will be judged "by a man he has appointed, and of this he has given assurance to all men by raising him from the dead." Enter: Jesus Christ!

What was the box score of this first Christian sermon in Athens?—some runs, some hits, some errors. "Some mocked, but others said 'We will hear you again abut this.'" And "some men joined him and believed" (17:32-34.) Do not our own efforts at Christian witness achieve much the same results?

GCC Sets Program On Depression And Its Indicators

A free workshop titled "Stress or Depression — Which is it?" will be held on Thursday, Feb. 4, at 12:30 p.m. in Room 315 of the Continuing Education Building at GCC. The program is open to the public, and will be presented by Suzanne E. Tomb, LCSW-C, a local mental health counselor.

People often confuse stress and depression, according to Tomb, who will discuss them both and provide keys to identifying each condition. She will also offer steps to take to manage stress and to evaluate and get help for depression.

Tomb provides counseling at both Southern High and Southern Middle schools through the Mental Health Clinic, as well as offering services to individuals. At her private practice in Oakland she specializes in eating disorders and women's issues. Before moving to Garrett County in 1997, she worked at a women's unit in a psychiatric hospital in North Carolina, where she also specialized in eating disorders and depression.

The workshop is sponsored by the New Dimensions program, the New Horizons program, and The Caring Connection program of GCC under the direction of Barbara Frey. For additional information or to register, interested persons may contact Frey at 301-387-3071 or Virginia Jeffrey, intake/counselor specialist for the New Dimensions and The Caring Connection programs, at 301-387-3103.

The New Horizons program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College. Grant funds in the amount of $45,000 are made available to the New Horizons Program through the Division of Career Technology and Adult Learning, which is approximately 90% of the total program budget, with GCC contributing an additional $5,300, which is approximately 10% of the total budget. The Caring Connection is 100% funded by the Maryland State Department of Education in the amount of $20,000. The New Dimensions Program is 100% funded by the Department of Human Resources.

Estimated Tax Vouchers To Be Mailed February 5

The Maryland State Comptroller's Office will begin mailing out the preprinted 1999 estimated tax vouchers on February 5. The vouchers are for quarterly income tax payments due April 15, June 15, and September 15 of 1999, and on January 15, 2000, from those individuals who must file a declaration of estimated Maryland and local income tax.

"Anyone who pays estimated taxes to the state should be getting their vouchers in the mail very soon," said Robert L. Swann, former Maryland state comptroller. "These taxpayers may wish to take this packet with them when they meet with their tax preparer."

Estimated taxes are collected quarterly from Maryland taxpayers who are either self-employed or who have income not subject to withholding that would generate a tax of $500 or more. First-time filers must file Form 502D, which is included in the Maryland tax booklet. The comptroller's office sends those preprinted packets that include a worksheet and the necessary vouchers for payment to taxpayers who filed estimated taxes the previous year or who submit a Form 502D for the first time.

More information about estimated taxes can be found in the brochure, "Should you pay estimated taxes to Maryland?" Taxpayers can get a copy of this brochure at any of the state's 20 taxpayer service offices, download it from the comptroller's website at www.marylandtaxes.com, or receive a fax copy by calling the Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-3299.

Maryland Ag Statistics Service Presents Semi-Monthly Report

Chicken and Eggs

Maryland laying flocks produced 74 million eggs during November 1998, of which 66 million were table eggs and 8 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 70.5%. The average number of layers on hand during November 1998 was 3,501,000. On Dec. 1, 1998, 3.5% of the layers in Maryland were being molted and 27.0% of all layers had been through a molt.

Agriculture Prices

Prices received by Maryland and Delaware farm operators for December were down from November, except oats, which improved by 15 cents from the previous month. The biggest drop for crops appeared in the price for soybeans, which moved down 16 cents to its current price of $5.47 a bushel. The price for hay dropped due to the low prices received at area auctions.

Hogs

The inventory of all hogs and pigs in Maryland was estimated at 65,000 head for Dec. 1, 1998. This is 23% less than the 85,000 on hand a year earlier and 13% less than the number on hand two years earlier.

The breeding inventory of 7,000 head was 4,000 fewer than a year earlier and 5,000 fewer than two years ago. The number of market hogs on Maryland farms was 58,000, a decrease of 16,000 from the year before. The number of operations with hogs in the state was 620 in 1998, up from 600 a year earlier.

U.S. Hog Inventory

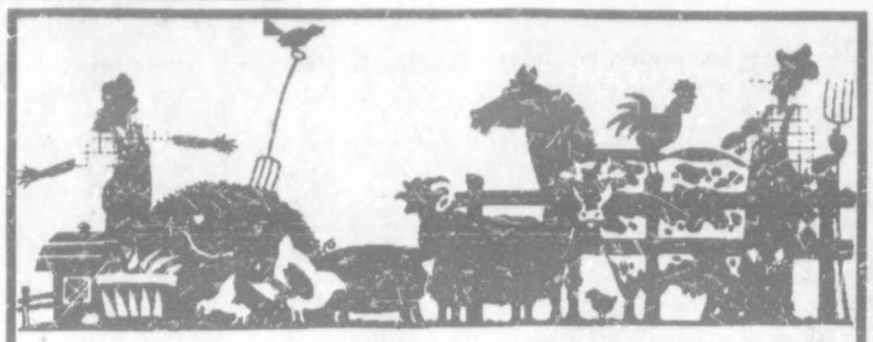
U.S. inventory of all hogs and pigs on Dec. 1, 1998, was 62.2 million head. This was 2% above Dec. 1997, but 2% below Sept 1, 1998.

Breeding inventory, at 6.67 million head, was down 4% from Dec. 1, 1997, and down 3% from Sept. 1, 1998. Market hog inventory, at 55.5 million head, was 2% above last year, but 2% below last quarter.

The September-November 1998 U.S. pig crop, at 25.9 million head, was 2% more than 1997 and 11% more than 1996. Sows farrowing during this period totaled 2.99 million head, 2% above last year. The sows farrowing during this quarter represented 43% of the breeding herd. The average pigs per litter was down slightly to an average of 8.65 weaned, for pigs born during the September-November period, compared to 8.67 pigs last year. Pigs saved per litter by size of operation ranged from 7.20 for operations with 1-99 hogs to 8.90 for operations with more than 5,000 hogs and pigs.

U.S. hog producers intend to have 2.89 million sows farrow during the December 1998-February 1999 quarter, 1% below the actual farrowings during the same period last year and 8% higher than 1997. Intended farrowings for March-May 1999, at 2.88 million sows, are 7% below the same period last year and 1% below 1997.

The number of operations with hogs totaled 114,380 during 1998, down 6% from last year and 20% below 1996. Places with 2,000 or more hogs on hand accounted for 6% of the operations and 64% of the inventory. This is the third time operations with inventories over 2,000 head have controlled over 50% of the total inventory. The number of operations with over 5,000 head of inventory, at 1,915, accounted for 42% of the total inventory. The total number of hogs under contract, owned by these over 5,000 head operations but raised by contractees, accounted for 23% of the U.S. hog inventory.



FSA Offers Annual Notice To Producers

According to Mike Kozier, executive director, Allegany/Garrett County Farm Service Agency, required determinations for participation in USDA programs include the following:

1. Payment limitation determinations are required for all operations before any program payments can be made.

2. Additionally, a person must be determined "actively engaged in farming" for certain programs.

3. Producers are required to have a current conservation plan on all farms.

4. Producers must have crop insurance or a signed waiver on file.

5. A husband and wife may sign for one another, except financial statements for loans, unless denial is on file in this office.

6. Foreign investors who acquire, transfer or change any interest in agricultural lane are required to report such actions to the FSA office within 90 days.

Interested farmers may contact the office for further information on any programs. Those who require special needs should call the office in advance of their visit. The phone number at the Garrett County FSA office is 301-334-6954.

Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program Explained

by Mike Kozier, executive director, Garrett/Allegany County FSA

What is the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP)? Nap offers disaster assistance for uninsurable crops suffering from a production loss that is greater than 50% as a result of a natural disaster.

How is NAP activated? A county committee requests through the state FSA committee a NAP area be designated when a crop has suffered at least a 35% loss in an area. This request i submitted with documented evidence related to the disaster, normal planting practices, prices, etc.

If I had a loss, how do I apply for NAP benefits? (1) Report your crops planted by the crop acreage reporting deadline. Late filed crop reports are accepted for a nominal fee. (2) Report a notice of loss within 15 days of the disaster occurrence or upon completing harvest. Late filed applications will not be accepted. (3) Submit yield records for the affected crop.

Crops not harvested must not be destroyed before appraisal by an FSA representative. Persons whose gross annual revenue exceeds $2 million are not eligible for this program. Payments are limited to $100,000 per person per year. Producers must be in compliance with Highly Erodible Land and Wetland Conservation requirements. The payment rate will be reduced for any crop which is unharvested or prevented from planting, to reflect the decreased costs incurred.

Crop reports and yield evidence are important! Please keep these up to date.

FSA Offers Farm Loan Programs

According to Michael Kozier, county executive director, FSA has direct and guaranteed loan programs to help family farmers who are temporally unable to obtain private, commercial credit. These may be beginning farmers who have insufficient net worth to qualify for commercial credit, farmers who have suffered financial setbacks from natural disasters, or those who have limited resources with which to establish and maintain profitable farming operations.

Kozier said FSA's mission is to provide supervised credit. This means that FSA works with each borrower to identify specific strengths and weaknesses in farm production and management, then works with the borrower to achieve success. The eventual goal is to "graduate" its borrowers to commercial credit.

In order to qualify for FSA loans, applicants must demonstrate repayment ability, and the loans must be fully secured.

Those interested in a farm operating loan, farm ownership, may contact the county FSA office for more information. Those phone numbers are: Allegany County FSA office, 301-777-1536; Garrett County FSA office, 301-334-6954.

MD & VA Milk Producers Recognize Dairy Producers At Annual Meeting

Members of Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative were honored at their district meeting on Tues., Oct. 27, at Centerville, Pa. Allen Claar, Arnold and Verna Martin, and Brian and Randy Zembower, Bi-Ran Farm, all of Bedford, Pa., and Potomac State College Farm, Richard Woodworth, Keyser, W.Va., were recognized for reaching the highest quality milk level every month from Aug. 1, 1997, through July 31, 1998. For this achievement, they received several "Quality Producer" awards, including a farm sign, embroidered shirts, and an engraved plaque, along with a $50 credit at the cooperative's farm supply and equipment warehouse.

Donald and Evelyn Brooke, Brookedale Holsteins, Keyser, W.Va., and Ernest Miller and James and Doris Stutzman, Friendship Farm, Meyersdale, Pa., were recognized for 25 years of membership with Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers. General manager George Walgrove presented the families with an engraved plaque and a limited-edition, custom-woven Maryland and Virginia blanket, and thanked them for their loyalty to the cooperative.

Re-elected to a second three-year term on Maryland and Virginia's board of directors was Calvin M. Will, Berlin, Pa. Since 1996, he has attended monthly cooperative board meetings, representing almost 60 dairy farmers in Bedford and Somerset counties in Pennsylvania, Allegany and Garrett counties in Maryland, and Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral, and Preston counties in West Virginia.

As one of 23 fall district meetings in the middle Atlantic area, this local meeting attracted 70 milk producers. Highlighting the meeting was a cooperative and market update by general manager George Walgrove and assistant general manager Robert Shore. Cooperative earnings for 1997 were 81 cents for every 100 pounds of milk produced in 1997; 93%, or 75 cents, was paid to members in cash. This figure includes over-order premiums, patronage dividends, profits from raw milk sales, and quality premiums. Milk, cheese and butter price trends, along with cooperative news and strategic planning, were also reported.

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers, headquartered in Reston, Va., is a milk marketing and processing cooperative that markets milk for about 1,150 dairy farmers throughout Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Delaware. The cooperative includes Marva Maid, a milk processing division in Newport News, Va., a manufacturing division in Laurel, Md., and an equipment division in Frederick, Md.

Low Hog Prices Continue

Low hog prices have affected almost every producer, even many of those with marketing contracts. Prices have gotten so bad that a number of contracts, particularly for feeder pigs, have been broken simply because the buyer could not afford to honor them. The tendency is to try to find someone to blame. But it's hard to pin down a single culprit in this case.

Typically, packers and retailers don't make big profits when hog prices are high. But when hog prices fall, packers and retailers do much better. This situation has been carried to extreme this past year. Normally retailers would get 47% of the consumer's dollar spent on pork. The packer would get about 16% and the hog producer would get about 37%. But as of October, producers were getting only 18% of the dollar while the packer was getting 22% and the retailer a whopping 60%.

Retailers haven't had to lower prices because pork is still selling well. In fact, retail pork consumption is up about 7% higher this year. This situation is really frustrating, but it's hard to blame the retailers and packers for making money when they can. By the same token, pork producers don't offer to pay more than they have to for feed when the grain is low priced or to sell their hogs for less than the going market price when hog prices are very high. We all try to buy low and sell high and make money when we can. So why are things so out of kilter this year? First and foremost, overproduction and the packing plants are full.

Federal Assistance for Hog Producers

The USDA has recently announced some programs that may be of some help to cash-strapped producers. The Farm Service Agency (FSA) can now guarantee both Operating and Farm Ownership loans. That means that if a lender is nervous about restructuring loans or lending money, the lender may be able to have FSA guarantee up to 90% of the loan.

Paperwork requirements for these guarantees have been reduced drastically. Contract your lender about this program, not FSA.

The second program recently announced involves direct payments from FSA to producers who sold fewer than 1,000 market hogs (or feeder pig equivalent) during the past 6 months of 1998. Payment will be $5 per hog on a maximum of 500 hogs (or equivalent number of feeder pigs) such that the maximum payment will be $2,500 per operation. Apply for this direct payment at your local Farem Service Agency office from February 1 through February 12.

Maryland Sheep Shearing School

The Maryland sheep shearing school will be conducted on April 9 and 10, 1999 (Friday and Saturday), near Westminster, Md. You will learn the New Zealand method of shearing sheep, how to adjust and care for hand-held shearing machines, how to set and adjust blades on these shearing machines, and how to properly handle wool after shearing. This class is limited to 25 people, with a registration fee of $25. There is a minimum age of 16 years old. For additional information and a registration form, contact my office at 301-334-6960.

Md. Residents Chosen For Ag Training Program

Twenty-four people have been chosen to receive training through Leadership in Educational and Agricultural Development (LEAD) Maryland, the state's agricultural leadership development program.

"The quality of the applicants was outstanding," says Susan Harrison, director of the program, which was established by the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Maryland Farm Bureau, the Maryland Education Foundation, the Grain Utilization Board, Maryland Cooperative Extension and other organizations. "The selection committee spent much time and consideration examining application forms, reviewing references, and interviewing candidates before selecting LEAD Maryland's first class."

This class is composed of a diverse group of 18 men and 6 women, including a teacher, a dairy farmer, a land-use manager, a financial loan officer, a nurseryman, a grain producer, and a new publication editor. "Students" range in age from 26 to 55 years, with the average age being 36 years. Each participant has a strong connection to Maryland agriculture and demonstrated leadership skills—the qualities needed to lead the state's number one industry to success in the 21st century.

Beginning on Feb. 10 at the University System of Maryland's Donaldson Brown Center in Cecil County, these students will attend eight seminars and two study tours—one in Washington, D.C., and one abroad—over the next two years. At each seminar, participants will develop and practice their leadership skills through a variety of learning techniques, including discussions of critical public issues. They also will observe different leadership styles through meetings with local business, community and agricultural leader from around the state and beyond.

FSA Gives Farmers Incentive To Buy Crop Insurance

Up to $400 million will be used as an incentive for farmers to buy higher levels of crop insurance in the future. All farmers will receive a special 25-35 percent premium discount on buy-up insurance.

Sign-up will begin February 1. Farmers should contact their local USDA Service Center for additional information. To get a crop insurance premium discount, farmers should contact a crop insurance agent. FSA offices have a list of agents. Phone numbers for the local FSA offices are: Allegany County, 301-777-1536; Garrett County, 301-334-6954.

FSA Committee Reports County Election Results

Carolyn J. Ganoe of Finzel was re-elected to the Garrett/Allegany County FSA Committee, with Douglas Workman of Frostburg elected as first alternate.

The committee is composed of a three members who administer all FSA programs. Gene Teter is the chairperson, Carolyn J. Ganoe is vice chairperson, and Dennis W. Margroff is the regular member.

Meetings are usually held the first Thursday of every month. For meeting times and place, those interested may call either office. Those phone numbers are: Allegany County FSA office, 301-777-1536; Garrett County FSA office, 301-334-6954.

Md. Ranked 8th Nationally For Value Of Crops

With diverse geography and crops, Maryland has a healthy agricultural industry that ranked the state eighth in the nation in a recent U.S. Department of Agriculture survey in terms of value of crops produced per acre of land.

"Maryland has been called America in miniature for its diversity of geography," said Thomas Fretz, dean of the University of Maryland, College Park's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. "You might say Maryland is California in miniature when it comes to agriculture."

Fretz said the USDA survey shows that "agriculture is still a healthy industry in Maryland, generating a lot of income. It demonstrates the richness and the diversity of the industry here."

In Maryland, the average revenue for each acre of farmland is $733, according to Ray Garibay, chief statistician with the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service.

Maryland ranks just behind California, which generated $843 per acre in 1997, the latest year for which figures are available.

Maryland has the fifth most expensive farmland in the nation. The price of an average acre, including the buildings, rose 3% last year, to $4,120. Only Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Rhode Island have more expensive per-acre costs.

High-value land demands high-value crops, said James Hanson, assistant director of the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

Poultry producers, concentrated on the Eastern Shore, have a significant impact on average revenue per acre of farmland in the state. Turp Garrett, a Cooperative Extension agent in Worcester County, estimated that a farm with two broiler houses on a small plot of land can generate more than $42,000 a year in cash receipts.

Tobacco also helps boost Maryland's revenue average. In a good year, tobacco growers can get $3,000 per acre planted.

Farmers produced $79 million worth of sweet corn, green beans, squash, tomatoes and other vegetables last year, Garibay said.

Hanson said an increasing number of fruit and vegetable farmers are boosting their sales by marketing directly to urban populations between Richmond, Va., and Philadelphia, Pa.

State grain farmers receive 40 cents a bushel more for their corn than Midwestern farmers, according to Lynne Hoot, executive director of the Maryland Grain Producers Association.

Because chickens raised in Maryland consume more grain than is produced in the state, farmers are paid a premium for their corn and soybeans.

Hoot said the poultry industry pays local farmers the Midwest price for their grain plus what it would cost to ship it to Maryland.

The fast-growing greenhouse and nursery industry is another factor pushing up Maryland's revenue per acre.

Fretz said a nursery might have 30,000 potted plants, selling for $4 apiece, on an acre of land.

Maryland greenhouse and nursery operations benefit from reduced shipping expenses to suburban population centers in the mid-Atlantic region.

Emergency Relief Offered Farmers

Farmers are eligible for compensation either for loss suffered to the 1998 crops (single year) or losses in any three (3) or more crop years between 1994 and 1998 (multi-year). Farmers can receive payments under either the single or multi-year provision, but not both, and USDA will make payments at the higher of the two levels.

The 1998 single-year provisions of this program covers all crops as follows:

* Insured crops—crops insured by either catastrophic (CAT) or buy-up coverage of 50/100 or greater crop insurance;
* Uninsured crops—crops for which crop insurance was available, but not taken;
* Non-insured crops—crops for which crop insurance was not available.

Antiques

The federal government has strict rules about toys with tin parts that could cut a child – which is one reason so many modern toys have plastic parts. Many toy collectors prefer the old tin toys, especially those that move.

Most of the tin windup toys were made from the 1920s to the '50s.

One popular toy made by the Louis Marx Co. and the Wolverine Co. is a military-band drummer. The lithographed tin is shaped and colored to depict a man with a huge hat and a red jacket. After you wind up the toy, the drummer's arms move as he beats the drum. The toy's noise and realistic drumming action has always made it popular with children.

Q. At a small antiques store in my town I found a wooden box-shaped purse decorated with a bejeweled painting of a bird and sun. The word "roadrunner" is written in script in the bottom left corner. In the bottom right corner is a copyright symbol under the initials "ec." Can you tell me about it?

A. Your purse is one of many colorfully decorated wood or linen handbags designed by Enid Collins of Medina, Texas, during the 1950s and '60s.

Enid and her husband, Frederic, named their company "Collins of Texas." The company's silk-screened and sometimes hand-painted bags were decorated with cording, glass jewels and leather trim and handles. They were sold all over the country at high-end boutique and department stores.

The bags are not well-known in the collecting world. Their prices are not high, at least not yet.

Home Tips

KEEPING TRACK – During a recent hospital stay, I received many get-well cards with address labels on the envelopes.

In order to make my recuperating days go by faster, I decided to update a new listing of the numbers I use frequently. Whenever possible, I used the updated labels and also cut out most of the return addresses and – presto – rewriting the phone book was made simpler and also occupied my time.

My friends thought this was an excellent idea. Kathy H., Savannah, Ga.

THOUGHTFUL MAIL – A few years ago, we moved across the country. We still occasionally receive mail for the former owners of our home and it would take me only a few moments to write "Forward" and their new address on the envelope, then remail the piece.

It has occurred to me that we have never receive any forwarded mail from our previous address since the post office stopped doing so after the first year.

Perhaps the new owner does not realize how easy and thoughtful it would be to take on the occasional task. It takes only a bit of time; no new stamp is needed. Rita F., Las Vegas, Nevada

OPRAH WINFREY: REAL-LIFE BELOVED

Oprah Winfrey's life reads like a fairytale: Once upon a time, after a "one-day fling," a black baby girl is born poor and illegitimate in the segregated rural South. Notifying the father by mail, Oprah's mom hands the baby over to her parents, strict religious farmers who often discipline her with a switch, and heads North for a better life. Oprah is sexually abused by relatives from 9 years of age until 14, when she births a premature baby that dies. The rebellious teen goes to live with her father who helps her get back on track. She excels in school, wins a college scholarship and grows up to influence millions worldwide.

Since 1985, the "Queen of Talk" has reigned in what had previously been the domain of white males. The cover story of March's Biography magazine, she's done it with her charm, curiosity, humor and empathy. When Oprah speaks, people listen – and act. She asks for small donations to her Angel Network's "piggy bank" and raises more than $1 million for scholarships. She recommends a book and millions of copies are sold. She mentions she won't eat burgers anymore and the price of cattle futures plummets. Even "Beloved's" box-office disappointment demonstrates Oprah's clout because she was able to make a "difficult" movie.

After college, she began her TV career as a Nashville reporter, steadily moving up to co-host "A.M. Chicago." A year later, rival Phil Donahue left town. In 1986, the newly renamed "Oprah Winfrey Show" expanded to an hour and became nationally syndicated. The rest is TV history.

After the "Beloved" premiere, Liz Smith wrote, "Oprah was ecstatic. This surely is the pinnacle of her life." The problem with pinnacles, of course, is there's no place to go but down. But if anybody can stay at the summit, or soar even higher, it's Oprah.

COVER STORY

Black artists in the spotlight on PBS

By Cynthia Werthamer
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dizzy Gillespie

I'll Make Me a World: A Century of African-American Arts launches PBS' celebration of Black History Month in a kaleidoscope of photographs, film clips and interviews.

Airing Monday through Wednesday, Feb. 1-3 (check local listings), the six hourlong segments, narrated by singer-actress Vanessa L. Williams, present personalities from dance, film, literature, art and music.

Some, such as dance pioneer Alvin Ailey and musical powerhouse Quincy Jones, are familiar, while others are highlighted for recognition they never received. Yet we may learn things even about those we thought we knew, such as Dizzy, the Duke, Bessie and Spike.

The shows present a virtual Who's Who of artists in almost every discipline, charting the trends that mark the history and impact of black creativity from vaudeville to rap. The task is tackled both chronologically and by art form, occasionally with story lines interweaving.

The fascinating and tragic story of singer, actor and activist Paul Robeson, for example, comes to the forefront, recedes and reappears in the second night. We move from the 1930s, when Robeson goes to Russia to discuss a film project with director Sergei Eisenstein, through the 1940s, when he is the first African-American to star on Broadway in Othello, to the 1950s, when he is blacklisted by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

In between, we learn about what made Dizzy Gillespie's jazz so innovative, and about the little-known Augusta Savage, who created a powerful sculpture for the 1939 World's Fair and whose art school in Harlem launched many careers.

The series is filmed in classic PBS documentary style: a mix of historical film footage, old stills, interviews and "talking heads" of critics, scholars and artists.

Co-executive producer Sam Pollard says he 's aiming for "a PBS audience" but also wants to entice young people "because it's important they understand the legacy."

At times, uninspired visual content – close-ups of a table's china place settings during a description of a historic luncheon of black and white artists, for example – makes for dull viewing, despite the clearly interesting nature of the subjects. The on-camera recollections of the time by artist Dorothy West are far livelier.

"Some of it may not be as entertaining because we're trying to be true to history and not titillate," Pollard says. "It becomes a little more somber." Nevertheless, the visual choices might have been more entertaining and still educational.

One riveting segment during the final hour consists of interviews with, and dances by, dancer-choreographer Bill T. Jones. A film clip shows Absence, his tribute to his dance partner and lover, Arnie Zane, who died of AIDS. Along with the poignancy of the dance itself comes a company member's description of the costumes: the bedsheets Zane had lain on. "I had tears streaming down," he says.

The audience might well respond the same way.

The 1974 coming-of-age drama The Lords of Flatbush introduced Henry Winkler, Sylvester Stallone and Perry King as Brooklyn thugs.

The first person to fly a plane in Australia was Budapest-born illusionist Harry Houdini. He made the pioneering flight March 16, 1910.

Whoopi Goldberg

Q: You recently reported that Whoopi Goldberg said the celebrities on Hollywood Squares were given the answers to the questions. That hardly seems fair, and I am upset to hear that. –Karen Hanna via e-mail.

A: Thanks for writing, Karen, because I need to set the record straight. My original answer echoed remarks Goldberg made at a press luncheon last summer, several weeks before the show went into production.

A spokesman for King World Productions Inc., which produces Squares, says Goldberg spoke in error. The stars are given jokes and phony answers with which to bluff, but they are not given the actual answers to the questions.

Q: What happened to Michelle Thomas? Until a few weeks ago, she played Callie on The Young and the Restless, but then they announced another actress would be playing the role due to Michelle's sudden death. She was such a talented young woman –D. Carter via e-mail.

A: Tragically, this beautiful and charming young actress died of cancer in mid-December. She was only 29.

Q: Was that a very young Rosalind Chao of Star Trek: The Next Generation fame that I saw on an old episode of *M*A*S*H*? –John O. via e-mail.

A: Very possibly. In 1983, Chao played a Korean woman named Soon-Lee, who ultimately married Maxwell Klinger (Jamie Farr) and moved with him to the United States as part of the short-lived sequel *After M*A*S*H*.

Q: What was the name of Ben Alexander's character on the original Dragnet? When did the series begin and end, and when did Alexander die? –Shirley Alexander, Avon Lake, Ohio.

A: Alexander joined the cast of Dragnet during the 1952-53 season as Officer Frank Smith, the sidekick of Sgt. Joe Friday (Jack Webb). He died July 5, 1969.

Originally a radio drama, Dragnet premiered on NBC on Jan. 3, 1952, after a December 1951 preview on Chesterfield Sound Off Time. The show ran until September 1959. A new version, which paired Friday with Harry Morgan's Officer Bill Gannon, ran from January 1967 to September 1970.

Another version aired in syndication during the 1989-90 season, but it quickly flopped.

Q: Is the Louis Mandylor who co-stars in Martial Law the same one who starred last season in Players? –R. Thimlar via e-mail.

A: Louis' brother, Costas Mandylor (formerly of Picket Fences), starred in Players.

Pop Tabs Help To Fund Ronald McDonald House

When a local couple learned that the thousands of aluminum pull-tabs they had collected could not be used for the charity they had intended them for, they found the Ronald McDonald House in Morgantown, W.Va., was very pleased to accept them.

Lana and Larry Roby of the McHenry area had originally started to collect the metal tabs when they heard from a friend that the tabs could be used to help defray the cost of dialysis for a young girl. With the help of friends and family members, the Robys filled bags and jugs with approximately 10,000 tabs.

Having amassed the tabs, the couple learned that the young girl had died. The Robys tried to find another dialysis patient to whom they could contribute the tabs. They found that the tabs could not be used for this purpose. "It was a myth," the Robys commented.

Deciding not to "give up the cause" the couple continued to search for a recipient of the thousands of pieces of recyclable aluminum.

The Ronald McDonald House of Morgantown responded to the Robys' inquiry. "Every year, over 900 families stay at the House. Though each family is asked to give a donation of $10 a night during their stay, this amount only partially covers the actual cost their stay," a McDonald's spokesman said.

The tabs are recycled and the money collected is used to help offset housing expenses. "Families are never turned away if they can't pay," the spokesman noted.

The Ronald McDonald House collects pop tabs rather than cans for several reasons, he explained: The tabs take up less space than cans; tabs can be cleaned and stored more easily; and tabs are worth more because they are made of a different alloy than cans.

The staff at the House thanked the Robys for their donation and said the funds resulting from it would be used to help families with critically ill children.

Anyone wishing to add to the Robys' ongoing collection of tabs may call Lana or Larry at 301-387-5303 or drop donations at Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Lake office along Rt. 219, McHenry.

Magna cum laude degrees were conferred on students earning a 3.51 to 3.79 GPA. Among those to receive this honor were Denyce Renee Harman, Oakland; and Teresa Marie Lou Knox, Accident.

A cum laude degree was awarded to Kathy Ann Yoder, Grantsville. This honor is achieved by students with a GPA of 3.3-3.5.

Oakland Man Detained On $303K Bond

An Oakland man is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Detention Center on a $303,000 bond following two separate arrests on a variety of domestic-violence and theft-related charges.

Shawn Louis Smith, 20, was initially arrested by deputies from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office on the morning of Saturday, Jan. 30, who were called to the Deer Park residence of a female acquaintance of Smith's. The woman had reported that Smith had been yelling at her house and banging on the locked front door that morning, as well as repeatedly calling her home on other occasions.

When deputies arrived at the woman's home, they reportedly found Smith sitting in his van which was parked in front. He was placed under arrest for trespassing and a variety of domestic-related charges, and was subsequently released after posting a $1,000 bond.

Smith allegedly returned to the woman's home the following day, according to court records, where she claimed he argued with her and choked her. Again he was placed under arrest, charged with assault and several other charges, as well as first- and second-degree sex offenses, and incarcerated at the jail.

While Smith was being held on those charges, investigators with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation questioned him about numerous thefts over recent weeks from vending machines belonging to Tanner Enterprises of Kitzmiller, which services vending machines on the campus of West Virginia University in Morgantown, W.Va., among other locations. Acting upon the company's suspicions, the GBI had recovered over $400 in change and currency from Smith's vehicle and residence.

After reportedly confessing to stealing approximately $1,000 from the vending machine company, which had hired him on January 11, Smith was charged with felony theft. The exact amount of money stolen from the company will not be determined until a monthly tally of income is

IT'S THE SEASON FOR LOVE, and Our Town Theatre is celebrating that fact by presenting the A.R. Gurney play Love Letters, starring popular local actors Sue Harkins and Richard Hill, pictured. The play consists of the life-long exchange of communiqués between two people who start writing to each other in childhood and continue throughout their diverse lives. Director Susan Rushing Bell states in her program notes that as the art of letter writing in today's society quickly fades into history, the play helps audiences remember how important the art truly is. The show dates are Feb. 4, 5, 11, 12, and 13 at 8 p.m. and Feb. 7 at 3 p.m. Guests are strongly advised to make reservations by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640. Tickets are $5 per person. The play is for adult audiences only because of some strong language and situations that some may find offensive, Bell said. See a review of the play on page A-4 of today's issue.

Dove Center Notes List Of Shelter Needs

As the Dove Center continues to provide more services to an increasing number of clients — 78 new clients in the last three months — some of the supplies of the shelter have dwindled and need to be replenished. There are other items which the shelter has never owned, but would find useful in serving clients.

Linda Spassil, executive director of the Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic abuse and sexual assault resource center/shelter, listed items that would be greatly appreciated by both staff and clients at the center.

For children using the facilties of the center for therapy or shelter, receiving blankets, baby monitors, changing tables, and sipping cups are needed. Other items for youngsters that would be useful are a children's table and chairs set, board games, Uno cards, puppets, activity books, and Phase 10 cards.

Core Services Agency Working To Coordinate Mental Health Services

The way that publicly funded mental health services are provided, paid, and planned for has changed, as Garrett County now has a core service agency — an administrative tool to manage the public mental health system (PMHS) in the county. This agency, the Mountain Top Mental Health Associates (MTMHA), will coordinate some service delivery, develop and plan for new services, and pay for all services that are publicly funded, according to Rev. Roland Nairn, chairman of the families subcommittee for MTMHA.

The mental health services that fall under the responsibility of the MTMHA include individual, group and family therapy, psychiatric rehabilitation, residential services, crisis and emergency services, inpatient psychiatric services, preventive mental health services in the schools, psychiatric medications, and other services to improve the conditions of persons with mental illness in Garrett County, Nairn explained.

Publicly supported mental health services have long been provided for through a system of grants to agencies, including the Community Mental Health Center of the Garrett County Health Department, the Psychiatric Rehabilitation Program of the Garrett County Lighthouse Inc., and emergency psychiatric services at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

As part of health care reform, however, publicly funded (Medicaid) services are paid for through a fee-for-service system. The funds used to provide services through grants are now paid to the agency based upon the amount and level of services provided, Nairn reported. Instead of the state holding the Medicaid funds and paying the provider of the service, the legislature has authorized each county jurisdiction to establish a core service agency that will manage the PMHS. The MTMHA is the Garrett County Core Service Agency, a non-profit extension of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners.

Through a complicated system, the state will provide the funds to MTMHA, which will authorize payment for services and, through a third party administrative services organization, will reimburse providers for the services. But the MTMHA will do much more than simply pay bills, Nairn said. The benefits of this arrangement are to permit the MTMHA to plan and develop additional services based upon unique Garrett County needs, and to improve the services that are already available.

Some examples of services that are not currently funded are intensive level residential rehabilitation programs and mental health services in the jail, besides certain services for children and services to meet the needs of special populations, Nairn reported.

The MTMHA is governed by a 13-member voting board of directors, all of whom are appointed by the county commissioners. These directors represent the many areas of the community, including consumers and their family members, organizations that are working to help the mentally ill, and health and social service agencies. Providers of mental health services are on the board, as non-voting members. The president is Irene Mersing, a therapeutic foster care provider in Garrett County; the vice-president is Olive Corliss, director of addictions treatment and prevention services for the Garrett County Health Department; and the treasurer and secretary is Robert Stephens, director of the Office for Children, Youth, and Families. The executive director is David Dubé.

The job of providing, planning, and coordinating mental health services is complicated by the stigma associated with mental illness, according to the board members.

"A federal survey from the 1980s showed that Americans rank mental illness with leprosy as the two worst things that can happen to an individual, that ex-convicts have a higher level of acceptance than mental health consumers; and that in a ranking of 21 illnesses according to offensiveness, mental illness

GCSO Seeking Info On Hutton Road Accident

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is asking for the public's assistance as it conducts an investigation of an accident that occurred Tuesday evening in Hutton.

At approximately 6 p.m. on Feb. 2, Charles Edward Friend, 64, of Hutton Road, was attempting to cross Route 39 at Kendall Drive on foot when he was reportedly struck by an unknown vehicle. The accident resulted in treatment of injuries to Friend's hand and knee at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, after which he was released.

The driver of the vehicle involved is believed to have spoken to Friend and left with his consent; however, the victim was unable to provide further information to the investigating deputy, who would like to speak with the driver.

Any persons with information concerning this accident are encouraged to contact Deputy Corley at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, 301-334-1911.

Ice reportedly was a factor in a pair of accidents that occurred yesterday morning that resulted in hospital transports.

Staff Leaders Give Monthly Status Reports

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners held the monthly meeting with all county staff leaders on Jan. 26 and heard reports from several agencies and departments. Among the numerous items discussed were the status of the county roads department's road-treating materials, flood mitigation efforts, and upgrades to the county's library system. Commissioner Chairman Ernest Gregg also broached the issue of public parking in the vicinity of the county courthouse.

County Roads

Lee Thorne, county roads administrator, reported that the January ice storm "took a dramatic toll" on stock piles.

"We have used over 6,000 tons of abrasives," Thorne reported, noting that even the heavy use of the abrasives sometimes is not completely effective. He said the abrasives simply bounce off the ice when temperatures are frigid.

"These abrasives don't melt the ice — they stick into the ice and provide traction," he said. "A lot of people wonder why we don't use salt, but what they don't understand is that salt doesn't melt ice when it's below 20 degrees. It just isn't very effective."

Thorne also noted that salt is about four times as expensive per ton compared to the abrasives the county purchases (abrasives are $6 per ton and salt is approximately $26 per ton). He said the department is experimenting with "Ice Ban," a new product that apparently does melt ice. He added that he and his staff appreciate the public's patience during inclement weather.

Flood Mitigation Efforts

Duane Yoder, executive director of the Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. (GCCAC), reported that he has been working with Brad Frantz, director of the county's office of emergency management, to continue efforts of flood mitigation in the Crellin and Shallmar areas.

The two have secured funding to hire an engineer, who will be interviewing Crellin families and evaluating their situations. The engineer will formulate plans of action, ranging from total buy-outs to the construction of flood walls. Elevation of houses is also an option, Frantz said.

A grant of $400,000 has been awarded from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Yoder said, which will get the efforts underway. However, he noted that more funds will be needed to complete the work.

In other news from GCCAC, Yoder said a grant has been received for an early Head Start program, designed for infants

County Leaders Preparing For Y2K; Compliance Program Is Adopted

The approaching close of the 20th century and the computer glitches and other ramifications possibly to be caused by the changeover from 1999 to 2000 has spurred the Garrett County Office of General Services to explore what has become known as "Y2K" (the year 2000). Linda Gnegy, risk manager at the general services office, met with the Garrett County commissioners Tuesday to discuss her office's Y2K compliance program.

Gnegy said she is initially asking all county offices and agencies to report any computer or machinery difficulties that could potentially occur as a result of Y2K. She will coordinate the testing of all "critical automated systems," she said, to make sure all equipment will continue to operate properly. If a system fails because of computer troubles or other circumstances, Gnegy said she and the county employees will make sure all back up systems will perform properly.

She said the century change will most likely not affect just computers, but all machinery that has dates encoded in their systems. She also reported that electric companies, phone companies, and other major service providers may experience an interruption in power. Therefore, she will conduct a survey of all independent contractors, vendors, and suppliers who provide services to county offices. She will determine from their responses as to how their potential difficulties would affect county offices.

Gnegy listed potential trouble spots, including security systems in the jail and courtrooms, air/heating systems, and electrical power. The compliance program will, through surveys now being circulated among county agencies, help officials determine risks and prioritize possible troubles. Y2K warranties and guarantees will be required of all vendors to the county to make sure these vendors take care of any problems that occur with their equipment or services.

Gnegy said her office will work to remedy any potential problem and will determine what problems can be fixed rapidly. All non-compliant software and hardware are to be upgraded, according to the program guidelines.

Each agency and department director will be responsible for providing an inventory of all potential "exposures," or Y2K problems, to the risk management division.

"We just have to be aware of what might happen, although we really don't know to what extent Y2K might affect us," Gnegy said. "It's very possible that all the publicity about the issue is more hype than anything else, but we need to be on top of things anyway."

The United States Congress enacted the Year 2000 Information and Readiness Disclosure Act" in October, which encourages all state and local governments to prepare, approve, and execute a compliance program for the Y2K problem.

By motion of Chairman Ernest Gregg, the commissioners unanimously agreed to adopt the compliance program as presented by Gnegy.

Hospital's New Diagnostic Tool Looks Into Hearts

Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently unveiled its new echocardiogram machine, a diagnostic instrument which uses ultrasound waves to examine the human heart. "This is the most exciting upgrade yet," remarked Dr. Robert Goralski, a staff physician at the hospital.

"Echocardiograms have been performed at Garrett Memorial since 1983, with periodic upgrades as the technology advances," said Dr. Thomas Johnson, an-

Brady Selected To Fill Office As Kitzmiller Mayor

Kitzmiller town council member Nancy Brady has been selected to serve as town mayor. She will fill the seat vacated by James Barrick, who recently moved to another area of the county.

A resident of Kitzmiller for most of her life, Brady has been an active member of the community, serving in many civic organizations. Among the projects in which she has been instrumental are the Kitzmiller Youth Council and the community park revitalization program. In addition she has held office in the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group, which serves as liaison with the Garrett County Health Department to sponsor community-wide activities for youth and families.

Brady said she is looking forward to the challenges of her new position in Kitzmiller. "It's a great community, and it is easy to be involved because of all the support. The school serves as a center that unifies the community — in ways it feels like an extended family," she said.

The new mayor is currently working with Garrett County Community Action Committee to develop opportunities for first time home buyers in Kitzmiller.

Valentine's Day Ballroom Dance To Benefit OTT

The public is invited to spend Valentine's Day this year "swinging and swaying" to the sounds of Harry James, Glenn Miller, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey and more at the Our Town Theatre on Feb. 14.

"DJ Dan Daniels will be spinning the best sounds from the Swing era from 2-5 p.m.," a spokesperson reported. All ages are invited. The cost is $5 per couple or $3 for singles. All proceeds will benefit Our Town Theatre, which is located at 121 Center Street in Oakland. No reservations are needed, as all tickets will be sold at the door, the spokesperson said.

As a highlight of the afternoon, Steve and Gail Herman will give an informal demonstration of ballroom dance styles, including the waltz, fox trot, rumba, jitterbug, and swing.

Free coffee will be provided and soft drinks will be available. Dress is casual.

"Valentines can 'come as they are' or get dressed up if they want to," the spokesperson said. "Everyone should come early, because space is limited."

Our Town Theatre Inc. is a non-profit organization. The theatre is smoke-free and has access for the handicapped. For further information, persons may call the theatre at 301-334-5640.

Activities Set At OT Theatre This Weekend

In addition to this week's production of A.R. Gurney's Love Letters, which is scheduled for Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m., Our Town Theatre will host a creative dramatics class for middle-school children, an evening of improvisation for participants of all ages, and an audition for a play consisting entirely of women's monologues.

The dates and times for creative dramatics classes for middle-school students are February 6, February 20, and March 6, 1-2:30 p.m. Reservations are required and may be made by calling the theatre (301-334-5640) at any time until 10 a.m. on the day of the class. These classes will feature theatre games, improvisation, rhythm, movement, pantomime, and puppetry. The cost for these classes is a modest donation to the theatre.

An Evening of Improvisation for the entire family is slated for 8 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 6. Participants will be encouraged to create scenes "off the top of their heads, which can lead to an evening of exceptional entertainment," a theatre spokesperson said. The cost is a modest donation to the theatre.

Auditions for the women's play Talking With will be held in the theatre on Sunday, Feb. 7, and Tuesday, Feb. 9, 7-9 p.m. Women who wish to audition may bring something to read with them, or they may choose to read from the script. The play is a series of monologues and will be produced during the second weekend of March.

Persons can obtain more information about the above activities by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

McHenry Man Handed 30 Days For Assault

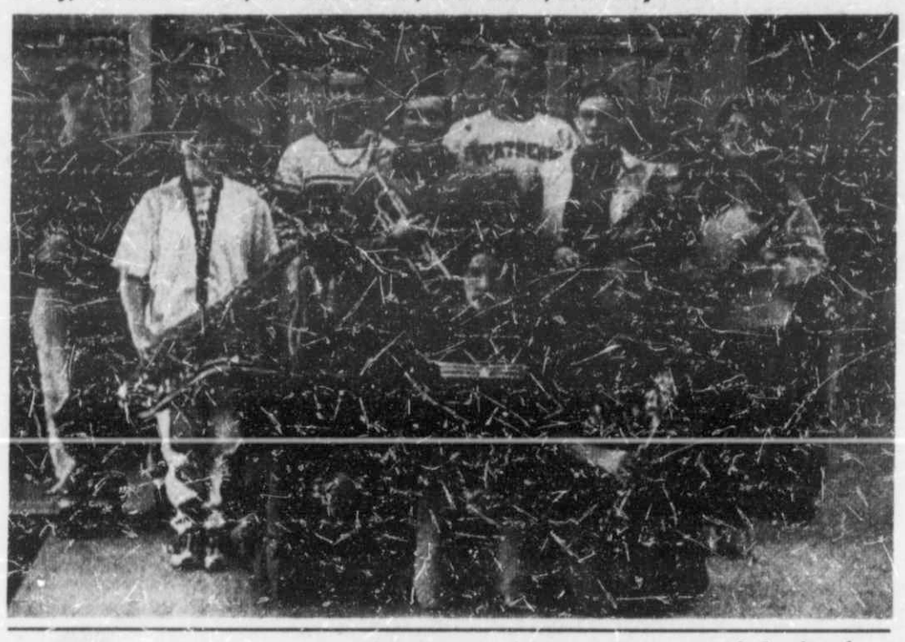
A McHenry man was sentenced to a month in jail after pleading guilty in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings to charges of second degree assault and disorderly conduct.

Charles Robert Thomas, 33, was arrested by Oakland City Police officers in December for allegedly assaulting a guest at his residence. According to the charging statement, an intoxicated Thomas had returned home to find several guests visiting another resident there, and he commenced fighting with one of them.

After hearing the case against Thomas, District Court Judge Ralph Burnett handed him a 90 day sentence, suspending all but 30 days, placed him on two years of supervised probation, and ordered that he pay $309 in restitution to the victim. Additional charges of alcohol intoxication that endangered another person and malicious destruction of property were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In a separate case, Burnett placed two counts of disturbing the peace and one count of malicious destruction of property faced by Thomas onto the stet docket. Those charges stemmed from Thomas's October arrest by Garrett County sheriff's deputies after he allegedly came to the front counter of the Garrett County Detention Center in an intoxicated state and yelled and threatened the on-duty correctional officers. In passing his ruling, Burnett ordered Thomas to pay $675 to the sheriff's office as restitution for destroying a portion of a wall of a padded cell that he had been placed in after his arrest.

STRIKE UP THE BAND - Band members from Northern and Southern high schools will be among the 100-member ensemble representing 12 high schools at the Frostburg State University Tri-State Honor Band Festival, Saturday, Feb. 6. The concert performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. In the photo above, Southern High band members in the front row from left are Brett Lambert, Katie Filchter, Hilarie Wampler, Lauren Nelson, and Tim Beckman. In row two are Casandra Kauffmann, Audrey Shipe, Evie White, Jamie Durst, and Al Hill. In row three are Amanda Palmer, Daniel Shafer, Charlie Nolan, Derek Coughlin, Tiffany Holtschneider, and Robert Kortas. The members of the Northern Band who will participate are pictured below. In row one from left are Shenna Rodeheaver, Audry Friend, and Janis Afable. In row two are Jennifer Murry, Jeremy Green, Erin Niel, and Holly Hare. In row three are Julie Green, Todd Foley, Allison Martinez, Wendell Beltzel, Sean Miller, and Andy Fike.



In other district court news, a Bayard, W.Va., man who had pleaded not guilty to a pair of second degree assault charges was convicted.

Robert Lee Suter, 30, was fined $150 and placed on six months of unsupervised probation. He had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in September for allegedly using his vehicle to ram another car traveling on Route 219 south of Oakland in an incident that occurred last June. The two counts of assault stemmed from the fact that the victim's vehicle was occupied by two persons.

In a separate case, Suter was exonerated after pleading not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct stemming from a September arrest by sheriff's deputies for reportedly yelling and partially disrobing in the emergency room of Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Timothy Michael Tusing faced charges of second degree assault, fourth degree burglary, disturbing the peace, malicious destruction of property, and telephone misuse via repeated phone calls, which were placed on the stet docket.

The 20-year-old McHenry resident had been arrested by Maryland State Police troopers in November after he had reportedly broken into the Grantsville home of a female acquaintance and allegedly assaulted her and two other persons on the scene. Additional charges of first degree burglary and first degree assault were not prosecuted.

Charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia faced by Rebecca Ann Deem, 25, Oakland, were placed on the stet docket.

Deem had been arrested by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force in October after a court-ordered search of her home reportedly uncovered partially burned marijuana inside the residence and a potted marijuana plant growing outside, as well as assorted items of drug paraphernalia both inside and out. Additional charges of manufacturing marijuana were not prosecuted.

Richard William Hoover, 30, Friendsville, faced a charge of disorderly conduct, which was placed on the stet docket with the stipulation that he complete 50 hours of community service. Hoover was arrested by state troopers in October for reportedly pounding on a neighbor's door and yelling obscenities while allegedly intoxicated.

Craig Lee Stephens, 32, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a charge of disturbing the peace, which stemmed from his December arrest by sheriff's deputies. Stephens had been taken into custody after reportedly engaging in loud and disorderly behavior while allegedly intoxicated at his home.

Timothy Allen Whitacre, 37, Bayard, W.Va., pleaded not guilty and was exonerated of a charge of felony theft.

DWIs/DUIs

Several individuals faced charges of driving while intoxicated (DWI) or driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) in recent district court hearings.

Billie Joe Everidge, 30, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $500, handed a six-month sentence with all but 90 days suspended, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Jo Ann Lynn Campbell, 44, Friendsville, pleaded guilty to a pair of DWI charges, and was fined a total of $500, handed a 60-day sentence with all but 7 days suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to completed 80 hours of community service.

Gary Brent Welch, 41, and Larry Alamon Roberts Jr., 23, both of Oakland, both pleaded guilty to a charge of DWI. Each man was fined $255, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Narcotics Task Force Releases 1998 Arrest Tally

The Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, the smallest in the state with only three assigned officers, outperformed at least five of the other 22 task force/drug units in Maryland last year, according to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, chairperson of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force Advisory Board.

Last year the task force made 44 arrests for drug offenses while seizing a total of 3 pounds of marijuana, 29 marijuana plants, and 1.8 ounces of cocaine.

While Welch and Garrett County Sheriff Dick Sanders expressed their utmost confidence in and gratitude for the task force's success, they cautioned that the coming year will have even greater challenges. "Intelligence information indicates there is a lot more to be done in this area," Sanders said. "While marijuana remains the most-used substance, cocaine, LSD, and heroin are growing in popularity and availability. The war against drugs requires the cooperation and assistance of the entire community.

"If you see suspicious activity in your neighborhood, you can call the Task Force and give information anonymously. All reports are investigated."

A cooperative venture composed of personnel from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and the Maryland State Police, the local narcotics task force is mandated to conduct ongoing investigations, obtain and execute search and seizure warrants, and arrest individuals conducting activities including the use, manufacture, and distribution of illegal drugs.

Concerned citizens may contact the Task Force at 301-387-9566.

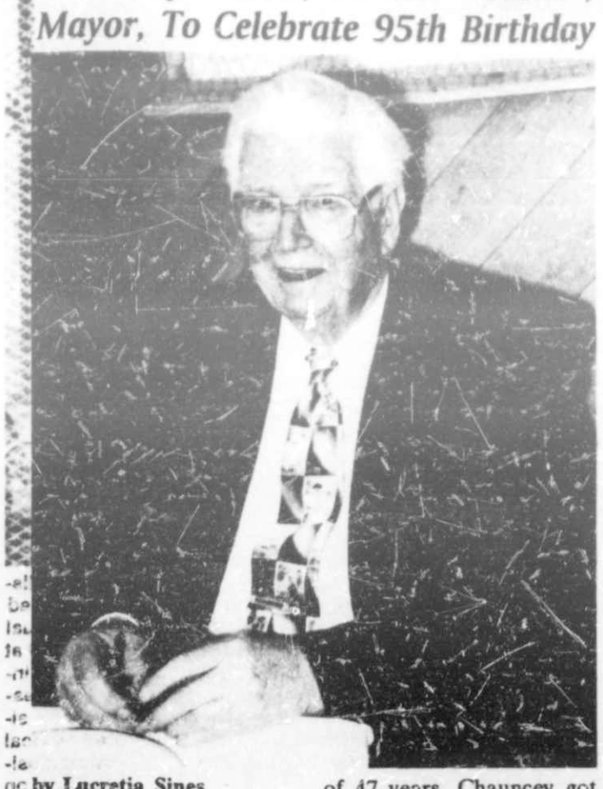
Chauncey Friend, Former Teacher, Mayor, To Celebrate 95th Birthday



nc by Lucretia Sines

Chauncey Friend of Friendsville will celebrate his 95th birthday on Saturday, Feb. 6. Born in Keeler Glade in 1904, he is the eldest of five children born to the late Sherman and Ethel Kelley Friend, and is a descendant of John Friend, the original settler for whom the town of Friendsville was named.

"It was a great time to be born, four years into the new century," Chauncey reflected fondly. "I recall the first gas driven car or buggy to come to the Friendsville area. It was put out by Sears Roebuck and Co. It had hard rubber tires, with a top that could be raised or lowered like a horse driven buggy," he said. His cousin, Martin Walkner, was the owner of this vehicle at a time when most people used horses as a means of transportation.

In 1914, Chauncey's father got a Model T Ford. "The radiator was encased in a bright brass case which I had to polish every week, as my father was very particular how it looked. I used to practice driving it around the field any chance I could get, and got my first legal driver's license when I was 14 years old for one dollar," he said.

A school teacher who retired after teaching a total of 47 years, Chauncey got his teaching certificate at age 16 and began teaching in a one room schoolhouse in Mountain View, W.Va. He continued teaching in one room schoolhouses until 1942 when he started teaching in Friendsville Elementary School. In 1952, he transferred to Northern High School as math, crafts, and later the metal shop teacher. In 1967 at the age of 63 he retired from the classroom.

Chauncey stated that he is not too "enthused" by today's fast pace. He is from the "old school" and likes the old methods and basics of teaching.

A devout family man, he was married to the late Olive Friend and became the proud father of five children: the late Chauncey Jr., LaVale; Janice Ross, Hazelton, W.Va.; Betty Humberson, Selbysport; Maurice (Dean) Friend, York, Pa., and Bernard Friend, Friendsville.

Chauncey is step-father to Sarah Rodeheaver, Mt. Dale; Patricia Bennett, Friendsville; Bill Jones, Fredricksburg; and Elsie Geric, Cleveland, Ohio — the children of his second wife, Thyra Jones. He also has 13 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, 13 step-grandchildren, and numerous step-great-grandchildren.

Chauncey once served as mayor of Friendsville and also held a seat on the town council. He remains active in the community, notably helping to spearhead the group of senior citizens who traveled to Annapolis to convince the governor to help fund a senior center in Friendsville. A firm believer in the need for this center, he has been seated in the front row at many town council meetings, and when he has something to say, everyone listens.

An active member of the First Christian Church, he serves as elder and occasionally teaches Sunday School. Respected by many in the community and seen at many town functions, he has become a symbol of the pride that the town has for its elderly residents. Always accompanied by his long time friend Gladys Betley, Chauncey regularly attends the senior citizens' meetings Mondays and Wednesdays to eat, visit and play Bingo.

When asked what he contributes his longevity to, Chauncey said with a grin, "I never drank, never smoked, and never chased wild women." Then he added: "The dear Lord has granted me this long life and consequently I have seen many changes, some good and some not so good."

Chauncey is the eldest resident in Friendsville and has touched the lives of many, mine included.

Virginia Man Found Guilty Of OWI On Lake

A Virginia man was sentenced in yesterday's Garrett County District Court proceedings after he was found guilty of operating [a boating vessel] while intoxicated (OWI) on Deep Creek Lake.

Thomas Lee Rearney, 42, McLean, Va., was fined $500, handed a six-month suspended sentence, placed on six months of supervised probation, and was ordered to complete 70 hours of community service.

Rearney had been arrested by Maryland Natural Resources Police after being apprehended on June 19 in the Skipper's Point area of the lake.

Scouts To Mark Recommitment In Courthouse Event

A special Scouting Recommitment Ceremony will be held on Monday, Feb. 8, at 8:15 p.m. in the Courthouse rotunda, Oakland. All Scouts, past and present, male and female, are invited to participate in this event, which will be conducted by the Deep Creek District Scouts.

The genesis for Monday evening's Recommitment Ceremony, which has not been conducted locally for many years, comes from a passage in a 1930 edition of the Handbook for Scoutmasters recently discovered by Paul Shogren, district scouting commissioner. The passage reads: "The program for Anniversary Week will include a plan whereby every registered Scout in good standing shall be given an opportunity to assemble on the evening of Anniversary Day, that is February 8, and promptly at 8:15 recommit himself [or herself] to the Scout Oath and Law."

During the ceremony, Cub Scouts will recommit themselves to the Cub Law and Promise, and Boy Scouts will recommit themselves to the Scout Law and Oath. Following those and similar pledges by Brownies and Girl Scouts, Kyle Morrison, district Scout executive, will speak to the gathering. As outlined in the 1930 BSA by-laws, his talk will be designed to "bring to the attention of the Scouts the extent of the Scout brotherhood in our country and throughout the world and impress upon their minds the fact that every Scout the world over is committed to the same obligation and does a good turn daily." Assisting Morrison and Shogren at the ceremony will be Brenda Arnold, pack chairperson, and Howard Boltz, district chairperson.

"By participating in this event, all [Scouts] will be reviving a ceremony that has been long-lost but hopefully will now continue for years to come," said Shogren. "We'd like to make a special appeal to former as well as current scouts to join us for this ceremony, and either uniforms or civilian attire is acceptable. This is a special evening for special people."

Low Interest Home Repair Loans Offered

Low interest home repair loans are available to property owners in Garrett County through Garrett County Community Action Committee (CAC), Oakland. Financial guidelines will be used to determine eligibility of homeowners to apply for loans to make certain repairs to a primary residence.

The funds may be used for repairs to roofs, windows, heating systems, plumbing, wells, and septic systems, as well as for health and safety items. CAC staff will assist applicants in planning and financing the repairs. "We will walk you through the entire process from the initial contact and application to the completion of the repairs. We have different financing options available based on the applicant's status," said loan assistant Dawn Eichorn.

CAC urges homeowners who are financially unable to make repairs to their homes to contact the housing staff to learn more about these flexible loan opportunities. Interest rates will be based on income, with some available with no interest charge. Other loans may be structured with no regular monthly payment. Upper income limits for eligibility range from $24,700 for family of one to $46,550 for a family of eight.

For more information on this program or to schedule a confidential interview, persons may contact Deb Swiger or Dawn Eichorn at 301-334-9431 or toll-free at 888-877-8403.

Free Car Seat Checks Available To Help Save Children's Lives

How old does a child need to be to use regular seat belts? At what age can my child ride in a forward-facing car seat? Which car seat is the best?

Trained personnel will be ready to answer these and many more questions at two free Car Seat Checks in early February. These checks will be held at the Grantsville fire hall on Sunday, Feb. 7, and at the Frostburg fire hall (Station 2) Tuesday, Feb. 9. The checks will be held indoor from noon to 4 p.m.

Car seats will be examined for proper installation, age and size appropriateness, manufacturer recalls, and visible damage. The events are sponsored by the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems (MIEMSS) Region I Office, Garrett County Highway Safety Program, Grantsville VFD, Frostburg VFD, and Maryland State Highway Administration.

In addition to assisting parents in keeping their children safe, the car seat checks will provide more experience for EMS, fire, police, and public health personnel who are participating in classes to learn proper installation and use of child safety seats. The seat checks will be supervised by nationally certified trainers.

"Most of the people who have registered for the class have seen what can happen to children if they are not properly restrained," said Diane Lee, Garrett County Highway Safety coordinator with MIEMSS. "We all want to prevent those injuries and deaths from happening. Almost anyone will tell you that the hardest calls are always those involving kids."

National statistics show that about 40 percent of kids still ride unrestrained, and of those children who are buckled up, four out of five are not restrained correctly.

"Most of the deaths and injuries occurring to children in motor vehicle crashes could be prevented by using car seats and safety belts correctly," Lee said. "This is a great opportunity to work one-on-one with parents who have questions about the safest way to properly secure their child in a vehicle."

Nearly 1,400 children die each year as motor vehicle passengers, and an additional 280,000 are injured. Lee says that car seats are "extremely effective" when properly used and installed, reducing the risk of death by as much as 71 percent. It is estimated that 200 lives could be saved and 20,000 injuries could be prevented annually if all children ages 4 and under were properly restrained.

For more information about the child safety seats, or the seat checks, persons may call Diane Lee at 301-895-5934 or 301-746-8636.

Long Way to Go...

The general status of women in society has progressed significantly in the United States during the past couple of decades, as more and more women have risen to positions of authority in the workplace, in politics, and in a variety of other leadership/decision-making roles. No longer is a female expected, at least not by the majority of Americans, to "simply" raise a family and keep house. However, the disparity between males and females remains enormous in nearly every arena, and the reason for what progress has been made is more a matter of economic need than one of changing male attitudes.

An analogy would be the realm of race relations, as African Americans are now guaranteed equality under the law, but the racist attitudes of many whites toward blacks (as well as blacks toward whites) remain strong.

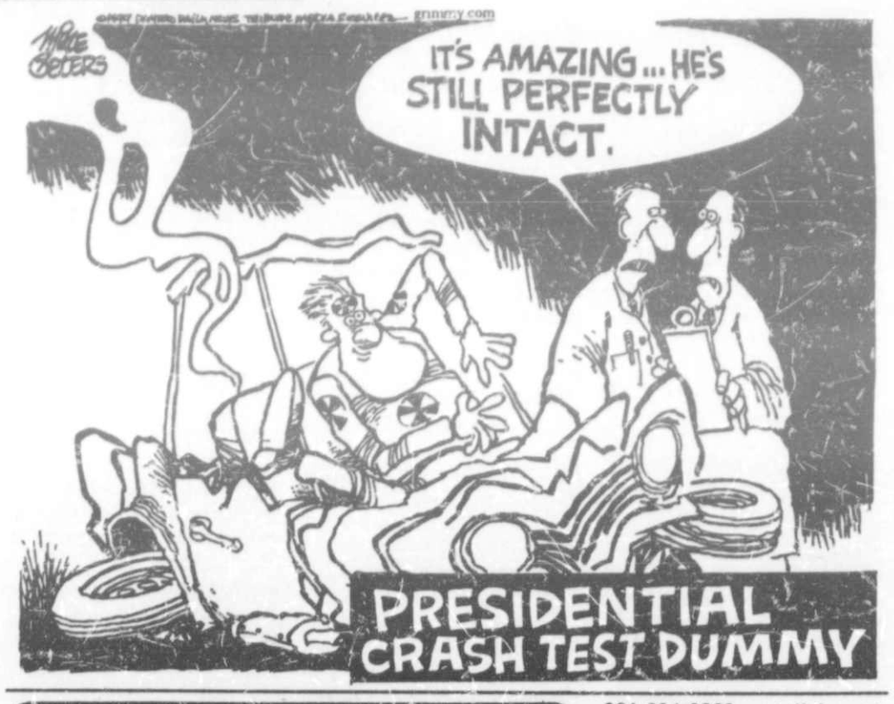
There is evidence at every level of our society that suggests that attitudes toward women may not have changed nearly as much as some might hope or believe.

We have a photo and a story this week in this newspaper about Nancy Brady, who has been appointed mayor of Kitzmiller. The story is somewhat unique since she is only the second female mayor in the history of Garrett County's incorporated municipalities, the first, ironically, also being in Kitzmiller (Carma White). Most of our various town councils have female representation, but the majority of seats on all of them are held by males.

The Garrett County commissioners' reluctance to provide a single dime of support for the local domestic abuse shelter is, in our opinion, another sign that the value of women, who are by a large majority the victims of domestic abuse, is sorely lacking in the minds of the typical, all-male board. Perhaps the commissioners will surprise us, though, and do the right thing by including the center in their new budget.

At the national level, we have military forces in use in one nation (Iraq), and threatening in others (i.e., Kosovo), in response to those nations' gross abuses of human (men's and women's) rights. Yet, the United States, and the rest of the world, is simply ignoring the horrific treatment of women in Afghanistan, where the fanatic, militant, brutal Taliban rules. Women are not entitled to an education there; they are not even entitled to medical care. Worse yet, they are routinely beaten and murdered right on the streets for "crimes" such as dressing improperly or speaking out of turn. Meanwhile, their assailants face no legal consequences whatsoever. But these women aren't valued enough by the rest of the world for anyone to even attempt to intervene.

"You've come a long way, baby," was the slogan of a television advertisement nearly two decades ago. In relative terms, it may have been an accurate assessment. But in the overall picture, women — and men — have a long, long way to go yet before there is truly equal treatment and respect between the genders.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Allegany/Garrett Unit of the American Cancer Society, I would like to thank the residents of Garrett County for their tremendous response to the call for transportation volunteers.

When the call when out on January 20th to help transport a Garrett County resident with cancer to Sacred Heart Hospital, the county responded with care and compassion. In less than a week, arrangements were made to transport the patient to 23 different treatments.

A huge thanks goes out to Cathy Clocker, the staff of WKHJ, WWHC, WMSG, and all area churches for getting the message out. Thanks to all those who volunteered. You are truly special people.

Sincerely,
Kevin Tephabock

To the Editor:

Lost — One antique moral compass, circa 1776. Known to have been used by the framers of The Constitution.

Originally made for the people in power (esp. the people on Capitol Hill) to help them guide "the ship of state." Over the years it has been misused, and indeed abused, by members of all political parties.

In recent years it has rarely been used and, in fact, has not been seen at all in the past six years or so.

Sometimes, the people who did have the opportunity to use it did not understand its workings. Yet, "the ship" has miraculously stayed afloat for the past couple of hundred years, despite the fact that it has occasionally been taken over by pirates who had a notorious disdain for the compass. For them and their cohorts, it was the bounty that was important, not their behavior as they went about getting it. And of course the same can be said of our commanders in the field, all of whom should have used the compass, but often didn't and were known as "loose cannons."

I am hopeful that this compass can be found and returned to the American people. I also hope that it is not beyond repair, because the people desperately need it. I know many people who would be willing to work on its restoration. Perhaps there is even someone who can demonstrate how it is used — maybe even our next commander-in-chief.

George Falter Jr.

To the Editor:

In recent months there have been numerous comments and editorials regarding the possibility of a Wal-Mart in the Oakland area. Many of our local merchants have expressed their concerns on loss of business if the department store chain sets up shop in Oakland. Indeed, many of our local merchants return a percentage of their revenue back to the community, which, in return, benefits almost everyone.

Local residents with physical disabilities have restricted access to many local businesses. Out of 30 Oakland merchants, only 44% had handicap facilities for their disabled customers, and 56% of those merchants do not have any such facilities.

If you've ever shopped at a Wal-Mart, they cater to all customers, including the physically disabled, with automatic doors, spacious aisles, handicap equipped restrooms, and friendly sales associates available to assist disabled shoppers. Wal-Mart may hinder the competition, but they can provide the type of customer service any shopper can admire.

Many want to keep Oakland as the picturesque community without the modernization of convenience. I think it's too late for that. Look around our community; we are covering ourselves in fast food and convenience stores at a rapid rate. If we want to continue to prosper as a community, we must diversify our goals and continue to transform our community into a favorable place to live, for everyone.

Theatre Review

Love Those Letters

by John R. McEwen

Having seen The Dining Room by A.R. Gurney at Our Town Theatre last year, I knew what to expect from Love Letters, which was written by the same author and is currently showing there under the direction of Susan Rushing Bell. As with the other play, Love Letters features a minimalist setting and a script that calls on the director's and actors' most creative energies to make it interesting. But where The Dining Room featured a cast of (seemingly) hundreds, Love Letters has only two characters, a man and a woman. And it is pulled off quite well by some of Garrett County's finest local talent.

Richard Hill and Sue Harkins star as Andrew Makepeace Ladd III and Melissa Gardner, a pair of school friends who keep up a regular correspondence all their lives, through thick and thin, triumph and despair. We see their characters unfold simply by eavesdropping on these letters, each one read aloud by the sender.

Melissa and Andy begin their correspondence in 1937 when they are just old enough to write, and the inauspicious first words are those of a thank-you note for an invitation to a birthday party. We learn early on that Melissa hates to write letters, Andy doesn't mind it so much, and the two obviously like each other. As the years melt away, we are party to their ever growing, ever more complex relationship. Letters about boarding school, coed dances, and first sex change to subjects more adult in nature: alchoholism, divorce, children. Always present is the question of whether the two will unite together; occasionally we experience the deafening silence we have all felt when the mail is only traveling one way.

As I mentioned, the play is read; Hill and Harkins hold the scripts in their hands throughout, as was suggested by the author (according to Bell's program notes). This may have been an ill-advised idea by Gurney or a misinterpretation by Bell; either way it makes for a low-action format that takes some getting used to. While the text is amusing and emotionally rich, the result is that the actors' eyes are often glued to the paper, forcing the audience to absorb the story simply by listening, as with a radio play. This is perhaps more true for Hill than Harkins, who frequently gazes out into thin air as if wrapped up in the experience she is describing.

This provides an interesting conundrum from a directing standpoint: If the writer of the letter is reading, what is the other actor supposed to do? Luckily, this creative team has seen the neccessity of action and reaction; the actor who is silent is often more animated than the one speaking, as the words being read are shown entering the mind of the recipient.

As would be expected, the set and staging are quite simple, with each actor simply moving about in his or her half of the stage while the text is read. Andy's area is accoutered appropriately for a person who likes to write, with a desk and chair, paper, pen and ink. Melissa's half is more comfortably furnished, with a soft chair, floor pillows, and a coffee table. The two share a floor lamp, which is situated in the center of the stage, separating yet uniting the two playing areas. In addition to the set, Ben Sincell's creative lighting design helps to move us from one moment to another with a seemingly endless combination of moods and instruments.

Love Letters is a thoroughly engaging play which leaves us with the wonderful sense of wistfulness that life can sometimes give. It is read with a great range of emotional colors by Harkins and Hill. It would be nice if there were more direct contact with the audience to compensate for the lack of action, but Bell's diverse blocking and Sincell's lighting make up quite well for this solitary deficiency.

General household needs listed by Spassil included twin sheets, comforters, pillows, mattress pad and covers, and two small night tables and lamps.

Automactic dishwasher liquid, wet mop, broom, dust mop, snow shovel, tools and a tool box were among the items noted for general housekeeping. Baking dishes, mixing bowls, electric mixer, and coffee maker were listed as kitches items that would be helpful.

Under the heading of office needs, Spassil has listed a copy machine.

Spassil and the staff at the Dove Center rely heavily on the generosity of the community in order to provide support, counseling, shelter and referral services to county residents and children who are battered and abused. Anyone who is able to help meet the needs of the shelter by donating any of the items listed, may contact the Dove Center at 301-334-9000 or toll free at 1-800-894-3872.

came in dead last. Yet this is an illness that will likely affect each family in Garrett County at one point or another," Nairn stated.

Several groups and organizations within the community have been struggling for years to provide additional support to those with family members who have experienced mental illness. The MTMHA relies upon all these groups for assistance in the goal of improving the conditions for the mentally ill. The Garrett County Mental Health Advisory Committee, co-chaired by Becky Smoot and Howard Gerard, is developing ways to evaluate mental health services. The Garrett County chapter of the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill provides support for families affected with mental illness and works to reduce the stigma associated with it.

In addition, MTMHA has established several committees that have been active, according to Nairn. A "Community Needs Assessment" has been conducted and the results have been analyzed. A manual for the community to use is being developed, with the available providers of mental health services and a guide about how to get help.

Lastly, the families subcommittee, chaired by Nairn, is working on an education campaign to tell the community about mental illness and mental health, services, and other important factors. As part of this campaign, this committee is looking for stories from families who have experienced mental illness.

"Many families have lived through a family member who has become mentally ill, and these families no longer take good mental health for granted. Yet their journey can be helpful for other families to know and learn. The difficult lessons learned by one family can be shared with the next," Nairn said.

Persons who would like to share their stories are encouraged to contact the MTMHA offices. Confidentiality is assured, and every effort will be made to assist families to resolve problems. These stories will be published, if appropriate and with the approval of the family, although no names or identifying information will be included.

View From My Window

BACKYARD BIODIVERSITY

Someone left me a phone message, asking if I had planted peas yet. He was kidding, of course. He also knew that the threshold to the new year was hardly crossed before my mind turned to the garden and, therefore, also to seed orders.

From the end of World War II until the present day, big seed companies have been buying up small seed companies. Eventually a few huge seed companies were buying up all the large seed companies, until there was almost no one left in the seed business except the trans-national giants.

Beneath the radar there began in the '70s and '80s a movement to save garden seeds, which held no interest for the petro-chemical companies that were doing all the buying up. Kent and Diane Whealy of the Seed Savers' Exchange (3076 North Winn Road, Decorah, IA 52101) are the most famous, and justly so, of these modern seed pioneers.

Flowing from or parallel to their efforts has been a stream of new small seed companies, really micro-companies, some which flourish, many more which run to ground.

Johnny's (R.R. 1, Box 2580, Albion, ME 04910-9731) is the most successful of those. For 25 years Rob Johnston and friends have been offering an alternative catalog. The irony is that their success has defined a second mainstream in American gardening. Their innovations have been so imitated that Johnny's has become a standard for all small seed companies.

While everyone else has focused solely on corn hybrids, for example, Johnny's is at work on new varieties of open-pollinated sweet corn. They have introduced a cold-hardy, open-pollinated, bi-color sweet corn, a first anywhere, which they have appropriately named "Standard."

In addition to the catalogs which I look forward to receiving every January, I usually receive one or two catalogs of companies that are brand new, at least to me. This year a catalog arrived from Underwood Gardens Ltd. (4N381 Maple Ave., Bensenville, IL 60106), titled "Grandma's Garden 1999."

The owners of Underwood Gardens begin their catalog with a charming letter addressed to "Gentle Growers." They advocate what they call "backyard biodiversity," which they suggest "may be the best way, or the only way, to leave our children and grandchildren what remains of our wondrous legacy."

One example of this legacy maintained by Underwood is "Mrs. Benson's" tomato, described as a 70-day, indeterminate, potato-leaved variety which was first to ripen in their garden. Mrs. Benson died last summer, but her tomato lives on in the Underwood catalog.

Besides the usual claims of small growers of seeds (i.e., heirloom varieties taste better than the modern varieties developed for commercial production), the Underwood Gardens owners claim that heirloom varieties attract more insect pollinators to the garden, which, if true, will increase yields.

About the heirlooms, the catalog claims, "The nectar is more plentiful and accessible in the old varieties, which are closer to their wild form ... and the original colors attract the species designed to feed on them.... The entire garden becomes a microcosm of natural order." It is an interesting hypothesis which I had not heard before.

I am getting excited about 1999 gardening. Before long my window sills will be full of trays and pots. Biodiversity will be under way indoors, awaiting those warm spring days which will be here before we know it.

Oakland Man Freed; Charged For Rape, CDS

An Oakland man was arrested and released from jail twice after posting bond amounts of $1,000 and $2,500 respectively after he had been arrested on two separate occasions for a variety of sex and drug offenses.

Thomas Edward Gank, 19, was initially arrested by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation on Wednesday, Jan. 27, for allegedly having sexual intercourse with a juvenile female. He was charged with second-degree rape, fourth-degree sex offense, and second-degree assault, and subsequently released after posting a $2,500 bond as required by the district court commissioner.

The following Tuesday, Feb. 2, Gank was apprehended along with five other men and a juvenile as GBI members and sheriff's deputies executed a search and seizure warrant at his apartment, located at 203 South Seventh Street in Oakland.

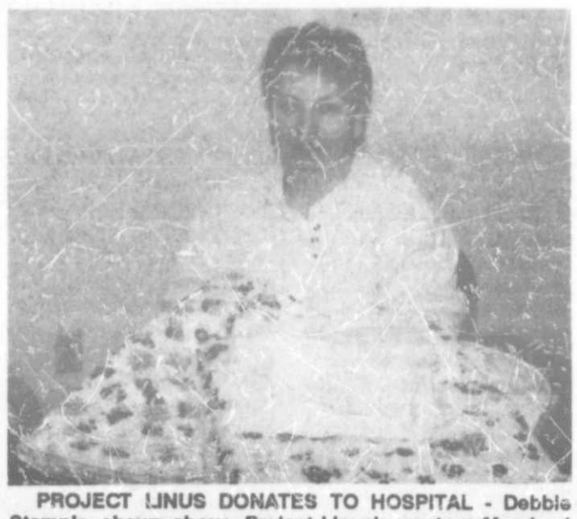
The search uncovered approximately $750 worth of marijuana along with drug paraphernalia and an unspecified amount of currency. As a result, charges of possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute, and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia were filed against Chad Allen Ward, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, and a 16-year-old juvenile. Ward was reportedly apprehended carrying a pair of large plastic bags that contained numerous smaller bags containing marijuana, as if divided up for individual sales.

Five adults—Gank, Jimmy Lee Barkley, 19, (who resided at the apartment with Gank), and Jonathan David Jones, 20, all of Oakland; Todd William Riley, 23, Mtn. Lake Park; and Victor Frank Gardea Jr., 19, Accident—were each charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Gank was reportedly observed throwing a plastic bag found to contain marijuana out a bedroom window.

After appearances before the district court commissioner, Gank, Barkley, Jones, Riley, and Gardea were each released when they posted $1,000 bonds. Ward is still incarcerated on a $50,000 bond, while the juvenile was reportedly transported to a juvenile holding facility for processing by the Department of Juvenile Justice.

As a result of another GBI investigation that began in December, Jones had been arrested along with Dana R. Stallard, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, on Thursday, Jan. 28, when both men were charged with a variety of drug violations.

Jones was charged at the time of that arrest with one count of conspiracy to distribute marijuana, and was released after posting a $1,000 bond as required by the district court commissioner. Stallard is still incarcerated on a $2,500 bond, charged with distribution and possession of marijuana.



PROJECT LINUS DONATES TO HOSPITAL - Debbie Stemple, shown above, Project Linus's western Maryland chapter coordinator, recently donated several handmade quilts and receiving blankets to the pediatrics unit and Family Centered Maternity Suits at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Project Linus is an international organization that supplies blankets to organizations who work with children in stressful situations, giving blankets to the children to provide them with a source of comfort and security. As Stemple said, "When a child receives a blanket, it is [his or hers] to keep and take home."

Managing Stress To Be Topic Of Hospice Program

NANCY E. NIMMICH

Hospice of Garrett County will present a program on stress management in the Community Services Building at Garrett County Memorial Hospital on Thursday, Feb. 25, beginning at 6 p.m. with a covered dish dinner. The program will start at 7 p.m. Nancy Elizabeth Nimmich, M.S.W., hospice social worker, will be the speaker for the evening.

Nimmich earned a master's degree in social work from Catholic University in 1978. Since that time she has worked for a number of not-for-profit agencies, including Hospice of Northern Virginia and several community mental health centers. She also worked for professional organizations and corporations, including the World Bank and COPE Employee Assistance. In addition to managing her private therapy practice, Life Transitions, she taught a variety of courses at George Mason University and led women's day-long and weekend retreats. For the last seven years, Nimmich has taught about the healing power of sound and music, especially for increased physical and mental health.

In all of these different work environments, Nimmich has taught people how to deal with different types of life stressors: job difficulties, serious physical problems and health challenges, and anxious marital and family relationships. She presents many approaches to stress management so that each person will be able to learn one or more techniques that can fit into his/her own daily life practice.

Hospice volunteers and staff are urged to attend, and the general public is welcome. There is no charge. To make reservations, persons may call the Hospice office at 301-334-5151, or in the Grantsville area, 1-800-521-5252, or TTY 1-800-735-2258.

Applications Being Accepted For Head Start

Garrett County Community Action's Head Start program is accepting applications for the current school year. Eligible children who are ages 3 to 5 may be enrolled through March 1, provided there are openings.

Applications are also being accepted for the 1999-2000 school year. Children who will be ages 3 or 4 by December 3 may now be considered for enrollment in September.

Head Start is a child development program, which provides age appropriate learning-readiness activities. These activities, along with nutritionally sound meals and snacks, are available at 10 centers in Garrett County. Nine of the centers operate 150 days per year; however, the center located in Jennings is open year-round.

In addition to the 10 centers, other program options are home-based and pre-school family support. In the latter options, services are provided to children and their families in their homes or in other child development settings.

As a complement to the Head Start Program in the Oakland area, Community Action offers Wrap Around Child Care for ages 3 to 13. The Child Care Program, which is open five days per week, 6:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m., also provides sound nutrition and age-appropriate activities.

Head Start provides support to families of all enrollees, with the intent that they will become self-sufficient.

For information on parent activities as well as enrollment requirements, persons may call Barbara Hornyak, family development coordinator, at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 126. Questions about Wrap Around Child Care may be directed to Patrick Damon at ext. 107.

Gas Tax Idea Is Dropped By State Leaders

The idea of raising the Maryland gas tax by a nickel has been dropped by Governor Parris Glendening and the General Assembly, according to several published reports. The proposed raise was supposed to help offset the growing transportation costs in the state. However, the five-cent increase would have put only about $140 million into the Transportation Trust Fund, and leaders have assessed that the state's need is for about $400 million.

"Clearly, we need to find a way to generate revenues sufficient to support the transportation needs of the state," said Delegate Sheila Hixson, chairperson of the House Ways and Means Committee. Hixson has in turn introduced legislation that calls for the creation of a "Blue Ribbon Transportation Committee."

"This commission would examine the transportation needs of the state, educate the public about these needs, and recommend ways to finance them so that legislation can be considered during the 2000 session," Hixson said.

Another similar move was made by Glendening, Senate President Mike Miller, and Speaker Casper Taylor, who agreed to appoint a transportation investment committee to evaluate the state's transportation trust fund and present alternative funding ideas to the 2000 General Assembly.

Bartlett, Citizen Support Mandate Information Act

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett (MD-6th) said he was proud that one of his constituents, Ryan Null, Hagerstown, testified this week before the House Rules Committee urging swift passage of H.R. 350, the Mandate Information Act. Null, founder of Tri-state Electronic Manufacturing Inc., provided the committee his first-hand experience as a small business owner about the need to curb the cost to his business of unfunded federal mandates. Null testified on behalf of the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) and its 600,000 small business owner members, according to a spokesperson for Bartlett.

As a small business owner himself for 10 years and chairman of the Oversight Subcommittee of the Committee on Small Business, Bartlett is a co-sponsor of the Mandate Information Act.

"Bills always have great names and goals, but this bill would arm members of Congress with something that's been missing — projections about how much proposed legislation would actually cost our hometown small businesses, like Mr. Null's company. I can't imagine how anyone could oppose members of Congress getting such basic information."

"Whether it is on excessive paperwork or simply understanding the ambiguous regulations, I spend on average four to five hours a week on government compliance...about 4 hours a week fifty-two times a year — that's an entire month every year spent on govern-

Glendening Urges Lawmakers To Lower DWI Level

Governor Parris Glendening's administration is currently urging legislators to pass a bill that would lower the blood-alcohol level (BAL) for a DWI (driving while intoxicated) conviction. Currently, a person can be charged and convicted for having a BAL of 0.10 percent. The bill would lower the level to 0.08 percent.

According to the governor's administration, this change would save 23 lives and 1,300 injuries in Maryland each year.

"It's not often that we can say with certainty that passing a piece of legislation will save lives," said Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend. "This one will."

The measure has been introduced for the past two years and has been defeated both times. Townsend said, however, that the governor is this year willing to use his executive power to pass it.

"I believe he's prepared to do what must be done to get this passed," Townsend said.

Supporters of the bill this week noted studies that reportedly show decreases in fatalities and injuries from alcohol-related crashes in several of 16 states that have adopted the 0.08 level.

"At 0.08 blood-alcohol content, a driver is 11 times more likely to be involved in a fatal crash than a driver who is completely sober," reported Sen. Ida Ruben from Montgomery County.

The opposition to the bill has historically come from liquor and restaurant businesses, who have maintained that the lowered level would only trap "social drinkers" and would not alleviate the problems caused by chronic abusers.

Supporters contend the lower level would encourage persons to choose a designated driver more often, according to a published report.

State Schools Invited To Apply For Green Award

Governor Parris Glendening has invited all Maryland schools to apply for the first Governor's Green Award, a non-competitive award to recognize schools that demonstrate superior environmental practices in their operations and curriculums. The program will also credit schools that best instruct and prepare students to understand and embrace current and future environmental challenges facing Maryland.

"Schools of all levels, public or private, can apply for this unique distinction," Glendening said. "To best preserve and enhance our green infrastructure for future generations to enjoy, we must build a clear, comprehensive understanding of the basic principles of environmental stewardship. Maryland schools have demonstrated their spirit for protecting our natural

FSU Presenting South African Vocal Group, Pittsburgh Ensemble

The Frostburg State University Cultural Events Series has scheduled two events for the first week of March.

Because of a conflict with the group's itinerary, the Ladysmith Black Mambazo performance, originally slated for February 8, has been rescheduled for Wednesday, March 3, at 8 p.m. in the FSU Lane Center Multi-Use Room. Tickets previously purchased will be transferable to this new date without any further action needed by the purchaser.

The Pittsburgh New Music Ensemble, dedicated to the performance of new and emerging music, will present an evening of music on Friday, March 5, at 8 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center. As a special opportunity for FSU to thank the public for their support of the Cultural Events Series, anyone who purchases a Ladysmith Black Mambazo ticket can also purchase a ticket for the March 5 performance of the Pittsburgh New Music Ensemble for a special price of $2.

Ladysmith Black Mambazo, a vocal group from South Africa, is known throughout the world for their uniquely South African style of a capella harmony. Their uplifting, often spiritual music, has led to collaborations with major artists from many countries including Paul Simon, Manu Dibango, George Clinton, Dolly Parton, and Youssou N'Dour, among others.

Their work with Paul Simon on the Graceland album has been said to spearhead awareness of South African culture and the related political struggle of the 1980s.

The Pittsburgh New Music Ensemble, in residence at Pittsburgh's Duquesne University, has toured throughout the United States. Formed in 1976 after a "brainstorm" by composer David Stock, the Ensemble has premiered more than 200 works, many of which were written for them. They have collaborated with several well-known composers, including John Cage, Milton Babbitt, Witold Lutoslawski, Joan Tower, John Harbison, William Kraft, and Ellen Zwilich.

In support of new and emergig composers, the Ensemble sponsors the Harvey Gaul Composition Contest, the Center for New Music at Duquesne University, and the International Composer's Forum of Music Lives! The Pittsburgh International Music Festival.

For information and ticket reservations for these two events, persons may contact the FSU Lane Center Box Office at 301-687-4411 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Visitors of Ralph and Ethel Buckel last week were Evelyn Shawley, Ken and Harriett Buckel, Sally Poholsky, and Mike and Eleanor Winter.

Mabel Griffith, Friendsville, is now recuperating at the home of her daughter, Sharon Buckel, and son-in-law Gary Buckel in Bittinger. She has spent numerous weeks at Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, and Garrett Memorial Hospital, and the past week at Dennett Road Nursing Home. Good to have you back, Mabel.

Attending a birthday celebration for Ruby Orendorf on Saturday at Penn Alps Restaurant were Paul Orendorf, Gary and Joanne Orendorf, Blair Buckel, Maxine Hendrickson, Alfred Fritz, Urner and Vi Carl, Mosella Buckel, Catherine Labor and daughter, Bill and Sheila Southerly and sons, Beulah Moon, Ferne Beachy, and June and Bill Green.

Last weekend guests at the Stephenses' home on Peat Moss Road and also visiting Katherine Bowser were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stephens, Bel Air.

Ruth DiPaolo visited Estella Bittinger, Mary Ollis Brenneman, and Mary Harman at Goodwill Nursing Home on Thursday morning.

Ida Reckner was a Sunday lunch guest at the Lillian Reckner home at McHenry, where other guests were Gary and Kathy Reckner and children, Bryce, Lyndsae, Bristol, Timmy, Tyler, Kimberly, Bethany, and Emery, Sarasota, Fla.; Charee Reckner and Michaele Puliti, Coopersburg, Pa.; Karl and Cathy Deroeser, Kara and Marc, Allentown, Pa. Ida was also one of the invited guests at a 70th Birthday Party for Lillian Reckner, held Saturday at Will O' the Wisp. The Reckners were all Monday dinner guests of Ida Reckner.

William and Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa.; Shelli and Ashlin Gray, Hanover; Julius and Karmen Carey, Frostburg; and Tom, Cherry, Tim, Donna, and Jim Glotfelty had Sunday brunch at Penn Alps, Grantsville, in celebration of the birthdays of Jim Glotfelty and Linda Oester. Sheli and Ashlin Gray also attended a family birthday party for Estella Bittinger at the Goodwill Home last week, and Sheli assisted in moving Kermit and Estella Bittinger from Cumberland to a trailer home near the Loraine Bittingers.

(Written Monday, Feb. 1)

I can't bear to write something upbeat about what is going on around Bittinger this week. I don't know anything interesting happening. I doubt anything big did happen.

However, I did take a drive on Rock Lodge Road to the lake. I am simply crazy about the way the country looks around here in the in-between seasons, the cusp between fall to winter and winter to spring, and the time when just about everything is the same few subtle colors: just pewter, pale tans, pinkish beige, burnt umber, raw umber, gold and green, blended together so the sky, water and land is a tonal poem in complete harmony. Nothing to jar your senses. Nothing spectacular, just peaceful and really lovely.

So when I drive somewhere, every few minutes I need to park off the road to look at something that I had just seen out of the corner of my eye. It takes a long time to go anywhere, but I look closely to put a picture in my memory so that I maybe can paint a picture later with each detail, those bunches of cattails; or that swamp with those pale grey dead trees and patchy, gold grass embers with a patch of dark grey shades or indigo; and a spot of melting snow; or that big field with dead weeds ranging from pale cream yellow to golden rust; the different kind of weeds are just feathery frilly and soft; far across the fields are the dark green pine trees; so many are wonderful dead trees; many split-rail fences.

I was so delighted that the spring runs again. Most of this year it was dried up. I assume this means that the ground water is rebounding. It should be, considering how much rain we have gotten.

Now, my Groundhog Day celebration. I'm not a big fan of the media observant of "Punxsutawney Phil," so I plan to stage a mock, fake groundhog experiment. I found a groundhogish stuffed animal. If we had many real goundhogs around now, I would stake out their hole to see if they come out. But we have tried to eliminate our population of them. When you gallop a horse at plus 30 mph and hit a hole, both the rider and horse turn a couple somersaults. You encourage anyone who likes to hunt groundhogs to come around, as a number of my former students do. They are more than welcome around here. The holes are also pretty hard on farm equipment, but nothing to compare as to the damage they do to a horse and rider. After such a fall it is hard to get your breath back.

Anyway, I plan to get my fake hog in place for sunrise tomorrow and we will just see what will happen. Today, since the weather is so dismal with no sun anywhere, there is no shadow for my fake hog. He is just old and wet and miserable. I suppose that means an early spring. I hope so, because I am as miserable as my "Phil" with aches and pains, and just want to crawl back into my bed for a few more weeks until spring comes. I can do that since our girls' 4-H record books are finally finished before the deadline. Time to celebrate! Happy days are coming!

Unbeaten Northern Matmen Flatten Westmar, Southern

It was virtually no contest for the Northern High wrestling team in a match against visiting Westmar last Thursday evening, as the undefeated Huskies (13-0) recorded eight pins in flattening the Wildcats, 67-6, and a Tuesday match in Oakland against cross-county rival Southern provided only a little more competition, with the Huskies returning to the Cove with a convincing 47-19 victory.

The loss by Southern to the Huskies came after victories over Beall and Meyersdale (see separate story).

Winning via pins for the Huskies against Westmar were: Blake Huber in the 103-pound division; Matt McNees, 119; Seth Huber, 125; Paul Beitzel, 130; Brandon Kamp, 135; Adam Brenneman, 145; Mark Wolf, 152; and David Wampler, 171. Undefeated Jesse Shimrock (140) won by decision, as did Ryan Savage (275). Roy Holliday (112) and Matt Kauffman (160) won on forfeits.

The only points recorded for Westmar were by Chase Wilhelm, who won via a pin in the 189-pound bout.

The Huskies also wasted no time deciding Tuesday's match in Oakland with the Southern Rams, as they won the first seven bouts and finished with a total of six pins.

Pete Stein won on a pin in the 103-pound class, as did Holliday at 112, Brandon Stein at 125, Brandon Kamp at 135, Shimrock (undefeated) at 140, and Ryan Savage in the heavyweight division. Earning a technical fall was Paul Beitzel (130), while McNees (119) was awarded a forfeit.

Recording Southern's only pin was John Hayhurst (171), while Eric Rexrode (145), Nick Dolan (152), Jeremy Hayhurst (160), John Hayhurst (171), and Russell Crosco (189) all won by decision.

One of the most exciting matches was between Southern's Dolan, who is undefeated with a 22-0 record, and Northern's Adam Wolf. Dolan trailed by a point with less than a minute to go in the third period, but rallied for a 7-6 victory with a final takedown.

The Huskies will compete again this weekend in the Thomas Chevrolet Tournament in Bedford, Pa.

Southern Mat Club Fourth In Own Tournament

The Southern Mat Club hosted its annual youth wrestling tournament on Saturday at Southern High School. This event drew the top wrestlers from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Maryland. There were over 320 young wrestlers competing, representing 33 teams, including the reigning National Champion Parkersburg Patriots. The Southern Mat Club performed well, finishing in fourth place as a team behind the Patriots, the Parkersburg Cougars, and the Pleasants Co. Pioneers.

"It doesn't get any better than this," stated Coach Dave Taylor. "I have never seen such strong competition. It was a joy to watch. The parents and volunteers did an outstanding job making sure the tournament ran smoothly. I am proud to be a part of such a great organization."

Individually, SMC crowned three tournament champions. Jeremy Gregory (9/10, 90#) remained undefeated, capturing his sixth straight first-place award. Also earning first-place trophies on Saturday were Nathan Sines (11/12, 85#), and Geoff Tressler (13/15, 119#). Second-place finishers were Jakob "Bubba" Scheffel (5/6, 45#), Scott Wildesen (11/12, 90#), and Corey Helbig (5/6, 60#).

Earning third-place awards were Lex Ozias (5/6, 40#) and Chris Hayhurst (13/15, 85#). Fourth-place honors were earned by Dakota Roy (7/8, 65#), Daniel Carr (9/10, 70#), and Sean Sisler (9/10, Unl).

Also winning matches but failing to finish in the top four were: Tyler Moore (5/6, 50#), George "Brutus" Scheffel (7/8, 70#), Daniel Sisler (7/8, 70#), Geoff Tressler (13/15, 130#), Ryan Gregory (13/15, 140#), Tyler Gregory (5/6, 40#), Lex Ozias (7/8, 45#), and Justin Ratliff (11/12, 70#). Also competing on Saturday were Ryan Ratliff, Mitchell Tasker, Dustin Flynn, P.J. Beckman, Chris Heckner, David Ratliff, Zach McPhail, Maliciah McPhail, and Dave Taylor.

The SMC members will be on the road this Saturday, as they travel to Connellsville, Pa., for another tournament. For complete results or for more information, persons may visit the club's website at www.gcnet.net/SMC.

Rams Hang On To Defeat Huskies, Then Crush Wildcats

A tough win over host Northern and the total destruction of Westmar in Lonaconing this past week upped the Southern High School boys' varsity to 11-3 overall and a still perfect Western Maryland Interscholastic League record to 9-0. The Rams defeated an inspired Northern Husky team last Friday evening, 59-48, and then cruised past Westmar on Tuesday, 86-47.

The final score of the game with Northern was not indicative of the closeness of the contest, as the Huskies, who came into the contest with a 10-5 mark, stayed right with the favored Rams until the final minutes. Coach Mike Friend's squad held a 12-10 lead over the Rams at the end of the first quarter, the Rams were up by the same margin at halftime, 26-24, and also led by just two points after three quarters were completed, 39-37.

The Rams were up by just three, 44-41, midway through the fourth quarter, but they went on a 15-7 streak down the stretch to record the 11-point win. Leading that final burst was Mike Paesani, who scored 13 of those 15 points and finished with a game-high 23.

Mike Pamepinto also had a good performance for the Rams, as he finished with 19 points, pulled six rebounds, and had four steals. Jonathan Price also reached double figures with 10 points, while point guard Nathan DiSimone dished out five assists.

Southern's leading scorer, John Andrews, was limited to just three points by the Northern defense.

Leading the Huskies was center Dustin Long, who recorded 18 points and 11 rebounds. Craig Kamp connected for 15 points.

The Huskies hosted Allegany on Tuesday and lost another close WMIL contest. (See separate story.)

The Southern junior varsity won the preliminary game, 45-28, behind a 10-point effort by Jared Fike. Mike Fletcher led the Northern jayvees with nine points.

Everyone on Coach Tom Bosley's bench played and scored in Tuesday's easy win over Westmar, as the Rams bolted to a 26-10 lead by the end of the first quarter, were up 48-21 by halftime, and held a commanding 65-35 lead after three periods.

Andrews found the mark again for the Rams and finished with a game-high 16 points, while Paesani reached double figures with 14 points and Price and Josh Bosley each chipped in with nine.

The Wildcats, who fell to 4-10 overall and 2-6 in the WMIL, were led by Josh Glass with 15 points and Brian Kuhn with 10 points and 10 rebounds. Jamie Clark was credited with six assists.

The Southern jayvees also had no trouble disposing of their Westmar counterparts, as they rolled to a 51-29 win in the first game. Jamie Bosley scored 16 points to pace the Rams, and Travis Beeman led the Wildcats with 10 points.

The Rams will meet the Northern Huskies again this Friday night in Oakland and play at Beall next Tuesday. Tip-off for the junior varsity games is at 6 p.m. and the varsity games get under way at 7:30.

Huskies Fall To Alco After Nearly Upsetting SHS Rams

A near upset of cross-county rival Southern last Friday evening (see other story) at the Cove seemed to give the Northern High Huskies some extra momentum going into their game Tuesday night at home against a talented Allegany team, but it wasn't quite enough, as the Huskies were edged by the Campers, 63-58, in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League match-up. The defeat dropped the Huskies to 10-6 overall and evened their WMIL mark at 4-4.

The Huskies held a 14-10 advantage at the end of the first quarter, but were outscored in the second period by a 23-14 margin, giving Alco a 33-28 halftime advantage. The Huskies trailed by seven, 47-40, going into the final eight minutes.

Dustin Long, the area's second leading scorer who has eclipsed 1,000 points for his career at Northern, once again led the Huskies in both scoring and rebounding, as he recorded 19 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. Craig Kamp also reached double figures with 11 points.

Rob Stansbury paced the Campers (10-6, 7-3 WMIL) with a game-high 20 points, Ian Iliff scored 13, and Nathan Simpson netted 12. Matching Long's rebounding effort for Allegany was Ryan Howell with 10.

The Northern junior varsity team was hammered in the first game, 57-26, as Tim Reineke led the Allegany jayvees in scoring with 15 points. Tyler Durney scored nine for the Huskies.

Coach Mike Friend and the Huskies will get another shot at the Southern Rams this Friday in Oakland and will travel to Westmar next Tuesday.

Aquatic Center, Midas Winners In Men's League

Teams sponsored by the Aquatic Center and Midas were winners in Mountaintop Unlimited Basketball League games played this past Sunday afternoon.

Led by a 30-point performance by Jared Beckman, the Aquatic Center squelched a fourth-quarter rally attempt by Dawson Trucking to preserve a 66-56 victory. Dawson's trailed by 20, 53-33, at the end of the third quarter and cut the deficit to 10 points in the fourth, primarily via the scoring of Kris Upole. However, Dawson's could get no closer, as the 6-7 Beckman took full advantage of his height and scored easily. Upole hit eight of his team-high 22 points in the fourth quarter.

Midas and 219 Motors matched up for the third time this season, and the contest was just as competitive as the two prior meetings. Midas was ahead by only one, 53-52, at the end of the third quarter, but won the game at the foul line in the fourth stanza, 77-74. Midas made good on 11 of 14 free throw opportunities in the final period, while 219 Motors connected on just three of six.

Jason Brenneman and Oliver Jones combined for 18 points in the fourth quarter alone for Midas, while Joe Refosco and Mike Ruff netted 19 points between them for 219 Motors in the final period. Brenneman led all scorers with 33 points, Greg Inglese finished with 28, and Jones netted 13. Refosco and Ruff scored 23 and 15, respectively, for 219 Motors.

Games set for this Sunday, Feb. 7, will pit the Aquatic Center against 219 Motors in the 3 p.m. game, and Condoerr will challenge Midas in the 4 p.m. encounter.

Frazee, Nugent Shred Nets As Husky Girls Plow Aggies Under

The young Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team gave WMIL opponents a taste of what may be coming next year as Heidi Frazee and Heather Nugent, both juniors, hit for 22 and 21 points, respectively, in the Huskies' 64-27 pounding of Flintstone last night. With no seniors on the squad, NHS's future looks bright as the team continues to accumulate experience during its current season.

The Huskies and Aggies were locked in a 10-10 tie on the Flintstone court after one quarter of play before Northern's offense took off to run out to a 26-15 halftime lead. NHS held its lead throughout the second half through a 43-21 third quarter lead on the way to the 37-point win.

Northern junior Mimi Harvey scored 11 points from her guard position and nabbed 6 steals, while freshman forward Bridget Frazee pulled down 12 rebounds. Flintstone's Lacey McCusker led the Aggies with 9 points.

The Huskies' junior varsity fell to the Aggies by a 36-30 score. Northern's Nikki Sisler led all scorers with 15 points, while Jill Atkinson scored 11 points for the hosts.

With a 7-9 record, the Huskies will host a pair of WMIL opponents this coming week, Beall on Monday and Mt. Savage on Wednesday. The varsity contests begin at 7:30 p.m., following the 6 p.m. junior varsity tip-offs.

The Southern Rams girls' varsity squad, which didn't take to the floor this week, resumes action tonight at Fort Hill, then returns home Tuesday to host Allegany. Junior varsity tip-off times are 7:30 p.m., followed by varsity tip-offs at 7:30 p.m.

Lakers Crush Germantown, Lose To Lions At Buzzer

After recording a huge victory over Cecil Community College, the nation's third ranked Division II team, the Garrett Community College Lakers took that momentum to Germantown on Saturday where they crushed Montgomery-Germantown, 82-47, in a Maryland JUCO contest, but their drive was not quite enough last night to upset the nation's 13th ranked Division II team, Dundalk, as the Lakers were nipped at the buzzer, 78-76, on a controversial last-second shot by E.T. Jackson. The split left the Lakers with an overall record of 13-8 and a 6-7 mark in the JUCO standings.

Michael Fields led five Lakers in scoring against Montgomery-Germantown, as he recorded 19 points, and also had six assists and five steals. Thomas Somerville and Warren Coates each scored 15 points, Charles Somerville scored 11 and grabbed a game-high nine rebounds, and Dexter Levi netted 10 points. Lionell Sewell, finally back in the line-up after sustaining a shoulder injury and a concussion, dished out six assists and had seven points.

The Lakers wasted no time taking control of the contest, as they scored the first 12 points and held a comfortable 38-19 advantage at halftime.

None of the Germantown players reached double figures in scoring. Daniel Curtis led the team with eight points and three of his teammates each netted seven.

"The only downside to the game for us is that we had 22 turnovers against little pressure," stated Coach Dennis Gibson, who added that the Laker lineup was missing two of its starters because of illness and a death in a family. He lauded the efforts of Warren Coates.

"Warren came off the bench and had his best game of the season," Gibson said. "His three three-pointers in the first half really helped us get a big lead early."

The first time the Lakers met the Dundalk Lions (20-4, 11-3 JUCO) this season, they dropped an 81-80 heartbreaker in McHenry, and they just missed again last night, this time on the Lions' floor.

Jackson, who ripped the nets for 35 points, put up a shot that Coach Gibson believed was taken after the final buzzer sounded, but that the referees, after a brief meeting, decided was good, giving the Lions their two-point win.

After being behind by eight, 38-30, at halftime, the Lakers chipped away at the Dundalk lead and knotted the score at 52-52 with 11 minutes remaining, but the Lions responded with an offensive surge and assumed a 14-point lead with about 6½ minutes left.

Again the Lakers battled back and, with 3:22 remaining, Warren Coates completed a four-point play when he hit a three-pointer, was fouled in the process, and made good on his free throw to bring the Lakers within two points, 74-72.

Fields then stole the ball and fed Levi, who hit a short jumper to tie the score at 74-74. The Lakers then took a two-point lead off another steal when Fields missed a shot, was fouled in going for the rebound, and hit both ends of his one-and-one.

Jackson then tied it again at 76-76 when he hit a fall-away jumper just when the shot clock was about to expire. The Lions then pulled off a steal of their own with 44 seconds remaining, which set them up for Jackson's final winning shot, taken from just inside the three-point arc.

Fields paced the Lakers' scoring with 19 points, and also dished out five assists. Levi and Benitez Jackson each scored 15 points, while Thomas Somerville recorded 10 and Charles Somerville grabbed 10 rebounds.

Jackson and Will Chase were the only Dundalk players to reach double figures in scoring, as Chase finished with 19 points. Shavery Garrison had a game-high 12 rebounds.

"This was a really tough loss for us," Coach Gibson said, "but we had a great comeback against an excellent team, on their floor. We set ourselves up to win the game, but couldn't quite get it done."

The Lakers will host Montgomery-Rockville this Saturday, with the tipoff slated for 7 p.m. Then they will travel to Keyser, W.Va., on Monday to challenge Potomac State College, and will be back home next Wednesday for a contest with Essex CC. Their final regular season game will be played a week from this Saturday against Charles County CC.

Laker Women Crush Essex In Home JUCO Battle, 93-49

A well-balanced scoring attack helped the women's basketball team of Garrett Community College dominate Essex Community College in McHenry, 93-49. Six Lakers hit for double-digits, with Chrissy Lambert's 14 points leading Garrett's production. GCC now holds an 11-6 overall record and an 8-5 JUCO mark.

Garrett took control of the Saturday afternoon match-up early, mounting a 39-24 halftime advantage and scoring 54 points in the second half on the way to the 44-point victory. The visitors managed to tie the score only three times, and there were only two lead changes throughout the contest, which marked the Lakers' highest scoring tally in a year of strong offensive output. It was the fifth time this season that the Lakers have lit up the scoreboard for 80 or more points.

Lambert was aided by Mindy Sypolt's 12 points, Tasha Blackmon's 11 points, and 10 points apiece from Anna Shelton, Susanne Albright, and Melissa Yutzy. April Sisler pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds, while Albright dished out 6 assists and Shelton took 6 steals away from Essex ballhandlers.

Essex was led by game-high scorers Petra Anderson and Melissa Drobnick, who each put 19 points on the scoreboard. Anderson also had a game-high 15 rebounds and accounted for 3 steals.

Recording point victories were Jeremy Lear (130), Andrew Grant (135), Keith Bennett (140), Nick Dolan (152), and Jeremy Hayhurst (160).

Still undefeated for the Rams are Rexrode (24-0) and Dolan (22-0), while John Hayhurst has lost only two bouts in 22 matches. Among Dolan's victims last week was North Hagerstown's Seth Stalley, who was last year's Maryland state champion in the 140-pound division. Dolan dominated him on points, 10-0, in the tri-match at Martinsburg.

Winning on pins for the Mountaineers were Chad Albright (103), Jason Thomas (112), and Brian Crowe (119).

Rams garnering pins against Meyersdale were Sines, Jeremy Hayhurst, John Hayhurst, and Rob Unger, while Adam Murray (103), Justin Gregory (112), Rexrode, and Dolan were awarded wins via forfeits.

Cliff Sleasman (140) got the only pin for Meyersdale.

See other story for details on the loss to Northern.

Coach Kurt Lear's Rams are slated to host Westmar this evening in their final dual meet, set to get under way at 7:30. They will then be off until Feb. 20 when they will compete in the Bi-County Tournament.

INFO SOUGHT ON RARE BASEBALL CARDS - Pictured above is a baseball card portraying Lonaconing native Robert Moses "Lefty" Grove, one of a set of 54 baseball cards produced in 1931 by an unknown manufacturer. Bill Spigler, who bought an original set of the rare cards after they had been discovered in a house being torn down in Franklin County, Pa., is offering a $100 reward and a reprint set of the cards for information leading to the identification of their manufacturer. Spigler may be reached at 19 Myrtle Avenue, Waynesboro, PA 17268, or by calling him at 717-762-2701. Lefty Grove happened to be in the midst of perhaps the greatest season a pitcher has ever completed the same year this set was published, as the fireballing southpaw went 31-4 in leading the Philadelphia Athletics to their third consecutive World Series title.

Things You Can Do If You Get The Flu

In most parts of the US we are well into the "flu season." Influenza (flu) is a viral infection that typically spreads from one person to another from the spray produced through coughing or sneezing. The virus enters the body through the mouth and nose and usually produces symptoms in two to four days. Flu symptoms may include chills, sore throat, muscle pains, and fever as high as 104 degrees F.

Vaccination with the influenza virus vaccine is considered the best protection against the flu (it takes about two weeks for the vaccine to provide protection). If you do get the flu there are a few things you can do to ease symptoms. Most physicians advise the person affected to stay at home, get plenty of rest, and try not to sneeze on others. Most experts recommend drinking as much fluid (water, juices, and soup) as possible. If the flu is caught in the early stages (first 48 hours) one of two prescription antiviral medicines may be helpful in reducing the symptoms of influenza A (the most common flu strain type). Consult with your doctor about these medicines and a test that can be used to check for the presence of the type A virus.

Southern's Jim Bosley Voted District I Coach Of The Year

By a vote of high school baseball coaches throughout District I of Maryland, Southern High School's Jim Bosley, the most successful active coach in the region, was recently named the Region I Class A Baseball Coach of the Year.

Bosley completed his 19th year at the helm of the Rams last spring, during which time his teams have amassed an overall won-loss record of 261-94, for a 74% winning average. The Rams have won the Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship the past three years, which are the only three years Southern has been a member of the WMIL. His teams have also won five Cumberland Times-News area championships and have represented Region I in the state playoffs four times. The Rams finished as the state Class A runners-up in both 1996 and 1998.

Coach Bosley, who also coaches football and basketball, is a teacher at Southern Middle School. His award will be formally presented to him at the Maryland State Association of Baseball Coaches' annual banquet, which will be held this Friday, Feb. 12, in the banquet room of the Warehouse at Oriole Park, Camden Yards, Baltimore.

Bosley is married to the former Mary Lynn Gibson, who is a teacher at Dennett Road Elementary School. They are the parents of two sons, Jamie and Cory. The family resides in the Southern Pines area of Mtn. Lake Park.

Feed The Hungry Program Draws Deer Donations

Farmers and Hunters Feed the Hungry, a statewide food program that solicits venison donations from Maryland hunters, has seen a marked increase in donations of deer meat over the past year, according to Rev. Eugene Friend of Mtn. Lake Park, coordinator of the program for Garrett and Allegany counties.

Donated deer meat is processed and distributed to food banks, food pantries, churches, the American Red Cross, the Salvation Army, and other charitable organizations, which give the meat to needy families at no charge. To date there have been approximately 20 tons of deer meat donated to the program from across Maryland, up from 2 tons of donations last year. Frederick County has accounted for the most donations, in part because it had the highest deer kill in the state, while Garrett and Allegany counties rank the lowest with only about two dozen deer donated so far.

"As a hunter, I can say [that] there is a lot of deer [meat] going to waste that someone can use," said Friend, adding that deer taken by area hunters during the current Maryland archery season and by local farmers with crop damage permits may still be donated to the program. It costs hunters nothing to participate, as "each deer that is given to a butcher shop costs about $35 to process, and [the cost] is billed to Harvest for the Hungry.

Area butcher shops that participate in the Farmers and Hunters Feed the Hungry program are Buckel's Meats, Grantsville; The Butcher Block, Mtn. Lake Park; Country Pride Meats, Friendsville; B&B Country Meats, Frostburg; and Emerick's Meats, near Hyndman, Pa.

The Mt. Top Food Pantry on Old Crellin Road has received and distributed the most meat locally through the program, approximately seven deer's worth, according to Carolyn and John Hauser, Mt. Top's operators.

Farmers and Hunters Feed the Hungry was founded over a year ago by Rev. Rick Wilson of Christ Evangelical Church in Hagerstown, where the program continues to operate out of his home. With projections of at least 5,000 donations this year, Wilson estimates that it will cost the program about $175,000 to process and distribute donated meat in 1999.

"So far we are in the black and money is coming in very good. I'm sure God will supply our needs and keep this program going," Wilson said, adding that monetary donations are always welcome.

For further information on Farmers and Hunters Feed the Hungry, or to make a monetary donation, interested persons may write to Rev. Eugene Friend at 113 East Second Ave., Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550 or call 301-334-9618. The program also has a web page at <www.hfth.org>.

DNR Extends Bear Stamps Sales Contest

In response to successful sales last December, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has extended the entry deadline for the annual Black Bear Conservation Stamp sales contest until February 15. DNR will randomly select two winners to accompany DNR wildlife biologists on a bear-tagging excursion in Garrett County this spring. Biologists will examine previously tagged hibernating bears, as well as tag cubs for future observation.

Each person who purchases a $5 stamp, $20 Lucite block with a stamp, or a $25 matted print with a stamp and history of Maryland's black bears is automatically entered in the contest. Stamps and other items may be purchased by calling 1-800-873-3763 (Visa and Mastercard accepted). Stamps also are available at any DNR regional service center, Merkle Wildlife Management Area in Prince George's County, Rocky Gap State Park in Allegany County, and New Germany State Park, Deep Creek Lake State Park, and Herrington Manor State Park in Garrett County.

"Black bears, once nearly gone from Maryland, have made a remarkable comeback, and the healthy, increasing population continues to expand its range in western Maryland," stated a DNR spokesperson. Authorized by the Maryland General Assembly in 1996, the $5 stamp generates funds used to compensate landowners who have experienced agricultural damage caused by black bears.

Individuals may also enter the drawing by submitting their name, address, and telephone number to the DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division, Black Bear Conservation Stamp Promotion, 580 Taylor Avenue, E-1, Annapolis, MD 21401. Entries must be received by February 15. The drawing will occur on February 22 at DNR Headquarters in Annapolis. Winners will be notified. Additional program and purchasing information is available on DNR's website at: www.dnr.state.md.us/giftshop/bearstamp.html.

REACHING OUT to kids with a positive message, former West Virginia University star and pro player Robert Alexander speaks on the negative effects of drugs and alcohol. Through his program N.F.@L. (Not Failing at Life) he confronts tough issues challenging youth.

Former WVU, Pro Gridder Speaks About Drug Abuse

Former National Football League (NFL) player Robert Alexander is off the gridiron and in the classroom pursuing a new career with N.F.@L. — Not Failing at Life — a drug and alcohol prevention program for young adults.

Alexander, a graduate of West Virginia University with a degree in public relations/communications, is working on a master's degree in community health and wellness promotion.

The former ball player was in Garrett County last week sponsored by the Family Preservation Unit of the Department of Social Services. Alexander was addressing a group of middle and high school students at Northern Middle School. His smile and easy manner with the group belied the toughness of the issues he confronted.

It was the second in a three-part program in which the former athlete was direct and unflinching in discussing his own history of drug use. "I had a great family. My mother and father were both there. My father played ball with me. This can happen to anyone in any family," he told the attentive students.

Armed with a paper bag full of candy, Alexander asked questions concerning things he had talked with them about at a session eight days prior. As hands went up or answers were called out, wrapped candies were tossed to speakers. "I thought I'd better do something to keep your attention," he said. But it was apparent that eyes and ears were all on him and as the students answered the questions, it was obvious that they had not only listened the previous week but had been sufficiently impressed to remember what had been said. Alexander seemed to have the right manner to reach his audience with his message.

Among the goals Alexander lists for his program is the development of an awareness of the impact of drugs on life. The students maintained focus on the speaker and the issues through eye contact and frequent verbal interactions.

The N.F.@L. program began in West Virginia, and its growth into other areas is one of Alexander's hopes. "This program could eventually be spread nationwide," he noted.

"N.F.@L. is designed to be an interactive community relations program emphasizing social problems, life coping skills, and building self-esteem," he said. Jay Stewart of the Family Preservation Unit said he found Alexander to be "very effective" in getting and keeping the attention of the students in the program.

Support Mandate

ment compliance alone," Null told members of the rules committee. "I only ask that Congress, in its wisdom, please remember that it is hard enough to be an independent business owner. The laws that you pass and the costs associated with them have a profound effect on our bottom line. I urge this committee to lend its support to ensuring the expeditious adoption of the Mandate Information Act. This legislation would curb a perennial temptation to do good at others' expense. I know I would sleep a little better at night knowing that Congress was thinking seriously about the cost impact of legislation on small business owners."

H.R. 350 directs the Congressional Budget Office to assess the impact of private-sector mandates contained in any bill presented to the floor of the House or Senate. For mandates that exceed $100 million, it allows any member of Congress to force a separate debate and vote specially on whether to impose the mandate on the private sector.

MESHACH BROWNING CLUB DONATES TO TROUT UNLIMITED - The membership of the Meshach Browning Club recently made a donation to the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited. In the spirit of its outdoorsman namesake, the club has pledged its continuing support of Trout Unlimited through club membership. "We'd like to encourage the public to join Trout Unlimited in its efforts to preserve and protect the Casselman River, its wildlife and fisheries, and all other Maryland waterways," a club spokesperson said. Many events are being planned at the Meshach Browning Club, headquartered along River Road in Grantsville, throughout the year, including a kid's fishing day in the spring and a weekend of bluegrass music entertainment this summer. Shown above, Debbie McIntosh, left, presents the donation to Suli McCartney of the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited.

SHE'S ALL THAT

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 1:35

There have been numerous versions of George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion story produced on big and small screens, the most popular of which is probably 1964's My Fair Lady. But the worst, and latest, version of the story is Miramax's She's All That, written by Lee Fleming, directed by Robert Iscove, and starring Freddie Prinze Jr. (I [Still] Know What You Did Last Summer) and Rachael Leigh Cook (Living Out Loud). This one is set in an affluent high school in southern California and populated by many attractive young people who would have trouble acting their way out of a wet paper bag.

Zach Siler (Prinze) is the class president who is dating Taylor (Jodi Lyn O'Keefe, Halloween: H20), the hottest girl in school. The couple seem destined for prom king & queen-dom, until Taylor dumps Zach for Brock (Matthew Lillard, Scream), who is marginally famous from being on the pretentious teen show The Real World. But Zach brags that it doesn't matter; with his charm and clout, he could elevate any girl to the height of popularity --even get her elected prom queen. Seeing this as a challenge, Zach's friend Dean (Paul Thomas, Varsity Blues) bets him he can't do it. So the deal is made: Dean will pick the geekiest, least popular girl in school, and Zach has 6 weeks to establish a relationship with her that will result in her becoming the belle of the ball.

After some speculation involving the few less-than-attractive girls at the school, Dean picks Lainie Boggs (Cook), art student, introvert, and geek extraordinaire. Of course, it is patently obvious the moment we lay eyes on Lainie that she will become a full-fledged hottie the moment she takes her hair down and loses the Buddy Holly glasses and the bib overalls--we've all seen it before on The Brady Bunch. After her transformation, Zach discovers his growing--uh--feelings for her (which, by the way, transform him into a mature, caring human being). Along with this, we follow Taylor's insipid relationship with Brock, and Dean's increasing concern that he'll lose the bet.

The acting in this film is almost as bad as the script--with the possible exception of Lillard, whose openly conceited character, wallowing in self-importance, pokes a jab at the Real World TV show which is famous for such wallowing. When Cook, with tears eye-droppered onto her cheeks, said, "I feel like Julia Roberts in Pretty Woman," I couldn't help thinking, you wish. Prinze's character has no foundation; nothing below the surface layer. Since the rest of the characters are not even intended to be any deeper than the movie screen on which they're projected, I fault director Iscove, who has plenty of experience (but only in TV), as much as writer Fleming, who has no experience anywhere.

There are a few saving graces to this thin piece of celluloid. About halfway through the film, there is a cool rap by three students about Lainie's new position as the most sought-after girl in school. And a spectacular dance number during the prom sequence earns a star all by itself. Dancing to the music and calls from the school DJ (Usher Raymond), the entire student body does a complex, well choreographed Bob-Fosse-meets-Michael-Jackson number that exudes energy unseen since the "hand jive" bit in Grease. Few of the principals are clearly recognizable, of course; this was where the regular cast went on break while the dance pros stepped in.

But the dance stops eventually, and then those darn kids start talking again. Way to ruin the mood. ★★

Walker Named GCMH Employee Of The Month

Jim Walker, pictured above, was selected as the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Employees' Choice Award recipient for January.

Walker works in the housekeeping department and has been employed at the hospital for 11 years. "Jim gets along well with his co-workers, the patients and other employees. He always works when needed. Keeping the hospital clean during the winter months can be a demanding job," commented Thomas Dunbar, director of the housekeeping department.

An avid hunter and angler, Walker is a member of the Deer Park Sportsman Club as well as the Deer Park Community Volunteer Fire Department and the Westernport American Legion. He and his wife Mary Lou reside in Swanton. Walker has two children and three step-children.

Ruth Enlow Library

Martha Makosky, director of the Ruth Enlow Library, reported that she and her board are working toward the automation of the entire local library system. Automation is an all-encompassing process for the library system which will, for one thing, allow citizens a far more comprehensive view of the entire stock of available materials. Garrett County is the only county in the state that is not automated.

When the system is automated, Makosky explained in a later interview, a customer will be able to enter any branch of the library and look up on computer the available materials in every branch of the local system, as well as the materials statewide. They will also be able to search the system on their own home computers.

"A customer finds a book she wants. It's in the Kitzmiller branch and she lives in Friendsville. She simply lets us know her request and we can pick it off the shelf in Kitzmiller and have it delivered by our pony service to Friendsville," Makosky said. She noted that the county is also the only county in Maryland that does not have a five-day-a-week delivery service, and that she is working toward that goal as well.

As for the 28 employees of the county's five-branch system, they currently spend hours every day counting and filing by hand the 500 to 600 circulations for that day. They must write the late notices by hand, and the follow-up notices. When the system is automated, this portion of the process will also be automated.

"This will allow us to focus our energies far more on serving the public," Makosky said.

The director told the commissioners last week that she wants to hire a consultant firm to compare the salaries of the 28 library workers to the rest of the county's employee wages.

"The salaries for these people are currently not only some of the lowest in the state; they are also some of the lowest in Garrett County," she said. "I want to improve that for these people."

Commissioner Chairman Ernest Gregg asked Makosky about the possibilities of linking the school libraries with the Ruth Enlow system, so as to avoid, he said, running parallel operations. She said the Kitzmiller library is already jointly operated for the school and the community, and that more linkages would be worth pursuing. Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County schools, said he was very interested in the idea. Makosky said she would be happy to discuss it.

Parking

At the close of the staff meeting, Gregg asked the county office leaders to address the parking situation around the county courthouse. He said too many employees are parking their vehicles in spots designated for the public.

"As it is right now, members of the public have to walk blocks and blocks to get here to the courthouse to conduct their business. Those of us who work here need to be more considerate," Gregg said.

He asked that the directors convey to their staff members that they should use the parking lots further away from the building and leave the metered spots for citizens.

The first accident, which occurred at 7:10 a.m. on Kings Run Road just south of Broadford Road, when Michael Lee Stalnaker, 19, Kitzmiller, reportedly lost control of his Ford truck when it hit a patch of ice at the crest of a hill. His truck went into an embankment, then slid back across the road, hitting a utility pole and a parked vehicle before rolling onto its side.

Stalnaker was transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial, where he was treated and released. The sheriff's office has charged him with operating a vehicle at a speed greater than reasonable. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the accident scene.

Ben DeWitt Road

Yesterday morning's second accident occurred just an hour later, when at 8 a.m. a GMC Jimmy truck driven by Lisa Kay Arnold, 27, Oakland, went out of control on ice-covered Ben DeWitt Road near Sunny Side Road.

Arnold's vehicle swerved over the centerline, ran into a ditch and overturned. She was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial, where she was treated and released. The Oakland VFD also assisted on the accident scene. No charges were filed.

other GCMH physician. "An echocardiogram is a safe and painless procedure that helps us identify many heart problems."

During an echocardiogram the technician uses a transducer, a small microphone-like device. The transducer is held against the chest and sends sound waves that reflect, or echo, off the different parts of the heart.

Three different techniques are used to complete the procedure: an M-mode echo, which is generally used to measure the size of the heart chambers; the two-dimensional (2-D) echo, which shows the shape and motion of different heart structures; and the Doppler echo, which shows the flow of blood through the heart.

"The echocardiogram has many clinical uses, such as diagnosing congestive heart failure, valvular heart disease, chest pain disorders and heart attacks," Goralski explained. "It provides us with important information about the heart," including the size of the heart chambers and the thickness of the heart muscle; whether the heart is pumping at full strength or is weakened; a portrayal of the shape and motion of the heart, which allows the doctor to determine if a valve is leaking and how badly; and indications of blood clots, abnormal holes between the heart chambers, and the presence of fluid around the heart.

"Studies are identifying more and more uses for echocardiography as a simple, non-invasive test, giving your doctor valuable information to make safer clinical decisions," Johnson commented. "This is another example of how cardiac patients can be cared for at Garrett County Memorial Hospital with state of the art technology."

Goralski and Johnson, both board certified in family practice, are Level II echocardiographers who have been interpreting echocardiograms at Garrett County Memorial Hospital since the service began in 1983. They recently formalized their association with Dr. Morgan Lyons, a Level I echocardiographer and director of echocardiography services at Monongalia General Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va.

In addition to being on staff at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Goralski and Johnson are members of the Garrett Medical Group, located in Oakland's Garrett Medical Building.

BPW Foundation Scholarships Foster Growth Through Learning

MILDRED DUNBAR

ESTHER BENDER

Since its founding in 1956 by members of BPW/USA (Business and Professional Women/USA), the BPW Foundation has awarded over $5 million in educational grants and loans to more than 7,000 women, to enable them to advance their careers. Among those selected in past years to receive this assistance are two successful Garrett County residents: Esther Bender and Mildred Dunbar.

Each of these Garrett County recipients used the funds from BPW to enhance the skills required for increased success in their chosen fields of endeavor.

Mildred Dunbar

Dunbar, an Oakland resident, retired in July 1996 from a 50-year nursing career. She reflected recently on her BPW scholarship, which she received some 28 years ago. "I was working at Garrett Memorial Hospital as the obstetric nursing supervisor at the time. I was asked to take over the job of director of nursing," she remembered.

Dunbar described her immediate mental response to the offer of the new position as: "I can't do that." Though as a nursing supervisor she had varied managerial experiences, she considered the nursing directorship to require knowledge and credentials that exceeded her scope at that time. College courses could supplement her education and experience, she knew. "And I thought that if they had asked me to take the job, they must believe I had the ability," she said.

Dunbar decided that taking the additional classes in management would be useful but difficult. "My husband had had a coronary and was not well. My son was at the University of Maryland and my daughter was in secretarial school in Morgantown," she noted. There were many responsibilities and obstacles, but she went forward with the plan.

Dunbar enrolled in classes at Frostburg State University and began attending twice a week. "I was working full time and taking 12 credits," she remembered. She kept up that pace for about 1½ years and completed her course of studies.

While she was in the program of study, she learned about the BPW scholarship and applied. The money was awarded to her. "It came directly to me, so I could use it for any school expenses that I needed it for — books, tuition, anything," she said.

Dunabar completed all requirements and earned her certificate in management. Getting the additional education made a difference to her, she said. Not only did it give her the additional skills to handle the broad range of management responsibilities she faced, but it also provided credentials for those abilities.

After serving as director of nursing for 10 years, Dunbar retired from Garrett Memorial Hospital and took a directing position at Hopemont State Hospital, Hopemont, W.Va.

Esther Bender

Bender, who has published six books for children and youth and numerous articles for periodicals, credits her return to campus as a college student for much of the impetus for her writing. "My teachers had a lot to do with my writing career," she noted.

College for Bender came at a time when she was married and raising two children. It was 1968 and she was working for Head Start. Ruth Ryan, a Garrett County teacher, suggested that Bender apply for a scholarship through BPW and go back to college. She submitted the application. "When I got the notice that I had been given the scholarship there were some hard decisions to make," she reflected. It would not be easy, she knew, going to school full time and raising a family.

Once back on campus attending classes with students much her junior, Bender said she went through a period of self-evaluation. "My self-concept was changing. It was a little unsettling at times," she remembered. But as she continued her education, she became more focused on the direction she was heading as a major in elementary education. "I liked working with little children; I enjoyed their picture books," she said.

Bender not only completed her bachelor's degree, but went on to earn a master's degree and pursued a teaching career in Garrett County schools.

Though she loved teaching, Bender recalled that she had also always enjoyed writing. In addition to working in the classroom she was writing magazine articles and newspaper pieces. In 1994 Katie and the Lemon Tree, a full-length book for young teens, was published. This first book of Bender's prompted a request for her to write study guides for Johns Hopkins University.

Writing became increasingly important to Bender, who has Parkinson's disease. "I didn't know I had Parkinson's disease until I was in my third year of teaching," she noted. As the disease progressed, Bender saw that her writing career provided her a viable alternative to teaching, should she find its demands too severe.

With six books for young people now to her credit, Bender will soon publish her first book for adults, A Cry From the Clay!

Employment Skills Training Class Scheduled

Employment Skills Training (EST) is a program at Garrett Community College which provides students with basic knowledge as well as the skills that employers are consistently looking for in an employee. EST is a 630-hour class offered through the Continuing Education and Training Division at GCC.

This non-traditional program emphasizes work readiness skills, combined with intensive classroom training. Students spend 255 hours in core classes, which include: math, language, basic computer skills, interpersonal and communication skills, customer service, fitness, and problem-solving skills. Prior to enrolling, students choose one of three specialties: Office Skills, Small Business Management, or Certified Nursing Assistant. Students spend 115 hours learning their specialty inside and out through instruction and hands-on learning.

Five weeks into the program, the students begin the internship portion of the program. This involves the selection of a worksite and a commitment to work a minimum of 260 hours. While it is understood that these positions are unpaid, it is not uncommon for a student to be offered a paid position by the employer prior to the end of the program, according to a GCC spokesperson.

The ultimate goal of the program is to provide each student with the tools that he/she needs to successfully enter the workforce. EST program director Julie Yoder, said, "We encourage the students to view the program as their job for the nineteen weeks that we have them. We hold our participants responsible for arriving to class on time, notifying us of their absences, completing time sheets, and following through with their classroom and worksite assignments. Our belief is that by holding them accountable for their actions throughout the program, we are preparing them for the reality they will face in the workplace."

The placement rate for these students has been successful due in large part, to the internship opportunities. These placements allow the students to "get their feet wet" and gradually prepare to become productive employees, Yoder explained. They are able to return to the classroom each week to share their experiences and discuss how they dealt with the workplace situations they encountered. Internships also allow the employer to get a "free look" at the student and how well he/she fits into the organization. Numerous students have been offered positions as a result of the internships, Yoder said.

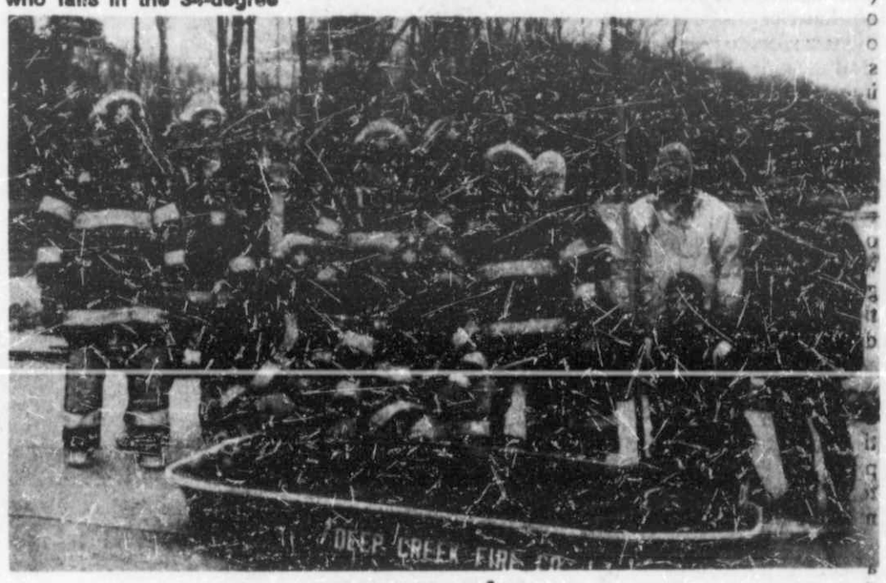
Those currently enrolled in the program, which began in October, will finish at the end of February. When asked about the EST program, Office Skills student Ed Sines said, "The program is great. It was very challenging to get back into school after all those years, but with nice people to work with, it was easy."

Sines was placed at Garrett County Memorial Hospital in the Medical Records Department. His supervisor, Betty Welch, views the program with similar enthusiasm. "Our experience with GCC students has been outstanding and beneficial. We are able to provide an educational background and practical techniques, which cultivate the students for employment or in their pursuit of a professional occupation in the multi-faceted medical field. We look forward to continuing our partnership with GCC in providing internships," Welch said.

The next EST class is set to begin March 1. Individuals who are interested in learning more about the program may call 301-387-3101.

Financial assistance is available to those who qualify. Persons should call to learn more about the variety of funding options available.

ICE RESCUE is among the skills needed by fire departments that happen to be located at or near a large body of water, such as Deep Creek Lake, and have sustained winter temperatures below 32 degrees Fahrenheit. Thus, the members of the Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company make sure they are competent in these dangerous procedures, as the potential is great for such accidents in the lake. In the photo above, Deep Creek VFC lieutenant Ed Roszel plays the role of the victim who falls in the 34-degree water, and Lt. Brent Graber is the rescuer. Members who completed the training in the photo below include, from left, kneeling: Jason King, John Ackerman, and Robert Sines. Standing, from left, are: Randy Lacy, Stacy Niner, Brian Chaney, Andy Teter, Darla Friend, Steve Bittinger, Jennifer Savage, Deputy Chief Rodeheaver, and Lt. Roszel. Others who took the training, but are not in the photo, are Capt. W. Taylor and Lt. Graber.



GCC To Hold Info Sessions At High Schools

Two information sessions for parents of high school students about Garrett Community College's new Honors Program and other educational opportunities have been scheduled in early February. The session at Southern High School will be during Parent Conference Night this evening, Feb. 4, from 5:30 to 8:30 in the Distance Learning Lab. The session at Northern High School will be next Thursday, Feb. 11, from 5:30 to 8 p.m. in Room 118.

Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic affairs, and Virginia Broaddus, assistant professor of English, will give information to parents of high school students and answer questions about the Honors Program set to begin this fall, dual enrollment courses, the transfer guarantee to Maryland colleges, tuition reduction available at West Virginia University, and other pertinent features about GCC's academic programs.

According to Joan B. Crawford, director of enrollment development, the sessions have been planned to make parents aware of the financial and academic advantages for a student starting at GCC. "A Garrett County resident living at home can save thousands of dollars in the first two years of a college education," Crawford said. "Those who receive an AA degree from Garrett and transfer to WVU in designated programs can save over $6,000 in one year."

Students who enroll in GCC courses while they are still in high school receive a 50% tuition reduction.

In Loving Memory Of Allan B. Lemley
2/7/98

Now that a year has passed since
I've lost you,
I think of you every minute in silence.
But what it has meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
You never said goodbye.
You were gone before I knew it.
To some you may be forgotten,
To others a part of the past,
But for me who loved you dearly,
My memory of you will always last.
You were someone special.
I'll be loving you and
Cherishing you all the rest of my days.
My partner, friend, my husband, and my Wind Beneath My Wings!

Your loving Wife,
Jeanne

Farmer Returning To "Mountaintop 1999" Conference

"Mountaintop 1999" will once again headline award-winning vocalist and pianist Richard Allen Farmer, who will perform in concert at "A Festival in Celebration of God's Love." He will also lead in the musical worship during this 13th annual getaway conference for men and women, to be held March 5-7 at Lakeview Scanticon Resort in Morgantown, W.Va.

This former pastor and dean of the chapel at Massachusetts' Gordon College now resides in Dallas. He is in full-time ministry as a Bible expositor and concert artist. As he travels extensively, Rev. Farmer's aim is to make the Scripture and Christian music "come alive" for congregations and audiences throughout the world. Farmer has ministered on every continent but Antarctica. Several recordings of his music have been produced and he has written a hands-on approach book on creativity titled It Won't Fly If You Don't Try.

"Richard Allen Farmer has been part of 'Mountaintop' since its inception in 1987 and is always a highlight of the weekend. Not only is he a gifted musician, but he has a delightful sense of humor and is an inspirational communicator. His concert is truly a celebration!" said Garrett County native Anne Robinson, co-founder of Living for Christ Conferences, the non-profit sponsor along with Pittsburgh's WORD-FM.

The featured speaker for this conference is Dr. Bryan Chapell, highly sought-after speaker, award-winning author, and president of Covenant Theological Seminary in St. Louis. He will be speaking at five sessions during the weekend on the topic "Grace Made Real for Hearts Not Whole."

"'Mountaintop' is one of only a handful of similar events in the country, in that it is nondenominational and for men and women of all ages," said Robinson. "Our goal is to provide an atmosphere apart from worldly pressures and demands where folks can be challenged to grow spiritually." It has been called by attendees "the spiritual highlight of my year" and "life-changing." Former "Mountaintop" speaker and best-selling author Patrick Morley described it as "one of the top conferences in the country and in attention to detail, by far the best."

Conference rates, including all programs, four meals, and two nights' lodging, begin at $157 per person (four to a room). For more information or to register, Living for Christ Conferences may be contacted at 304-455-5322 or visited on their website at living4christ.com.

The cost is $2,299, plus an extra $250 fee for the 48-hour stopover in Iceland. Reservation forms must be accompanied by a deposit check of $200 made payable to St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

Reminder Of Dog Ordinance Issued In Friendsville

In response to several recent incidents in Friendsville involving dogs which were not properly restrained, the mayor and council remind all residents that the Garrett County Dog Ordinance, which requires such restraints, is enforced within the town limits.

The town clerk referred to Section D of the Dog Ordinance. "It shall be unlawful for the owner of any dog to allow such animal to be at large in Garrett County, meaning to be off the premises or property of the owner, unless under restraint, except dogs accompanied by the owner or trainer and being used or trained for hunting, being followed by person on foot, horseback, or in vehicles," she stated.

Section J of the ordinance describes actions to be taken in the case of a violation of Section D, the clerk said. "Any person violating any provision of the ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof before the District Court of Garret County shall be fined a sum of not less that $50 nor more than $200," she quoted.

The mayor and council asked that all citizens cooperate with the ordinance to ensure safety in the community.

National School Counselors Week Is Now Under Way

Editor's note: National School Counselors Week has been proclaimed for this week, and in observance of that proclamation, we provide the following biographical sketches of the men and women who serve in this all-important role in Garrett County's schools.

Keith Cain is a guidance counselor at Southern Garrett High School. He resides in Cumberland and is engaged to Jennifer Lehman, a third grade teacher at George's Creek Elementary School. Keith earned a bachelor of science degree in accounting from Frostburg State University in 1989 and earned a master's of education in guidance and counseling from FSU in 1998.

Cain noted he went into counseling because, "I have an interest in assisting students in developing both academically and personally to their maximum potential and to help them make better and more responsible decisions." Cain is a member of the Garrett County Counselors Association and the Mtn. Top College/Career Expo Committee. He also serves as assistant varsity base coach at Southern. His hobbies include weightlifting and golf.

Mary Douds is a Northern Garrett High School guidance counselor. She is married to Don Douds, the driver's education teacher at Northern. She holds a bachelor of science degree from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and a master's of education degree from FSU.

Douds stated, "I have always enjoyed working with young people, and helping them to grow, to learn how to problem solve, and to make responsible decisions. I particularly enjoy working one-on-one with juniors and seniors in the post secondary education/training application process."

Douds is a member of the Garrett County Counselors Association and the Mtn. Top College/Career Expo Committee. She also serves on the Northern School Improvement Team. Her hobbies include running and cooking.

Katy Fresh is a new guidance counselor in Garrett County, serving elementary students in Accident, Friendsville, and Grantsville. She currently lives in Frostburg with her husband Chris. She and her husband are expecting their first child in August.

Fresh earned a bachelor of science degree in psychology at FSU in 1991. In 1997, she was awarded her master's of education in guidance and counseling at FSU.

Fresh noted the reason she wanted to be a school counselor was, "I think that in order to make a difference, we need to start with the kids. Our children today are faced with a wide variety of problems that many of us never encountered as children. I love working with children."

Fresh is a member of the Garrett County Counselors Association. Her hobbies include fishing, camping, shopping, and reading. She also is a volunteer for the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program.

Cynthia Glass is a counselor at Southern Garrett High School. A resident of Allegany County, she said she lives with "her family of pets."

Glass holds an associate of arts degree in human services, a bachelor of science degree in early childhood education, and a master of education degree in guidance and counseling.

The reason, Glass explained, she went into counseling was, "I had a positive educational role model; my mother is a retired educator. Therefore, I have always valued the educational process and have been committed to be a part of that process to assist students."

Glass is a member of Garrett County Counselors Association and the American School Counselors Association. "When not working, I enjoy quality time with my best friend and my pets," she said. Her hobbies include volleyball, tennis, swimming, and golf.

Joanny Martin is a counselor at Northern Garrett High School. She and her husband of 20 years, Tom, reside in West Virginia. Her son Jeff is a freshman at West Virginia University, majoring in landscape architecture.

Martin, a graduate of Southern High School, holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland and a master's of education in guidance and counseling from FSU.

Martin explained why she went into counseling by saying, "As a home economics teacher at NHS, I realized I was working with many students on personal concerns. I wanted to be sure I was giving the students correct help. I decided to get my master's in guidance and counseling in hopes of being more effective. I believe I made a wise choice."

Martin is chairperson of Troop 29 Boy Scouts of America executive committee, chairperson of the Mineral County WVU Parents Club, an interviewer for Make-A-Wish Foundation, and co-chair of the NHS Maryland Student Assistance Program. She is also a member of the Garrett County Counselors Association and Mtn. Top College/Career Committee. Her hobbies include crafts and making jewelry. She and her family are involved with the Cumberland Raceway and are NASCAR fans.

Randy Paugh is a guidance counselor at Southern Middle School. A resident of Oakland, Paugh earned a bachelor's degree and a master of education degree from West Virginia University. While earning his undergraduate degree, he participated in the Air Force ROTC program and upon graduation was commissioned as a second lieutenant. He served five years as a missile launch officer.

"My primary goal," said Paugh, "is to teach other people how to become successful. It is important to dream and then write down your goals to achieve your dreams."

Paugh is an independent associate with Pre-paid Legal Services, and is a member of the American Federation of Teachers, the National Rifle Association, and Theta Xi National Fraternity. His hobbies include hunting, fishing, travel, white-water rafting, swimming, and skiing.

Jack Settle is a counselor at Northern Middle School. He and his wife of 26 years, Sharon, reside near Accident. The couple has a daughter, Jamie, who is a sophomore at FSU and a son, Matthew, who is a senior at NHS.

Settle earned a bachelor's degree from Glenville State College in physical education and social studies. He obtained a master's of education in guidance and counseling from West Virginia College of Graduate Studies.

When asked to explain why he became a counselor, he stated," I enjoy working with and helping students to develop socially and academically."

Settle is a member of the Garrett County Counselor's Association. His hobbies include reading and golf.

Beverly Sincell is a counselor at Southern Garrett High School. She and her husband Ben live outside Oakland. The couple has three children: Daniel, a freshman at Virginia Tech; Angela, a junior at SHS; and Miriam, a freshman at SHS.

Sincell earned her bachelor of science degree at West Virginia Wesleyan College. She has a master of social work degree from WVU and a master's of education in guidance and counseling from FSU.

Sinceli gives her reason for entering counseling as, "I have always cared about people. I hope in my lifetime I can convince one or two young people that they have value. If I do that and one of them makes healthier choices because of an improved sense of self-worth, well, I think that would be a positive contribution."

Sincell is a licensed clinical social worker. She is a member of the Maryland Association of Counseling and Development, the Garrett County Counselors Association, Garrett Choral Society, and Bethel United Methodist Church. Her hobbies include reading, sewing, cooking, and music.

Bonnie Swyter is an elementary guidance counselor serving students at Broad Ford, Crellin, and Kitzmiller schools. The mother of two adult children resides near Oakland.

Swyter earned an associate of arts degree at Garrett Community College, and a bachelor of science and a master's of education in guidance and counseling at FSU.

Explaining her reasons for becoming a counselor, Swyter commented, "I began my education career working in both high schools as the career employability teacher. My interest in career education led to furthering my education to become a school counselor. I enjoy helping students and parents solve problems."

Swyter is a member of the Maryland School Counselors Association, the Maryland Association of Counseling and Development, and the Garrett County Counselors Association. She also is a member of the Pleasant View Baptist Church. She serves on the board of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program. Her hobbies include cross country skiing, biking, traveling, and collecting Beanie Babies.

Tim Watson serves elementary children as a counselor at Dennett Road and Yough Glades schools. He and his wife of seven years, Lu Ann, have a three-year-old daughter, Tess.

Watson holds a bachelor of science degree in psychology from Fairmont State College and a master's of education in guidance and counseling from West Virginia University.

"I enjoy helping students learn how to solve their problems," was Watson's explanation for why he became a counselor.

Watson is a National Certified Counselor. He is a member of the Garrett County Counselors Association, the Maryland Association for Counseling and Development, the Oakland-Mountain Lake Park Lions Club, and the board of directors of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters program. His hobbies include golf and weightlifting.

Trish Yoder is the family support worker, serving at-risk elementary students and their families throughout the county. She is married and has two school-age boys.

Yoder has a bachelor of science degree and a master's degree in counseling psychology from FSU.

"I went into this field," Yoder explained, "because I enjoyed working with people, especially families and children."

Yoder is a National Certified Counselor and is a member of the International Who's Who Among Professional Management. Her hobbies include interior design and antiques.

A REGAL POSE - Dignified but friendly, this dog was found along Underwood Road recently and the Garrett County Humane Society is hoping it can soon find a happy home. The black female Lab mix appears to be about 12 weeks old, and will be provided with free vaccinations and be spayed at no charge when she reaches 6 months of age if adopted. Miss Roberson, Mr. Boal Wed In July Double-Ring Ceremony

Crystal Suzette Roberson and Brian Robert Boal were united in marriage July 25, 1998.

The double-ring ceremony took place at the Aurora United Methodist Church, with Pastor Joseph Robinette officiating. Organ and piano music were provided by Debra Miller, Eldersburg, cousin of the groom, and Martha Ann Miller, Lonaconing, aunt of the groom. Vocalists were Ethel Rae Snyder, Oakland, friend of the couple, and Elizabeth Wotring, Aurora, W.Va., cousin of the bride. The special reading was given by Jason Shank, Oakland, friend of the groom. The mothers of the bride and groom opened the ceremony with the lighting of the unity candle.

The bride is the daughter of Sue Roberson of Aurora and the late Richard Roberson. The groom is the son of Leanna and Robert Boal of Oakland.

Given in marriage by her mother and her uncle, Jeff Roberson, Aurora, and escorted to the altar by her uncle, the bride wore a sleeveless tank-style white silk chiffon gown with Venice lace and pearl drops on the bodice. The back of the gown was adorned with a dropped chiffon cowl back falling into a cathedral train. The bride's hairpiece was accented with Venice lace and adorned with pearl drops. She wore elbow-length gloves trimmed in Venice lace with pearl drops. The bride carried a tight bouquet of pastel colored roses tied with a satin ribbon trimmed with pearl drops. All flowers were provided and arranged by Jane Simms, Oakland.

Serving as her sister's maid of honor was Melanie Roberson, Aurora. Bridesmaids were Elizabeth Wotring and Rebecca Wotring, Aurora, cousins of the bride, and Aimee Stechly, Wheeling, W.Va., and Billie Kitzmiller, Morgantown, W.Va., friends of the bride. Laura Roberson, Aurora, cousin of the bride, served as a junior bridesmaid. The attendants wore champagne silk chiffon floor-length gowns, which were adorned with dropped chiffon cowl backs matching the bride's dress. Complementing their gowns were elbow-length champagne gloves. They carried bouquets of pastel roses tied with champagne satin ribbon.

Serving as his brother's best man was Bradley Boal, Oakland. Groomsmen were Scott Rohrbaugh, Baltimore, Kevin Wheeler, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Scott Perhala, Annandale, Va., all friends of the groom, and David Kurtz, Baltimore, cousin of the groom. Ushers were Keith Aragona, Raleigh, N.C., and Leon Young, Naples, Fla., both friends of the groom. Serving as greeters were Jennifer Rohrbaugh, Baltimore, and Sara and Scott Weise, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Evergreene Room of the Alpine Lake Resort Restaurant.

Following the wedding the couple traveled to Jamaica for a honeymoon trip. They currently reside in Charlotte, N.C., where Crystal is employed as an associate buyer for Belk Store Services Inc., and Brian is employed as a corporate tax senior associate with Price Waterhouse Coopers, LLP.

The wedding reception was held at the Will O' the Wisp at Deep Creek Lake, where a dinner was catered by Martin Heise and his staff. The four-tier wedding cake, made by Thelma DeWitt of Cranesville, was decorated with fresh roses. Entertainment for the evening was provided by vocalist Bobby Nicholas of Morgantown.

Grantsville PTA Fund-Raiser Set

The Grantsville Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association has scheduled an Easter candy sale fund-raising event to run from February 11 to March 4. Proceeds from the sale will be used to reduce the remaining outstanding balance for the newly installed playground.

According to the policy of the Garrett County Board of Education, children are not allowed to go door-to-door to sell on behalf of the school. Parents are therefore encouraged to help their children arrange sales to co-workers, relatives, and neighbors.

Candy orders must be turned in by March 4 to ensure that candy arrives prior to Easter. All orders must be paid in full in advance.

This spring fund-raiser is be held in coordination with Lutheran Brotherhood Branch 8483 of Western Maryland/West Virginia. Through the challenge fund, proceeds of up to $1,000 will be matched dollar for dollar.

Each child who participates will receive a candy bar and a chance at one of two $50 U.S. savings bonds. The class with the highest sales will receive a pizza party.

"FAITH" IS AN EXTRA INGREDIENT

As we fill each prescription, we know that in addition to the ingredients that your physician specifies, there is an extra intangible ingredient that does not appear in writing. It is "Faith" that through his knowledge and experience he has prescribed a medicine that will help to cure or relieve an illness.

Sometimes, this "Faith" can be as important as the medicine itself. We too have a great deal of faith in the accuracy to the prescriptions we dispense and we derive much satisfaction when you tell us on a future visit that someone in your family is now well.

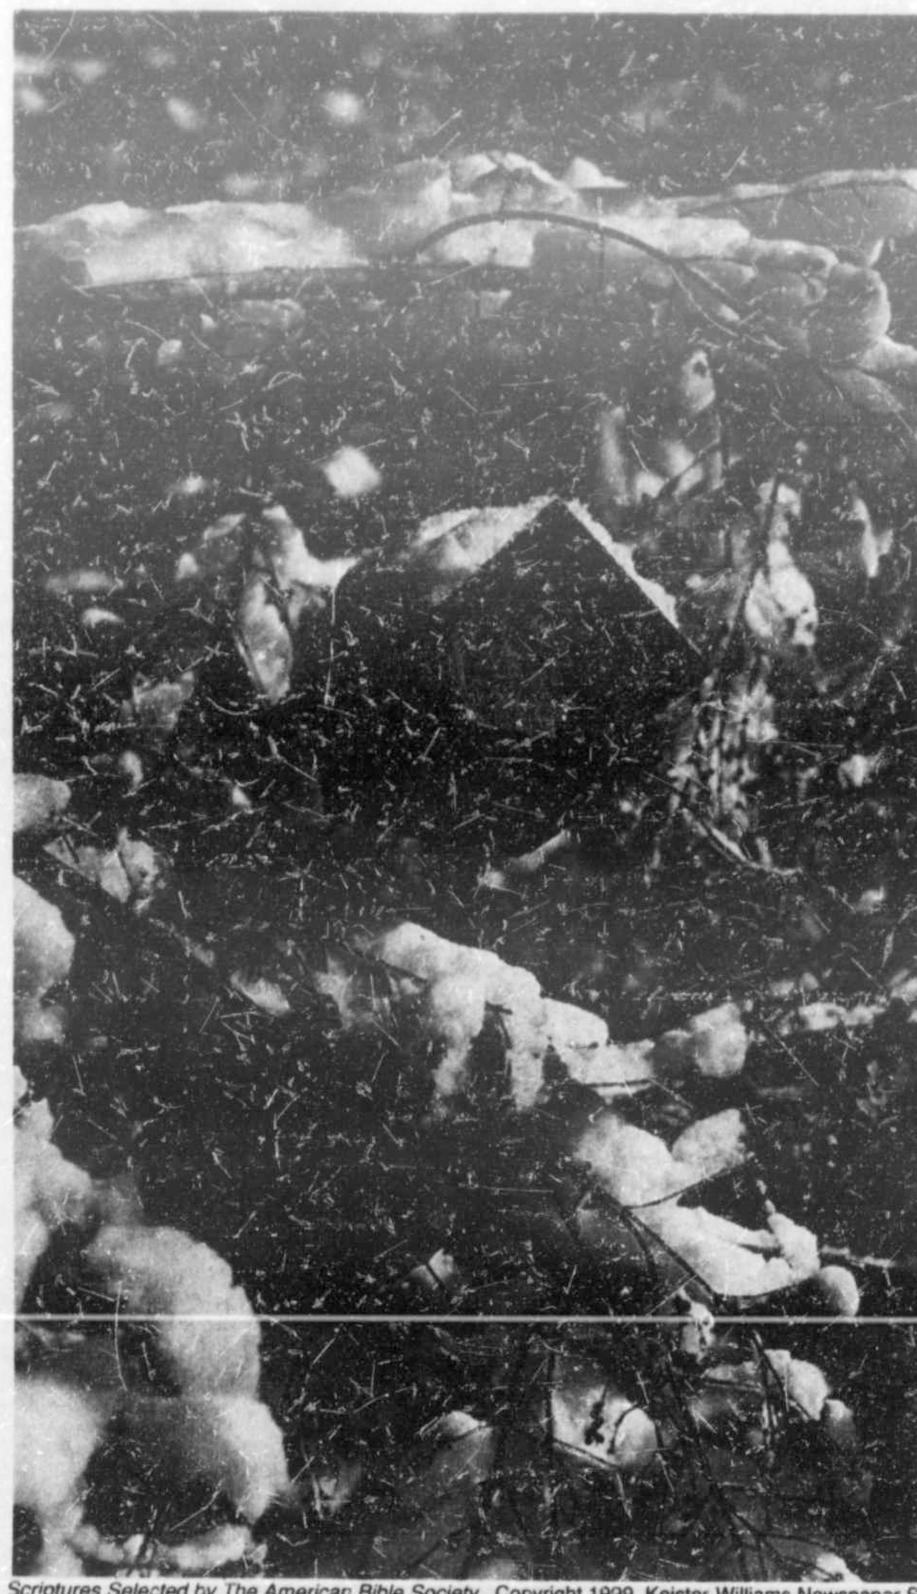
Defense Amidst Danger



Nestled among snow-laden branches is perched a defense amidst danger...a haven where God's creatures may safely hover together for warmth...where they may sleep and eat while the ravages of winter surround them. Without shelter, they would face death, freezing and starvation. How fortunate that a kind soul knew they would need protection.

A refuge is waiting for us amidst the winds of instability that rush through our world. There we may gather to encourage one another in the warmth of God's love...to nourish our souls with the manna of sacred meditation. In 2 Corinthians 3:5 Paul proclaims, "Our sufficiency is from God."

God has provided His house as our fortress...our defense amidst danger. Paul again assures us in Romans 8:38-39, "For I am sure that neither death...nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LIVING IN TWO WORLDS
February 7, 1999

Background Scripture:
Romans 12:9 through 13:14
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 15:1-5

This week we deal with one of the most controversial passages in the New Testament: Romans 13:1-7. A quick reading will illustrate why. There is nothing controversial in Romans 12:9-21, nor in 13:8-114. But, in between are seven verses that, along with 1 Peter 2:13-17 and 3:13, have been problematical for Christians since they were penned. They do not really answer, but only seem to make much more difficult, the question of the Christian's relationship to the state.

Had I a choice, I would not have selected these seven verses as the basis for a lesson on "Civic Responsibility," the title suggested by the Uniform Lesson guidelines. Why? Because, by itself, this passage conveys a very one-sided impression that is in vivid contrast to what scholar C.H. Dodd calls "the virulent hatred of Rome that runs through the Revelation of John." In Romans 13:1-7 Paul embraces the Roman state as "instituted by God" (13:1) to prevent evil and uphold good. In Revelation the state is seen as the enemy of Christianity. As Dodd, says, Paul "saw in the Empire the providential instrument by which the coming of Anti-Christ was delayed." In Revelation, John regards the Roman state as the Anti-Christ.

ROMANS OR REVELATION?

How can we explain and work with these two drastically opposing views? One explanation is that they were written at different times and the situation in these two periods was very different. Romans was probably written sometime between 54 and 58 AD, at a time when persecution was not part of Rome's imperial policy. Revelation is thought to have been written sometime between 70 and 91 AD, a period when Roman persecution was definitely imperial policy. By the time of John the church found that "Rome could persecute as well as protect" (John Knox).

So who is right, Paul or John? The answer: both and neither. Both were quite justified in their views in the separate and different times in which they wrote. Paul's dictum, "Let every person be subject to the governing authorities" would have been quite inapplicable to the church in the time of John, just as John's hatred of the state would have been inappropriate in the days when Paul wrote Romans.

Neither of them are exclusively authoritative for any other situations than those out of which they wrote. When Germans in the 1930's and 40's quoted Romans to confirm the authority of the Nazi government, they were misusing Paul and not for the sake of Christ. When Americans in the 1960's anathematized protesters against the Viet Nam War with the same passages, their use of Paul and Romans was no more authoritative.

ANOTHER REASON

But there is still another explanation for their radical difference. Even apart from the difference in their historical situations represented by these two New Testament books, there has been a long-standing tension between state and faith that reaches back into Old Testament times when sages worried that the desire for a king would undercut the authority of God. The underlying theme of Samuel I & II and Kings I & II is: "No king but God." In the days of the Kings of Israel and Judah prophets were often clearly disobedient to their rule. During the days of Jesus and the early church there was definite conflict between Christ and his followers with both the Jewish officials and Romans. As theologian Emil Brunner reminds us, "It is the State which crucified the Lord Jesus and oppressed the Jewish people." It was the state that throughout the Roman world compelled its peoples to bestow to the Emperor the homage that belonged to God alone.

So the tension we see between Romans and Revelation has always been with us. John Knox says: "Under pressure Christians have either granted the ruler too much latitude, or else have refused to concede him what he is fully entitled to claim. As a result they have been unduly subservient in some periods, while in others they have allowed no satisfactory place in their thought for the necessary functions of the state."

Christians live in both communities, the state and the kingdom, with loyalties to both. The state is instituted by God to bring order, justice and freedom into human life, but, as the Bible has clearly shown, when the state is unresponsive to the divine will, God has the supreme claim to our loyalty.

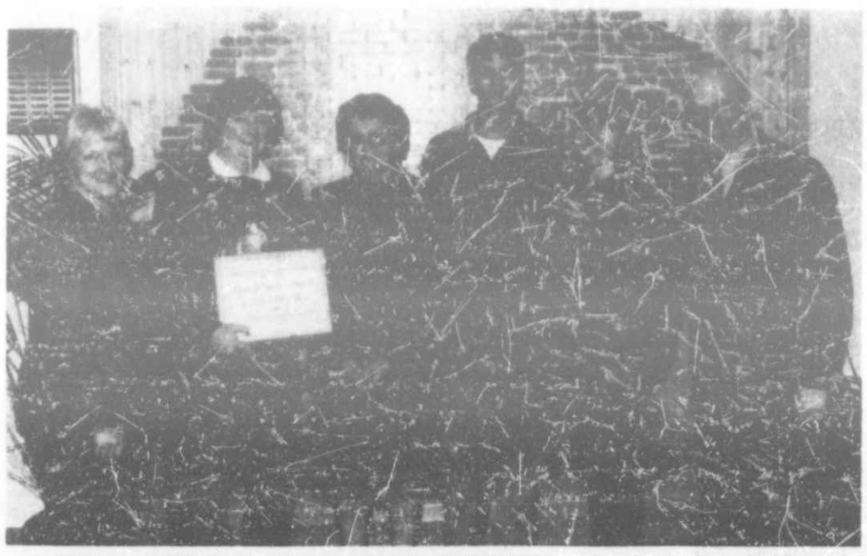
Carroll Scholarship Endowed Through Gift To GCCF



CARROLL MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP ENDOWED - The Fred Carroll Memorial Scholarship, a Garrett Community College Foundation scholarship that will be awarded to a student at the college each year in perpetuity, was endowed recently through a $10,000 gift from Helen Forman Carroll, widow of the late respected educator. "Fred realized the importance of education," Carroll said in reflecting on her decision to make the donation. "His professional career in the field of education spanned nearly four decades. He was a dedicated teacher and principal. He was extremely devoted to his students. I believe this scholarship is a wonderful testimony to my husband's life." Shown above as the donation was announced are, from the left, Bretta Reinhard, GCCF advancement officer; Ann M. Smith, GCCF president; Carroll; Corey Friend, a grandson of the Carrolls; Ann Sherrard, a daughter of the Carrolls; and Stephen J. Herman, GCC president.

The Garrett Community College Foundation has announced the endowment of the Fred Carroll Memorial Scholarship through a $10,000 contribution given by Helen Forman Carroll, the widow of the late educator Fred Clark "Beck" Carroll.

"The Garrett Community College Foundation gratefully acknowledges this generous contribution," said Ann M. Smith, GCCF president.

"We want to extend our deepest appreciation to Mrs. Carroll, [whose] generosity is exemplary," stated Dr. Stephen J. Herman, GCC president. "Due to her generosity and belief in the importance of education, present and future generations will have the opportunity to benefit from a collegiate education. In essence, the Fred Carroll Memorial Scholarship has the potential to help many people and enrich many lives. We at Garrett Community College sincerely thank Mrs. Carroll for this donation."

"Helen Forman Carroll has joined a special group of benefactors to Garrett Community College," added Bretta Reinhard, GCCF advancement officer. "We were honored to be selected by her as the institution of higher education to receive this endowment. The Fred Carroll Memorial Scholarship is the eleventh scholarship established at GCC at this level."

The GCCF intends to award the Fred Carroll Memorial Scholarship every year in perpetuity. It is designed for a resident of Garrett County or Grant or Preston counties. The recipient must demonstrate financial need, enroll as a full-time student at GCC, have a high school cumulative average of at least a C, and maintain a college cumulative average of at least a C. The scholarship deadline is Monday, March 1, for GCC's 1999-2000 academic year.

Fred Clark Carroll was born in Kingwood, W.Va., and graduated from its high school in 1929. He earned his undergraduate degrees in 1935 from West Virginia University, Morgantown, W.Va. A number of years later, after his voluntary enlistment for active duty with the United States Navy during which he served in both the Pacific and Atlantic theaters for four years in World War II, Carroll earned his master's degree and principal's certificate from WVU as well.

Carroll's teaching career began prior to the war at Masontown (W.Va.) High School, followed by a teaching assignment at Terra Alta (W.Va.) High School. He was appointed principal of Bayard (W.Va.) High School in 1953, where he served until his retirement in 1966. From 1966 to his second retirement in 1974, he headed the new vocational department at Southern High School, Oakland.

Known for his dedication to education and his commitment to his students, Carroll also encouraged his wife's pursuit of bachelor's and master's degrees in education. He also encouraged the educational pursuits of his children—Rebecca Friend, Loch Lynn, who earned a bachelor's degree from WVU; Ann Sherrard, Accident, who earned undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of Maryland and the University of North Carolina, respectively; and Jane Pritts, Roanoke, Va., who earned her bachelor's degree from the University of Pittsburgh (Pa.).

Carroll had 10 grandchildren as well—Corey, Emily, Laura, and Tyler Friend; Abby, Beck, Lake, and Sam Sherrard; and Griffin and Jill Pritts.

Friends Give To Library; Invite Others To Donate

FRIENDS OF LIBRARY PROVIDE FUNDS FOR CHILDREN'S BOOKS - The Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library recently donated $6,000 to the library that will be used to expand the children's collection through the purchase of new books. Pictured above, from the left, Claudia Coughlin, president of the library board, and Cosette Harman, secretary of the Friends organization, are shown with some of the library's current children's literature holdings. The Friends encourage all citizens, businesses, and organizations to join them in donating funds to the library to support the updating of its entire collection, and invite interested persons to join the Friends organization during its current membership drive, which is being co-chaired by Harman and Gretchen Shaffer.

The Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library recentl, donated $6,000 for the purchase of new children's books. The funds were raised from local businesses and Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library membership, according to Cosette Harman, secretary to the Friends organization, and will be distributed to the various library branches based on their circulation.

Martha Makosky, library director, and Claudia Coughlin, president of the library board, will oversee the upgrading of the entire library collection using a rigorous process to determine which books should be removed or replaced. Branch heads and selected staff members will be involved in the initial culling of books, and their recommendations will be carefully reviewed.

All books will be coded using a stringent rating system to determine how out-of-date or inaccurate they are. For example, the library's New True Books volume on the U.S. Congress was published in 1985 and states that Ronald Reagan is currently president of the United States, and that George Bush may be elected to succeed him.

While the Library will occasionally continue to accept donations of selected books, the current need is for money to replace and to add specific books. "The Library would be grateful to receive financial contributions from members of the community for this ongoing project," a spokesperson said. Contributors may earmark their funds for specific subject areas, such as science, sports, gardening, or some other field of interest. Donations may be sent to Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library, 6 North Second Street, Oakland, MD 21550.

The Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library is also in the midst of its 1998-1999 membership campaign, co-chaired by Harman and Gretchen Shaffer. For information on joining the Friends organization, interested persons may contact Harman at 301-334-4018.

Grant-Writing Training Class Slated At GCC

A training program in successful grant writing is scheduled at Garrett Community College from Monday, March 15, to Friday, March 19. Conducted by the Grantsmanship Center, the nation's oldest and largest fund-raising organization, the program will provide participants with a hands-on opportunity to write a grant proposal, information on grant funding sources, and follow-up assistance for one full year after the class.

"The core of the training is the hands-on work you will do developing proposal elements that pertain to your own agency's programs," a spokesperson for the course said. "At the same time, you will gain insight into what proposal reviewers are looking for as you become a reviewer yourself, evaluating proposals of other participants."

The program is being hosted by of GCC's Continuing Education and Training Division and the Western Maryland 4-H Center and is open to all organizations throughout the state, although space is limited to 25 participants on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Persons or organizations interested in tuition rates and registration information may contact Dawn Beitzel of GCC at 301-387-3136 or Paul Webster of the Western Maryland 4-H Center at 301-334-6967. This information may also be obtained by contacting the Grantsmanship Center, P.O. New Toll-Free Line Available For Reservations

To better serve the more than 10 million annual campers and visitors to Maryland's 47 state parks and forests, Governor Parris N. Glendening has announced Board of Public Works approval of a toll-free phone reservation system for campsites, cabins, and picnic shelters. Administered by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) State Forest and Park Service, the new toll-free number will allow customers to make reservations at any state park beginning February 8.

"With just one toll-free call any time, night or day, families can plan overnight visits to any of Maryland's state parks," said Governor Glendening. "From hiking along mountain trails in Herrington Manor State Park to building sand castles on the beaches at Assateague, enjoying the great outdoors is a wonderful way for families to discover the beauty and diversity of Maryland's natural resources."

By dialing 1-888-432-CAMP (2267), available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, callers will talk with operators who will help them select the most appropriate rental from among more than 1,800 campsites, 50 cabins, and 100 picnic shelters. With one call, customers can make multiple reservations. Callers can request their favorite site or, if unfamiliar with available accommodations, the operator will assist with selection based on a caller's needs. If a requested site is unavailable, operators can search nearby parks and forests for comparable sites. Walk-in customers at parks and forests may still request any non-reserved sites.

Campers also will be able to make reservations online at www.md.campnow. com beginning this spring. Reservation and camping service charges must be paid in advance and credit cards are accepted. Callers will receive reservation numbers for confirmation and check-in. Reservations must be made for a minimum of two nights on weekends, and three nights on holiday weekends from Memorial Day through La-bor Day. Adults age 18 and older must register for the site and remain with the camping party throughout the stay. Discounts for sen-ior citizens (age 62 and old-er) apply Sunday through Thursday. Youth group camping passes also are available through the reservation system.

Reservations can be made up to 12 months in advance of the date of rental. To receive a free brochure with rates, services available, site locations, pet accommodations, or other camping and rental information, persons may call 1-800-830-3974. Information about Maryland's state parks and forests, including photos and maps, also is available online at www. dnr.state.md.us in the parks and lands section.

Chaired by Governor Glendening, the board also includes Comptroller William Donald Schaefer and Treasurer Richard N. Dixon. The Board of Public Works is authorized by the General Assembly to approve major construction and consultant contracts, equipment purchases, property transactions, and other procurement actions.

Our next meeting will be held Thursday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m. at Yough Glades Elementary School. Everyone has been asked to prepare a speech for the public speaking contest and present it for practice at this meeting. Impromptu speeches will also be given.

The daughter of Melvin and Gloria Beitzel, Salisbury, Beitzel is a 1994 graduate of Meyersdale Area High School. Prior to her term of service, she was employed by Cherry Glade Child Care, Accident. Beitzel previously served with EMM on two YES teams to Honduras. She is a member of Cherry Glade Mennonite Church, Accident.

The YES program of Eastern Mennonite Missions provides Christian discipleship training and cross-cultural mission assignments for about 120 young adults each year. Assignments are generally from eight months to a year, with the first three months spent in training at a discipleship center in Harrisburg, Pa., or Baltimore. YES participants from all over the world serve on teams of four to seven young adults, who work alongside national church leaders or missionaries. A STAR! Shining Brightly In Garrett And Allegany Counties

The Appalachian Service Through Action and Resource program, or A STAR! as it is known throughout the Garrett and Allegany county region, is a collaboration between Frostburg State University and 14 participating nonprofit community service organizations.

"A STAR! in Western Maryland has made a great impact on the campus and in the community as well as a very substantial contribution to higher education and the citizens of Maryland," stated Dr. Catherine Gira, FSU president.

According to statistics recently published by the FSU A STAR! in Western Maryland office, AmeriCorps members have collectively served over 31,000 community citizens through efforts at establishing gardens, tutoring, working in the food bank, mentoring after-school programs, aiding in tornado relief, and performing numerous other tasks to better life in the region.

The program was first brought to the FSU campus in 1994 through the efforts of Bill Mandicott, director of the FSU Lane Center. It is funded by FSU, the FSU Foundation Inc., the Corporation for National Service, the Maryland Governor's Office on Service and Volunteerism, Maryland Funding Collaborative, and the participating agencies.

"Frostburg State University acts as 'parent' organization, offering office space, staff, and technical support to aid organization operations," explained Keith Hart, A STAR! program coordinator.

"The university has a very large history of commitment to the community," Hart continued. "We would not be here if it were not for the inkind support the university provides us. In return, we try and give back to the community what FSU has given to us."

Currently the FSU A STAR! program has 32 AmeriCorps members working diligently in agencies, including the Garrett County Community Action Committee, Western Maryland AHEC, Western Maryland Food Bank, and Garrett County Department of Social Services, among others.

Working 35 to 40 hours a week or more in return for a small stipend, members' efforts aid to alleviate illiteracy, provide health care, and preserve the environment to better citizens' lives in the region. Upon completion of service contracts, members are eligible for a grant to further their education.

In addition to two Frostburg State University graduate students, the remainder of the A STAR! members are citizens from the community, ranging in age from 18 to 50.

"We try to recruit members nationally to achieve ethnic, geographic, and cultural diversity in our corps," Hart explained, adding that the goal is to have a diverse group of individuals sharing a common experience.

In an ongoing effort to align the resources of participating agencies and maintain communication, A STAR! holds regular "reflection" sessions for its members and their individual agency supervisors.

"These sessions allow a time for everyone to get together to think, share, and process what they have learned in the community," Hart said.

Utilizing the A STAR! philosophy of "service learning," or linking education with service, the program also acts as a "volunteer clearing house" for FSU students wanting to volunteer in the community.

"FSU students who want service learning opportunities come to us," Hart stated. "We line the students up with AmeriCorps members at agencies of interest."

Hart further explained that because of the positive impact this collaboration of agencies is having on the region, the A STAR! office, its members, and participating agencies now call themselves the Western Maryland Alliance for Service.

"What a wonderful opportunity this has proved to be for the Western Maryland Food Bank," stated Diana Loar, director of the food bank. "The AmeriCorps members have allowed us to maximize the service we can provide to our agencies. We are so thankful for the support of manpower and fiscal resources this partnership has provided."

St. Mark's Sets Lenten Soup Meals, Services

St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland has slated its annual soup suppers and services to be held on Wednesday evenings throughout the season of Lent. The dinners will begin at 6 p.m. each Wednesday, followed by the church service at 7 p.m. These will begin on Feb. 17 with Ash Wednesday and continue through March 24.

The theme of the series is "Talking about the Faith." Pastor Michael Robinson will lead the services, which are open to the community.

"Lent is a time for thinking about one's relationship to God," said a church spokesperson. "Whether a person is a member of another faith or has never before been in a church, all are welcome at the Wednesday night (and Sunday morning) services at St. Mark's."

There will be no fee for the soup supper, which will be provided by church volunteers. A basket will be placed on a table for free will offerings, all of which will be given to the Dove Center.

The church is located at the corner of Second and Center streets in Oakland, diagonally across from the Ruth Enlow Library. For more information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-2668.

Md. Dairy Industry Calls For Task Force To Advise Feds

Maryland's unique dairy industry should form a task force to advise and assist federal authorities in developing nutrient management regulations. That's the official position of the Maryland Dairy Industry Association (MDIA), the association representing producers, processors, handlers, and suppliers of the state's $1 billion dairy industry.

MDIA representatives met on January 8 with officials of Maryland Cooperative Extension and the Maryland Department of Agriculture to develop guidelines for proposed federal nutrient management regulations. The proposed federal regulations would apply to most Maryland farm acreage, and would require implementation of a Comprehensive Nutrient Management Plan to control runoff into streams involving animal waste. The federal regulations are more extensive than Maryland's own nutrient management plan, which incorporates only one of the six federal points.

"MDIA is determined to take a leading role in seeking workable solutions with these proposed new regulations," said MDIA president Myron Wilhide, a Detour (Carroll County) dairy producer. "We are especially concerned about the impact on dairy producers concerning runoff from holding pens and sludge pits. The dairy industry has some unique conditions that must be considered."

Federal nutrient management regulations, as proposed by USDA and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, would affect the storage and disposal of animal waste and its effects on phosphorus levels in the soil.

MDIA filed comments on January 15, calling for a dairy industry advisory task force, technical assistance and funding to assist with development of management plans, incentives for producers who identify and correct waste disposal problems, additional research to define reasonable soil phosphorus levels, and a comprehensive and standardized recordkeeping system for Maryland dairy producers to avoid burdensome reporting requirements.

"It is important that federal nutrient management plans issued from Washington cover all facets of land and water management, while taking into account the unique characteristics of the dairy industry," MDIA's Wilhide said. "Because of the impact these proposals will have on Maryland's dairy industry, we want to work closely with USDA and EPA to assure a fair and positive outcome."

Details on the state and federal nutrient management plans are available from Maryland Cooperative Extension, or by contacting Paul Weller or Jonathan Moore at MDIA at 202-293-0476.

Hare-Raising Conference Set

A commercial rabbit production conference will be held on Sat., Feb. 27, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. The conference will begin at 9 a.m. and will conclude at 4 p.m. Speakers for the conference will include: Dr. James I. McNitt, renowned rabbit production specialist from Southern University, Baton Rouge, La., and author of Rabbit Production, the widely recognized source for up-to-date production information; Dr. Richard W. Russell, West Virginia University; and Raymond D. Ediger, D.V.M., Maryland Department of Agriculture, Frederick Laboratory.

The information provided by the workshop will be "hands-on" and applicable to any rabbit operation. Emphasis will be placed on techniques for small commercial rabbit enterprises. Question and answer sessions are scheduled with each speaker so individual concerns may be addressed.

The conference is free of charge. An Amish-prepared hot lunch buffet will be available at a fee of $6 per person. The fee will be collected at the door at the 8:30 a.m. check-in, prior to the start of the conference.

To reserve space at the conference and/or for directions, those interested may contact the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960. The conference registration deadline is Feb. 19.

Firefighters Rescue Cow From Feeder

According to a report from the Associated Press, late last month Bruceton Mills, W.Va., firefighters answered a 911 emergency call from farm owner Wendy Everly when she realized one of her cows had gotten its head and foot wedged in a 200-pound round-bale feeder. The firefighters used the Jaws of Life to free the 500-pound cow.

"We've chased them off the interstate a time of two, but this is the first time we've cut one out," said volunteer firefighter Tony Miller.

Everly said, "Usually, we handle everything around the farm, but this time we were wondering 'Who do we call?' None of the men are home."

Dispatcher Lisa Knotts directed the fire department to Everly's farm but didn't give them specifics.

"They were laughing too hard to say what it was over the radio," said firefighter Keith Spear.

Ag Concentration Generates Concerns

Economic concentration in agriculture has brought about an increasing number of mergers, and while not necessarily related to current low livestock prices, they contribute to Farm Bureau's "concern about the state of U.S. agriculture," American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner told the Senate Agriculture Committee last week.

"Farm Bureau is very concerned that concentration within the livestock and grain industries could lead to inadequate market access," Kleckner said at a hearing that examined economic concentration in agriculture and agribusiness.

Much attention has been focused on the concentration issue since Cargill Inc. announced plans to buy Continental Grain Co. Cargill and Continental are the nation's top grain companies.

In his testimony, Kleckner outlined Farm Bureau's major concerns with the merger. First, he said, farmers are concerned about the impact on local competitiveness. "Prices are influenced by the interaction of supply and demand conditions as the commodity moves closer to the ultimate consumer, either domestic or international," Kleckner said. "Clearly there are some areas where the local markets served by Cargill/Continental facilities overlap."

Another area of concern is the potential impact of the merger on delivery points for grain and soybeans, Kleckner said. Delivery is the process where the futures price and the cash price converge. All three futures exchanges (Chicago, Kansas City, and Minneapolis) have delivery points that involve some Cargill and Continental facilities. The delivery mechanism has the potential to exert "significant influences" on prices, he said.

Kleckner added that Farm Bureau also is uneasy with the potential impact of the merger on export markets. The combined Cargill and Continental grain facilities accounted for approximately 35 percent of total U.S. grain and oilseed exports last year. He emphasized that the merger warrants review, but said Farm Bureau does not want to assume the proposed merger is either "good or bad."

"We recognize and acknowledge that the world is shifting to a dynamic global marketing environment," Kleckner said. "Just as farmers have had to grow and consolidate to remain efficient competitors, so do other businesses."

While both Republican and Democratic committee members expressed concern about the overall trend of agribusiness concentration, they stopped short of directly criticizing the merger. However, Sen. Kent Conrad (D-N.D.) announced that he and Sen. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa) will meet with Attorney General Janet Reno this month to discuss market concentration in agriculture. Conrad said that all aspects of concentration — including the merger — will be discussed. Conrad is one of a group of lawmakers who have called upon the Justice Department to investigate concentration in the industry.

Kleckner said Farm Bureau encourages the proper government agencies to examine proposed mergers that have the potential to limit market access. However, he said, "We do not want the system to perpetuate the very problem we are trying to avoid. For this reason we urge the government to consider what may happen if the merger is prevented, to consider the long-term view of the entire marketplace."

Some industries in agriculture may "need a more watchful eye than others," Kleckner said. The poultry and beef industries are already concentrated. Any proposed merger in those areas would need extreme scrutiny, he said. However, he said that the pork industry might experience unprecedented structural changes in the next few months. Farm Bureau is concerned this could quickly reduce market access for smaller and medium-size producers, he said.

Kleckner said Farm Bureau supports several legislative initiatives to assist farmers and ranchers during this trend of increased concentration. One is country-of-origin labeling, which would require imported meat and meat products to be labeled so U.S. consumers could identify the country of origin at the retail sales point.

Kleckner added that Farm Bureau also supports legislation that would allow interstate distribution of state-inspected meat. Allowing meat that has been processed and inspected by a state inspection facility — which by law must provide for a food safety level equal to that of a federally inspected facility — to move in interstate commerce "makes good sense. I want to emphasize the fact that by coordinating the efforts between state and federal inspection facilities, small and mid-size processing plans could expand their operations."

The future of U.S. agriculture depends on expanding trade opportunities and foreign market development, Kleckner said. He applauded Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Dick Lugar's (R-Ind.) introduction of legislation to open markets for U.S. agricultural exports and ensure that U.S. trading partners comply with international trade rules. Also, Kleckner said, fast-track trade negotiating authority must be passed during this session of Congress.

"Our goal as producers is to expand and grow with the industry," he said. "We cannot curtail domestic growth at these times of low prices. We must look to future export markets in order to sell and develop our products to maintain strong demand and prices that are reflective of the market value."

Mikulski Co-Sponsors Bill For Farmland Protection Program

The office of U.S. Senator Barbara A. Mikulski (D-MD) announced that she is joining Senator Patrick Leahy (D-VT) in introducing legislation to reauthorize the Farmland Protection Program. The program was originally created by Senator Leahy as part of the 1996 Lugar-Leahy Farm Bill.

The Farmland Protection Program is designed to give small farmers and ranchers a financial incentive to keep their land in farming when they face pressure to sell their land to developers. The program, which received $35 million in each of the last two years, provides grants which allow state and local organizations to purchase development rights and keep productive farmland in use.

The new legislation will fund the program at $55 million for the next three years, in addition to reauthorizing the program indefinitely. President Clinton's 2000 budget, submitted recently, proposed $50 million for the program during the next fiscal year.

"Framers and ranchers must continue to have the option of retaining their land for farming, even under intense financial pressure from developers," said Senator Mikulski. "Agriculture is a critical component of Maryland's robust economy, and is vital to maintaining the quality of life and natural beauty in the state."

Maryland has a strong record of agricultural land preservation. Under the leadership of Governor Parris N. Glendening, Maryland's land preservation programs have permanently protected 165,533 acres on 1,145 individual farms since 1997—more than in any other state. The state has received a total of $2.9 million in grants through the Farmland Protection Program.

"I commend Senator Mikulski for her strong leadership in co-sponsoring this legislation that will help protect our farmers from the pressures of development," said Governor Glendening. "This effort will complement and support the agricultural land preservation and rural legacy programs that are part of Maryland's Smart Growth initiative. We look forward to working closely with Senator Mikulski in a joint federal-state partnership to protect Maryland's farmers and preserve our valuable agriculture industry."

Md. Ag Statistics Issues '98 Crop Production Totals

The 1998 corn for grain yield in Maryland was 109.0 bushels per acre based on reports on Dec. 1, 1998. The yield is 19 bushels more than the 1997 yield of 90 bushels per acre. Corn for grain production, at 43.6 million bushels, is 18% more than last year's production.

The 1998 corn for silage harvested acres decreased by 30,000 acres to 65,000 acres from last year's revised estimate of 95,000 acres. However, the corn silage yield was estimated at 13 tons per acre, three tons per acre more than last year. 1998 corn for silage production was estimated at 845,000 tons.

Soybean yield is forecast to average 31.0 bushels per acre, one bushel more than the revised 1997 average yield of 30 bushels. Soybean production amounted to 14.3 million bushels, 8.6% less than a year ago.

Alfalfa hay production for 1998 is estimated at 226,000 tons, 24% more than last year's production. All other hay production for 1998 totaled 406,000 tons, 27% more than 1997 all other hay production.

Tobacco yield is estimated at 1,400 pounds per acre, down 7% from the previous year's yield of 1,500 pounds per acre. Tobacco production should total 9.1 million pounds, down 24% from 1997.

Winter wheat planted acres for harvest in 1999 is forecast at 215,000 acres, 10,000 acres less than last year's planting. Rye planted acres is estimated at 35,000 acres, 10,000 acres more than the previous year's planting.

Across the United States, corn for grain production was estimated at 9.76 billion bushels, up 6% from the 1997 crop, but down 1% from the Nov. 1 forecast. The 1998 production ranks second behind the 10.1 billion bushels produced in 1994. The U.S. yield of 134.4 bushels per acre was up 7.7 bushels from a year earlier.

Soybean production in 1998 totaled 2.76 billion bushels, down slightly from the Nov. 1 forecast but up 3% from 1997. The 1998 production is the highest on record, followed by the 1997 crop of 2.69 billion bushels. The average yield per acre in 1998 is estimated at 38.9 bushels, 0.3 bushels above the Nov. 1 forecast. This is equal to the 1997 yield, which is the second highest yield on record behind the 1994 yield of 41.4 bushels.

In Maryland the winter wheat seeded area for 1999 is expected to total 215,000 acres, down 10,000 acres from 1998's level and the same as the area seeded for winter wheat in 1997. Rye area seeded for Maryland for 1999 was at 35,000 acres. This was a 40% increase from the 1998 level of 25,000 acres.

The U.S. winter wheat seeded area for 1999 is expected to total 43.4 million acres, down 7% from 1998. This is the smallest area since 1972. Class breakdowns approximate: hard red winter, 30.9 million; soft red winter, 9.0 million; and white winter, 3.5 million.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service is in the process of publishing a series of 20 statistical bulletins containing final estimates for the 1993-97 period. Previously published estimates will be reviewed utilizing survey indications, the 1997 Census of Agriculture, and administrative data such as exports, imports, slaughter, and crushing. These bulletins are a continuation of Statistical Bulletins SB895-SB912 published in 1994 and 1995.

On Feb. 1 the first of several Census of Agriculture products was released. The first release is on the Internet, with printed material and CD-ROM products to follow. State and U.S. information can be found at www.usda.gov/nass.

The devastation of Central America last fall by Hurricane Mitch will take a long time to clean up. Yet, it was only the second of two extraordinarily powerful storms to swirl through the Caribbean during one of the busiest hurricane seasons on record.

Mitch's brother, Hurricane Georges, churned through the eastern and middle Caribbean just a few weeks earlier, leaving mass destruction and fatalities in its wake.

Though now all but forgotten on the evening news, Georges will be remembered, always and painfully, on these islands.

"Georges made a clean sweep, ravaging the West Indian islands of Antigua, St. Martin, St. Kitts, Nevis, Saba, Statia, the U.S. and British Virgin Islands, Vieques, Puerto Rico and Hispaniola before leveling portions of the Florida Keys and moving up to the Florida panhandle and Alabama," says Jim MacNeil, a Maryland sailor now in Salinas, Puerto Rico.

"It's a little like he had direction from a demented travel agent."

MacNeil and Rebecca Payne have been cruising those islands for two years aboard their biodiesel-powered yacht, Beyond. With assistance from the Maryland Soybean Board and Ohio Soybean Council, the pair has been burning a 20-percent blend of biodiesel, produced by NOPEC Corp. of Lakeland, Fla. The soybean oil-based fuel helps lower emissions and increases lubricity to reduce engine wear.

Biodiesel was developed with help from soybean checkoff dollars. The soybean checkoff is a program in which one-half of one percent is assessed on all soybean sales for research, marketing, and education.

MacNeil and Payne lived on Beyond in Salisbury, Md., and scrimped and saved for years to be able to take off on this dream vacation cruise. When the opportunity to promote biodiesel blends was presented to them, they jumped at the chance to promote "green boating."

Their travels have taken them to plenty of coconut-laden beaches. They've seen sunsets more beautiful than words can describe. But it hasn't all been fun — day to day living is hard work, and they've had some precarious adventures. Hurricane Georges was one.

"Weeks after the storm, streets here in Puerto Rico remain an obstacle course of power lines, telephone poles, trees, rubbish, and corrugated tin roofing," MacNeil says. "Schools closed while classrooms turned into bedrooms for the island's newly homeless. Power and water are not expected to be restored to some areas for months."

No part of the inland was spared hurricane force winds; many areas experienced winds of 120 miles per hour with higher gusts. On the coast, many boats not sunk by Georges were tossed ashore by its storm surge, leaning against homes, bottom paint to the sky.

The first mention of Georges was on Sept. 14, when Caribbean weatherman David Jones mentioned a well-organized tropical depression 2,500 miles away from Puerto Rico. Within two days, it became tropical storm Georges, and continued strengthening.

"We wondered where it would track," MacNeil remembers. "Georges developed much farther south then any other storms this year. Our autopilot needed repairs, and although we had plenty of time to make it to safety in Curaçao, we opted to seek safe harbor in Puerto Rico. After all, we thought the chances of a direct hit were slim."

As it turned out, they were wrong.

Two days passed before the threat began to set in, and the sailors hauled up their anchors, topped off their water tanks, and began emergency preparations.

Marinas can become a demolition derby in hurricane-force winds and seas. "We headed for an area which is full of narrow creeks lined with the rubbery, strong-rooted mangrove trees," MacNeil says.

Georges became a hurricane that night.

The next day, the sailors listened as the National Hurricane Center predicted Puerto Rico would be safe, while weather guru Herb Hilgenburg — a man who redirects shipping traffic with his forecasts — pronounced that Georges would sweep Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic. They elected to listen to Hilgenburg's prediction, and redoubled their efforts to ready Beyond.

On Friday, Sept. 18, Georges was 1,200 miles away and close to a Category III hurricane. The first feeder bands of squalls and rain were expected to appear on that Sunday.

Over the weekend, Payne cleared the decks while MacNeil dove into the murky creek and drove anchors into the firm mud.

"By the end of Saturday, Beyond looked like a plucked chicken," Payne says. "All you could see was a boat and mast. Everything else had been stripped, including sails, booms, halyards, cabin ventilators, the wind generator, and even its mount."

Georges continued to strengthen as it approached the island. It was upgraded to a Category IV storm, meaning gusts up to 145 mph. At that level, anything not tied down becomes a lethal weapon in the wind's grip.

MacNeil and Payne continued to tie ropes from beyond into the sturdy mangroves, weaving a web on which Beyond perched like a 41-foot spider.

"As Georges was bearing down on Guadeloupe and Antigua, it was obvious there was little chance for us to escape this storm," MacNeil says. "We could only hope to miss the worst winds near the eye."

Forecasts began calling for gusts of 160 mph by the time Georges reached Puerto Rico. The sailors decided to do everything to protect their floating home, then seek safe shelter ashore.

They made reservations at a strong, concrete hotel well above sea level and rented a getaway car so as not to be stranded on the boat.

Sunday morning found them making final preparations.

"At 160 mph, a plastic straw can penetrate a tree trunk," MacNeil says. "We dogged, taped, and tied all the hatches, put plywood over the large salon windows, double checked all bilge pumps and batteries, and secured items below. Beyond would be rolling wildly during the worst hours."

Having done all they could, they gathered up emergency food and water, tucked their pet cat in a nylon sack, and headed for the hotel.

Georges did not arrive until the following evening, when his arrival was announced by rattling windows. Soon, the entire hotel was shaking.

"For hours the wind roared like a jet airplane during take-off," MacNeil says. "We watched in horror as trees were stripped bare or broken in two. Paint was blasted off the outside walls of the hotel buildings. Utility poles were pushed over the road or snapped off.

"I could imagine no way anchors or ropes could hold a 20-ton boat in these conditions. I knew there was a high likelihood that Beyond would be lost," MacNeil remembers. "Rebecca and I, however, took comfort in knowing that as long as this hotel stayed together, we would get away with our lives."

Georges soon swept Puerto Rico and headed off to Hispaniola. Impassable roads and severe flooding in coastal areas prevented the sailors from getting back to the boat to assess the damage for days.

The delay was excruciating.

"We survived the hurricane, but would we be able to continue our cruise?" MacNeil remembers thinking. "We talked about where we would go and career choices we would make while saving up for another boat, another cruise."

Beyond, a CT-41 ketch designed by William Garden, is not only their home but somewhat of a rare specimen in yachting. Getting "another boat" would be easy. Replacing Beyond would be nearly impossible. When the sailors finally reached the mangroves near Las Mareas, they were still unsure what they would find.

"The dinghy and outboard, which went to the hotel with us, were put together and we headed up the creek," MacNeil says. "One boat, a sister-ship, lay on her side in the mangroves, her keel barely touching the water."

Around a few turns, MacNeil's home of 10 years came into view. "Masts and antennae were intact, and she was almost as we had left her," he says with relief.

That relief was overwhelming. "Want to bet if I can do cartwheels across Beyond's coach roof?" MacNeil asks. "I can."

STEVEN SPIELBERG: MAGICAL FANTASIES AND RIVETING REALITIES

Steven Spielberg directed five of the world's 25 highest grossing movies. Yet, the Academy snubbed him until his first serious work, "Schindler's List," swept seven Oscars, including Best Director and Best Picture.

This year, he'll probably add to his Oscar collection with "Saving Private Ryan," the searing WWII epic that reconfigured how Hollywood portrays war, eschewing previous sanitized or sentimentalized versions for a more realistic portrayal. March's Biography magazine recounts Spielberg's obsessive eye for detail. For example, since many D-Day survivors remembered dead fish washing ashore, Spielberg had dead fish strewn along the beach for the film's harrowing opening.

He and wife Kate Capshaw, who met when he cast her in "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," have seven kids, ranging from three to 22 – Jessica (from Capshaw's first marriage), followed by Max (his only child from his 10-year marriage to Amy Irving) and five younger siblings, including two adopted black children. Every morning, doting dad makes pancakes, cavorts with the kids and transports them to school, making sure to always be home for dinner.

His parents' marriage was not so idyllic. Filmmaking provided him an escape early on and then into college. A Universal TV exec discovered him at a film festival and hired the 21-year-old to direct a Joan Crawford movie. He went on to helm other TV shows and movies until his talent for creating nail-biting action sequences catapulted him to fame with "Jaws." Then came "Close Encounters...," the "Indiana Jones" trilogy, "E.T.," "The Color Purple," "Jurassic Park," "Lost World" and "...Private Ryan," not only revealing Spielberg's hi-tech f/x wizardry but also his talent at coaxing memorable performances from actors.

Other upcoming projects include a film about Charles Lindbergh and an adaptation of "The Cat in the Hat." As he said, "I dream for a living." And he enables millions to dream along.

Q. I have just started shopping at house sales and flea markets. I paid $20 for an old plate decorated with a picture of a woman driving a car in the center and a calendar of each month in 1908 around the edge. The name of a department store is under the center picture. Are you familiar with this type of plate? Were many made?

A. You purchased a "calendar plate," and you did well. The plate you describe often sells for about $35.

From about 1905 through the 1930s, many American retailers gave calendar plates to their customers as Christmas gifts. Almost all the plates were decal-decorated by firms that bought seconds and over-runs from china and pottery companies.

Q. What is the best way to store my massive LP collection? Should I store it in my attic or basement?

A. Store your long-playing record albums, or any other records, standing up. Do not lay them flat.

Store them in a room of moderate temperature and humidity. Most attics are too hot for records, and most basements are too humid.

LP's should be stored in their protective sleeves inside their album covers. For ultimate protection, store each album cover in a plastic slipcover. Most stores sell such slipcovers.

Q. I inherited a white glass gas pump globe in the shape of a crown. The word "Solite" is cast around the base of the crown. How old is it? How much is it worth?

A. Your gas pump globe, which dates from 1926 to 1932, was originally painted with blue details that have faded. The brand name "Solite" was used by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

A Solite globe with painted details is valued at $650 to $1,000. Yours probably would sell for $300 to $500.

Also, when I make my hamburger patties, I use them to separate them; that way, I don't have to use so much waxed paper. You can wash and reuse if you wish. Lynn E., Lemoyne, Pa.

SCRUBBERS – Those plastic scrubbers for dishes or pots and pans were always a mess at our house.

Every so often, I would put them through the dishwasher. Finally, I decided to keep them in the dishwasher. They live with the dirty dishes when they are dirty and always get washed! Liz S., West Haverstraw, N.Y.

COVER STORY

Night Ride Home deals with loss of child

By Justino Aguila
©TVData Features Syndicate

Rebecca De Mornay

She once horrified audiences as the wicked nanny in The Hand That Rocks the Cradle. But now, actress Rebecca De Mornay is taking on a more sympathetic maternal role.

As Nora Mahler, De Mornay portrays a mother who loses a child in an accident in Night Ride Home, a film based on the novel by Barbara Esstman.

Airing Sunday, Feb. 7, on CBS, the story of love, loss and survival was filmed on location near Portland, Ore., and teams De Mornay with Academy Award winners Keith Carradine and Ellen Burstyn.

Both De Mornay and Carradine, who plays Nora's husband, Neal, say that in order to relate to their characters, they borrowed from their own family experiences, but the emotional journey is especially intense because of the difficult subject matter of losing a son.

"I was just blown away with how incredibly heavy this movie is," says De Mornay, 37, who committed to the role several months after giving birth to her first child.

In this 200th Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation, audiences get to see the motherly side of De Mornay, whose roles usually have edgier elements to them. Future films, for example, include two black comedies; in one, she portrays an ex-stripper.

"I wouldn't have been able to play Nora had I not given birth to my daughter," she says. "It's a whole different world once you have a child, but being a mother made the role incredibly torturous because losing a child is every mother's worst nightmare."

The film also explores the strained relationship between Nora and Neal, who have been married for nearly 20 years.

"Nora has been in a marriage in which she's had an equal part in letting it fall apart," De Mornay says. "Somehow she's fallen out of love with him."

The film also illustrates the healing of a family stricken with grief. Carradine says his character goes through a harsh transformation but becomes stronger.

"He allows himself to be dominated through his marriage," he says. "He comes to the point where he has to reclaim himself, and that's certainly different than any character I've played before."

As a parent of three children and someone who has had difficult moments in relationships, Carradine, 49, says his role paralleled his life to some degree.

"I'm a parent, and I had a marriage that didn't work," says the actor, who's currently going through a divorce after 12 years of marriage. "All of those issues in the movie were very close to me. I wasn't trying to create an elaborate group of memories."

"(The Mahlers are) a family in deep crises," he continues. "But one is left with a sense of hope, not resolution. Everyone has to go through hardships, but the strength of the human spirit must go on and heal."

In the end, the film's message is that hope can survive the very difficult experience of losing a family member.

"Everyone of us has to experience the loss of a loved one," De Mornay concludes. "Hopefully not of a child, but there's a way through it even though your life is never the same."

TRIVIA

In 1976, Sarah Caldwell became the first woman to conduct at the Metropolitan Opera when Beverly Sills refused to sing without her.

Love Is in the Air at Cincinnati Pops, PBS

The time before Valentine's Day usually holds about as much romance and fun as any other bleak February day. But PBS offers a timely confection. Cincinnati Pops Holiday: Love Is in the Air. The hourlong salute to amour airs Wednesday, Feb. 10 (check local listings).

This is the latest in a series of holiday concerts by Erich Kunzel, conductor of the Cincinnati Pops Orchestra. Kunzel has much to say on the importance of such shows.

"With the NEA (National Endowment for the Arts) almost a nonexistent entity, TV is not artistic-minded," Kunzel says. "If it isn't sitcoms, it's a sports event. The arts have suffered greatly. All those wonderful programs are gone. PBS is the last bastion of presenting art in all its forms in television."

Kunzel squeezes many of those forms into this show. Besides his orchestra, there's soprano Harolyn Blackwell, pop singer Peabo Bryson, aerialist Alexander Streltsov, ballet dancers Anna Reznik and Alexei Kremnev, and jazz ensemble VocalEase.

Quite the showman, the 63-year-old conductor commands the stage of the venerable Cincinnati Music Hall. The first clues to just what sort of show follows are immediate: The stage is bathed in lavender lights. Glittery hearts and red chiffon abound, and the orchestra (and Kunzel) are clad in red.

Kunzel picked the eclectic music selections, which range from Disney to Gounod. There's Elton John's "Can You Feel the Love Tonight" from The Lion King and Leonard Bernstein's "Tonight" from West Side Story.

Soprano Harolyn Blackwell and pop singer Peabo Bryson celebrate Valentine's Day in Cincinnati Pops Holiday: Love Is in the Air Wednesday on PBS (check local listings).

TV PIPELINE

Enrico Colantoni

Q: Enrico Colantoni (Just Shoot Me) played a guy with the last name Utz on a sitcom not long ago. What was it? –Betty Maciag, Chicago.

A: He played Louis Utz, Gloria's (Jessica Lundy) ex-husband, on NBC's Hope & Gloria.

Q: My friend's brother insists that Dustin Diamond (Saved by the Bell) is the brother of Mike D. of the Beastie Boys. True? –Tara and Andrea via e-mail.

A: True.

Q: Can you help us identify a TV movie remake of the classic movie Leave Her to Heaven? –The Rainer Twins in Opp, Ala.

A: You're probably thinking of Too Good to Be True, a 1988 TV movie starring Loni Anderson, Patrick Duffy and Glynnis O'Connor.

Q: Can you tell me anything about Broadside and Valentine Farrell, two shows that aired in the mid-'60s? –C.S., Riverside, Vt.

A: Kathy Nolan, Edward Andrews and Dick Sargent starred in Broadside, a 1964-65 ABC sitcon about a group of U.S. Navy WAVES assigned to an otherwise largely male-occupied South Pacific island during World War II.

Also on ABC that season, Tony Franciosa played New York publisher Valentine Farrow (not Farrell) in Valentine's Day, a sitcom that mainly followed its title character's amorous adventures. Jack Soo and Janet Waldo co-starred as, respectively, Valentine's valet and secretary.

Q: Did Jamie Luner (Melrose Place) once play one of the children on Just the Ten of Us years ago? –Kelly Vamis, Berkeley, Calif.

A: Nice catch, Kelly! Yes, Luner played space case Cindy Lubbock in the 1988-90 ABC sitcom.

Q: Why does the Disney Channel insert commercials in all its programming and movies not in prime time? They are listed as a premium channel. –Bill T. via e-mail.

A: While the Disney Channel still has about 4 million paid subscribers, eight years ago the channel began offering itself to cable operators as either a basic or pay service. In many markets, it no longer is a premium service.

The channel still runs its Magical World of Disney movies uninterrupted, says Rich Ross, senior vice president of programming and production, but "we break all our other series because we heard ... that people need a break. And ... every (off-network) series is created with breaks.

"In the past, (the shows) often were sealed up so pacing really looked very weird."

Students Build Character, Art Skills At NMS

An art contest is held each month at Northern Middle School, sponsored by the guidance department. The purpose of the contest is to encourage the students to focus on positive character traits. The word character is used as the basis of the competition. Each letter of the word is used in turn as the first letter of a positive character trait. The word "courtesy" was the focus of the September contest.

Using courtesy as a theme, the students were challenged to produce several works, including a one-page essay, a poster, and any two- or three-dimensional design. Prizes were awarded at each grade level.

Guidance counselor Jack Settle said he asks teachers to encourage their students to participate in the contests, which are designed to use classroom skills, such as writing, and underscore positive character traits. "One our SIT (School Improvement Team) goals was to emphasize character development. This is a new program — in its first year," Settle said.

Several of the guidance staff attended a conference recently on fostering character growth within the school setting. "The speaker was Thomas Lickona, the author of Educating for Character. His ideas are the basis of this program," Settles stated.

One goal of the guidance staff is to move more into the mainstream of school life, he explained. "We want to offer a support program that the faculty will buy into. We're only in the beginning stages. Though it's in its infancy, we've been pleased with the results of the program so far," Settle noted.

February 4, 1970 - April 24, 1996

Tears were shed to heal our hearts and time has shown us the love you gave us;
Although the years go by with each passing day you have never been forgotten.
We catch a glimpse of you as a stranger passes by;
we can hear the echo of your laughter and whistle upon the wind.
As we sit with the February sun upon our faces,
we look around and see the things you liked best;
the river full of fish, and the deer feeding in a field and the wind in the trees.
We miss you.

Love,
Mom, Jim, Vickie, Keith, Dale, and Anita

SHS Students Challenged On Nutrition Issues

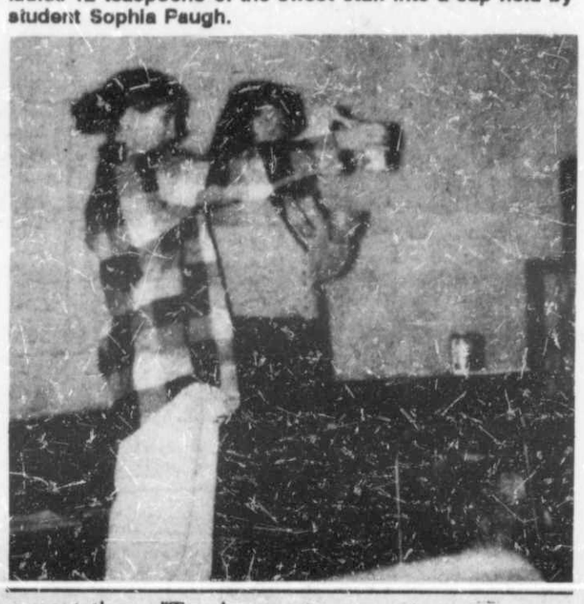
Ninth grade physical education students were challenged on their knowledge of nutritional issues when Outreach workers from the Garrett County Health Department visited classes recently. Gail Dever and Michael Gibbons presented nutritional information and tested the students' IQ on "eating right to stay fit."

A milk taste-test, similar to a Pepsi challenge, was one of the activities developed for the presentation. "The students were challenged to see if they could taste the difference between the more nutritional skim and 1% milk, and the 2% and whole milk," Gibbons explained. The results of the beverage test indicated that in most cases the students could not differentiate the types of milk.

Gibbons and Dever illustrated some obstacles to healthy eating habits created by the high level of fats, sugars, and "hidden calories" in foods and beverages. Dever demonstrated the amount of white refined sugar in a can of soda by spooning 12 teaspoons of granulated sugar into a cup. This example led to discussions of alternative beverages, providing more nutrition and fewer calories.

The health department has offered this program for several years. Gibbons explained the purpose of the presentation: "To insure that children throughout the county have the opportunity to make the right nutritional choice and lead fit and healthy lifestyles."

TASTE THE DIFFERENCE? - Most students didn't taste the difference between four cups of milk with fat contents ranging from 4% to 0%. The Milk Challenge was part of a health department demonstration at SHS recently. In the photo above, nutritionist Gail Dever records the response of Caitlin Moriarity as she sips a sample. Demonstrating that measure for measure there is more sugar in one can of soda than one might imagine, Dever, in the photo below, ladles 12 teaspoons of the sweet stuff into a cup held by student Sophia Paugh.



Long & Foster Scholarship Deadline Noted

Long & Foster Real Estate, with 130 offices in the mid-Atlantic region, reminds the general public that the deadline for applying for the Long & Foster $50,000 scholarship program is March 1, 1999. Any deserving high school senior in the firm's service area who will be attending an accredited four-year college or university in 1999-2000 and can demonstrate financial need may apply for the $1,000 individual, one-time scholarship, which will be awarded to 60 students beginning May 1, 1999.

To be considered well-rounded applicants, eligible high school seniors must have at least a 3.0 GPA on a 4.0 scale. They must also demonstrate financial need, indicate positions of leadership they held while a student, and describe in which school groups they have been involved, community organizations in which they have served, and whether they have held a part-time job while in school.

So that the selection committee can obtain a better picture of each student, applicants will be asked to write a short essay on either their most significant high school experience or their expectations for college.

Applications for the Long & Foster Scholarship Program can be obtained from any of Long & Foster's 130 residential sales offices located throughout the mid-Atlantic region, high school guidance counselors, or by accessing Long & Foster's website at www.longandfoster.com/scholarship.

A hard copy of the application and the required attachments must be mailed to Long & Foster Corporate Headquarters at the following address: Long & Foster Scholarship Program, c/o Corporate Marketing Department, Long & Foster Real Estate Inc., 11351 Random Hills Road, Fairfax, VA 22030-6082.

Schaefer Sworn In, Makes Pledges As Comptroller

William Donald Schaefer took the oath of office as the 32nd Maryland state comptroller during ceremonies in the House of Delegates Chamber of the Maryland State House in Annapolis January 25.

In assuming the office, Schaefer pledged to "continue the high level of service" offered by the comptroller's office to business and individual taxpayers and to "take advantage of his renewed opportunity to help the people of Maryland." He said he would work with the General Assembly to simplify the personal income tax form to eliminate the double computation for local income tax.

Schaefer noted that, during the transition period, he looked for ways to provide "even greater service" to businesses and to encourage economic development. "Over the next several months, we'll be detailing initiatives to create a business advocacy panel to advise us on issues concerning regulations, legislation, and all tax issues of concern to business and a problem resolution program to resolve specific problems for business taxpayers," he said.

The new comptroller also stressed the importance of helping local governments with targeted economic development projects.

"Another thing we need to do to help the local subdivisions is for the state to consider assuming the management of certain institutions where the state has heavily invested but could play a bigger management role. For example, I propose the state assume management of the Baltimore Convention Center. The state, with its greater resources, would be in a better position to market the facility and work as a partner with the Convention Center in Ocean City and other facilities such as the Rocky Gap Conference Center," he said.

Schaefer assumes control of an agency of 1,100 employees responsible for collecting most of Maryland's tax revenue, accounting for revenues and expenditures, paying state employees, regulating the alcohol, tobacco, and petroleum industries, and providing data processing services to most state agencies.

Schaefer began his public service as a member of the Baltimore City Council in 1955, was elected president of the city council in 1967, served as mayor of Baltimore from 1971 to 1987, and served as governor of Maryland from 1987 to 1995.

The time to be concerned about how to keep from using so much heating fuel is when you build. Use Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs).

SIP structures are known for their structural integrity. Nature's storms, earthquakes, tornados, etc., just need a little greater force to do the same amount of damage to SIP structures versus conventional.

Glimpse of The Past . . .

Fund-Raiser Set For Seriously Ill Local Infant

A Valentine Benefit Dance is slated for Friday, Feb. 12, from 9 p.m. to midnight at the T&B Tavern in Hutton (the old Moose building) to benefit Zendil Allen Bittinger III. Funds raised by this dance will be used to help defray the family's medical expenses incurred in young Zendil's care.

The son of Erica Nicole Bray Bittinger and Zendil Allen Bittinger, the 2-week-old infant was born with multiple heart and lung complications that will require surgery and a great deal of expert medical attention and therapy. He is currently hospitalized in the pediatric intensive care unit of Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va.

For further information interested persons may call Robin DeWitt at 301-334-4752.

Oakland's KOC Donates Funds To Support GOH

Garrett Organization for Handicapped (GOH) is a local non-profit organization which has been providing assistance for over 20 years to local citizens of all ages who live with various physical disabilities. All funds raised by or for GOH are used for citizens residing within Garrett County or for Garrett County citizens currently living elsewhere.

GOH's primary fundraiser each year is the Hike & Bike event, which draws walkers, joggers, and bikers to each end of the county every May to raise donations through sponsor pledges. Another major source of funding comes from the Knights of Columbus Oakland Council 1771, a contributor to GOH since the 1980s and which donates all proceeds of its annual Tootsie Roll drive to the organization.

Some examples of GOH's work in the community include the construction of a wheelchair ramp at Par-Matt Bowling Lanes in Oakland; the provision of interest free loans to qualified senior citizens who cannot afford security deposits for rent or payment of utilities as they move into independent living quarters; and assistance in acquiring and maintaining wheelchairs for the use of local residents and residents of the Joseph D. Brandenburg Center in Cumberland.

Alzheimer's Advocates Day Set In Annapolis

February 9 is Alzheimer's Advocates Day in Annapolis, and families caring for someone with Alzheimer's disease, or who have in the past experienced the devastating impact the disease has on individuals and their families, are being urged to join the Alzheimer's Association, western Maryland chapter, in Annapolis on that day. From 9:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m., people from western Maryland and across the state will meet with state legislators to brief them about the disease and the challenges, expenses, and heartaches faced every day by those caring for people with Alzheimer's disease.

Legislators, Alzheimer's advocates, and staff will discuss public policy issues for the current session from 9:30 to 11 a.m.; then advocates will visit their personal representatives to share their stories and information.

"Personal accounts that demonstrate the devastating personal and financial impact of Alzheimer's disease are the most effective way to persuade legislators to take action," stated Barbara Pilgram, executive director of the Alzheimer's Association. "We urge people to take the time to join us and tell their stories where it can make a difference."

An estimated 83,000 Marylanders, among them 528 Garrett County residents, have Alzheimer's disease, according to a spokesperson for the chapter. One out of 10 people over the age of 65 and half of those over 85 are affected. Nearly 32% of Maryland residents are at risk of getting the disease in the 21st century, the spokesperson said.

The 1999 Advocacy Day is sponsored by the four chapters of the Maryland Alzheimer's Association and will include a box lunch. For more information, or to arrange carpooling, persons may call the Western Maryland Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association at 1-800-696-6830.

BY THE LIGHT OF THE SLIVERY MOON? A lone skier chushes down the slopes at Wisp, where the only snow in the county can still be found. Even though the temperatures have been high, and even though nary a flake of the white stuff has been seen in days, folks can still find ribbons of skiable snow at Wisp in McHenry, where operations have continued steadily despite the warm winter. Snow is expected to make a return tomorrow and fall throughout the weekend, although forecasters say the accumulation will be a trifle. For snow lovers, this season has been a bust so far. But the winter isn't over yet, even if the groundhog couldn't find his shadow last week.

Grantsville To Get Low-Interest Mortgage Money

Grantsville was among the eight communities in the state named this week as eligible for $500,000 of state mortgage money at 4% interest. The funds will come through the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development's new HotSpot Home Ownership Initiative.

The low interest mortgage program was created to stimulate home purchases in designated HotSpot communities across the state, which are targeted by Gov. Parris Glendening's crime prevention initiatives.

Funding in Garrett County will flow through the Community Action Committee (CAC). Executive director Duane Yoder explained that the money will be available to those who qualify for the loans and wish to build in the area of Grantsville that is contiguous to the senior center. "It is a very attractive opportunity," Yoder noted.

The town of Grantsville and CAC will administer this mortgage/home owner program in partnership with Rural Housing Services, the Maryland Department of the Environment, First National Mortgage, and American Trust Bank.

The program targets low-to-moderate income home buyers through the lower interest rate, which reduces mortgage payment amounts.

Potential home buyers interested in the HotSpot program may contact the Community Development Administration at 1-800-638-7781 for further information.

LEADERS MEET AT ANNAPOLIS BREAKFAST -- The leaders of Garrett County and the state gathered together last week for a morning in Annapolis, where they breakfasted together and talked of legislative issues pertaining to the health and wealth of the Maryland mountaintop. Ernest Gregg, chairman of the Garrett County commissioners, welcomed the crowd of approximately 150 and proceeded to present a piece of Simon Pearce glass to the administration of Governor Parris Glendening and Lt. Gov. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend. Townsend accepted the item, which was a lantern made in the first production run at the new Simon Pearce plant in Mtn. Lake Park. The breakfast was co-hosted by the Garrett County Development Corporation and the county commissioners. See more pictures and information in this section of today's issue. Minor Injuries Result As Car Rear-Ends Bus

There were no serious injuries reported as a result of an accident in which a car struck a school bus. The incident, investigated by the Maryland State Police from the McHenry barrack, occurred Wednesday at 7:57 a.m. on Friendsville Road near Klotz Road.

The school bus, driven by Michael F. Van Sickle, reportedly had stopped to pick up students along Friendsville Road and was using both flashing lights and a stop sign to signal other drivers.

A Dodge Ram Charger, driven by James W. Reeves, 45, Friendsville, failed to reduce speed and rear-ended the stopped school bus. Reeves, his wife Linda, 37, and three children were taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where they were treated and released.

There were no injuries to the school bus driver or to any students on the bus.

Both Northern and Southern rescue squads responded to the scene, along with Deep Creek VFD. Police charged Reeves with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision.

USDA Gives $500,000 To Garrett Development Corp.'s Loan Fund

The United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Rural Development office has announced a $500,000 grant to be awarded to the Garrett County Development Corporation (GCDC). The money is to be used to recapitalize the Enterprise Loan Fund (ELF), which provides local funds to new or expanding businesses.

Senator Paul S. Sarbanes last week applauded the funding decision, having written to the USDA last August in support of Garrett County's application.

"These funds from the Department of Agriculture are important to the ongoing economic development efforts in Garrett County," Sarbanes said. "This recapitalization effort will result in more jobs, more economic development, and more growth for new and existing businesses throughout Garrett County."

The GCDC's ELF was originally funded in the amount of $540,000 by the USDA and other federal programs in October 1994. Since that year, the ELF has closed or obligated in excess of $660,000, including the originally funded amount, $54,000 in GCDC

Three Projects Are Selected For All-American City Application

As part of the process of Garrett County's bid for the 1999 All-America City Award (AAC), three community projects have been chosen to be featured in the county's application. The 14-member planning committee, charged with the task of selecting just three, reported that they had several eligible projects from which to choose and that the final choices were made after careful consideration.

The chosen projects are the Bausch and Lomb Recovery Project, the Garrett County Community Partnership Project, and the Ecumenical Youth Ministry. These collaborative projects will be described in the county's application for the All-America City Award, which is an annual citation, supported by the Allstate Insurance Company, that recognizes "exemplary grassroots community problem-solving and is given to communities that cooperatively tackle challenges and achieve results."

Garrett County has never attempted to earn the award, but Robert Stephens, executive director of the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families, suggested to the Garrett County commissioners last month that the county should perhaps try to achieve the designation, which is granted to not just cities, but counties, boroughs, towns, or neighborhoods. The commissioners agreed and the planning committee was appointed.

"The award celebrates vibrant, resourceful places where neighbors pitch in together; places with a diverse collection of talents and people who dwell, not on problems of the past, but on opportunities of the present and possibilities of the future," said a spokesperson for the National Civic League, which helps sponsor the AAC.

"The selection process has been a good learning experience for the committee in becoming familiar with projects going on throughout the county," said Mikal McCartney, committee member.

Projects chosen were those that apparently anticipated problems in the community and then responded to the challenges by working in collaborative and resourceful ways. The application guidelines required that one or more of the projects be focused specifically on children and youth, and that these projects could be shown to have tangibly improved the lives of the youth involved.

The Bausch and Lomb Recovery Project involved a local effort of creating and integrating services to help ease the problems associated with the closing of the county's primary manufacturing plant. This project, the committee deemed, addressed a local disaster in a comprehensive manner.

"The closing [of B&L] served as a catalyst in bringing all the different agencies, organizations, and interests together forcing a hard look at the overall situation," said James Hinebaugh, committee member and director of the county's economic development office. "Through the identification of strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and trends, a strategic plan was developed. The recovery efforts brought positive atten-

Board Of Public Works Approves Funds For DCL State Park Center

The Discovery Center project at Deep Creek Lake State Park was given a boost this week by the Maryland Board of Public Works, which approved an allotment of $148,500 from the Department of Natural Resources capital budget to design and construct an exhibit room and purchase related items. Governor Parris Glendening made the announcement about the funding yesterday.

Construction of the $1.3 million center was initiated last summer. The final facility will include a water monitoring laboratory, a multi-purpose room for education programming and public meetings, and a nature gift shop.

"When the Discovery Center opens this summer, an integral part of the facility will be the Exhibit Center," the governor said. "Each year, more Marylanders discover the beauty of Deep Creek Lake and the wild and scenic Youghiogheny River. The center will be a key tool in educating visitors about our conservation efforts and how they can protect the landscape and its native species and wildlife."

Also in the plans for the completed center are a weather station, three 50-gallon fish tanks, a three-dimensional, lighted relief map, and an audio/visual room. Adler Display Inc. of Baltimore has been awarded the contract, the governor noted.

The Elktones To Perform Benefit Concert For Dove Center Feb. 20

The Domestic Violence Sexual Assault Resource (Dove) Center's board of directors has announced the details of its next community fund-raiser. The Elktones, a singing group from Elkins, W.Va., will perform on Saturday, Feb. 20, at the Our Town Theatre in Oakland, 7-9 p.m. Tickets will be $10 each, with proceeds to benefit the Dove Center.

The Elktones, a five-woman group, have been performing for the past 10 years. From their origination around a kitchen table, they have regularly performed in area coffee houses and night clubs. The group has also entertained members of the National Organization for Women and at the International Women's Day. The singers' repertoire ranges from the blues, "doo-wop," folk, ethnic, rock, spiritual, and original compositions.

The members of the group are Margo Blevin, Jane Birdsong, Dale Thien, Diana Vera, and Pam Roberts. Blevin, who is the director of the Augusta Heritage Center, plays a washtub bass, violin, and accordion. Birdsong is a French professor at Davis & Elkins College and a copywriter for Elkins radio stations. An actress and director in community theatre, Birdsong plays guitar, autoharp, and dulcimer.

Thien is a social worker and therapist for the Barbour County Health Department and is an avid gardener. She accompanies the group on trumpet. Vera, an actress for the Old Brick Playhouse Traveling Company, is the percussionist for the group. She also plays the harmonica and writes songs. Roberts is a teacher in the Randolph County school system and a jeweler. She plays guitar and bass, and is also a songwriter. Some of her works will be performed at the local concert.

Because of limited seating, tickets are being presold at area locations. In the Oakland area, they are available at Rudy's, Marvin's Men's Wear, Proudfoot's Pharmacy, the Book Mark'et, and the Water Street Market Place. In the Deep Creek Lake area, they are being sold at Arrowhead Market and Deep Creek Body Works.

New Chamber Director Arrives; Aims To Promote An Inclusive Approach

by David Foster

Ken Wishnick, the new executive director of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, assumed his duties this week in his office located at the Garrett County Visitor's Center. He was unanimously selected by the Chamber's board of directors for the new position, which was created last fall to increase the organization's marketing, grant-writing, business development and job creation agenda, among other efforts.

With approximately 350 Chamber member businesses to serve, approximately 90 percent of which are small businesses of 25 employees or less, according to Chamber president David Moe, Wishnick's new role puts him in the forefront of Garrett County's future development. Bringing with him a wide background in business and community development in rural and urban local government, corporate affairs, and private industry, the 49-year-old Wishnick said his experiences have proven that a balanced and inclusive approach works best.

"There's a place for economic development in Garrett County, but it must be balanced with environmental and cultural concerns," Wishnick stated. "The county is still in an excellent position to shape its own future, and there's a place for everything—it just needs to be layed out logically. Success will occur only if we unite different interests in the county to form one working group to ensure economic success. There's always a balance that can be struck with the inclusion of all sides of an issue."

Wishnick holds a bachelor's degree in economics from the State University of New York, and a master's of urban planning from DAMAGE WAS EXTENSIVE to the vehicle in the photo above, which was being operated by James W. Reeves, Friendsville, when it rear ended a Garrett County school bus Wednesday morning on Friendsville Road. The driver and four family members traveling with him were injured.

DEMONSTRATING TALENT - Northern High School displayed a variety of skills and talents during the school's annual talent show, including singing, dancing, and -- what else -- comedy. Three students teamed up to present a skit billed as "a practical demonstration of applying makeup." As pictured above, the result was somewhat unusual. The face to which the makeup is being applied belongs to Malia Collins, while the unpredictable limbs belong to Kelly Carr and Jessica DeWitt. See additional photos in section B of this edition.

Local Students Winners In "Tools For Tomorrow"

Sarah Ellen Garlitz, a senior studying office occupations and business data processing at Northern High School, and Jeannine R. Meyers, a senior studying electrical engineering at Southern High School, have been named local winners in the Tools for Tomorrow All-American Vocational Student Awards program. As local winners, Garlitz, a resident of Lonaconing, and Meyers, who resides along Smouse Road, will each receive a personalized award and a $100 gift certificate from Coast to Coast, ServiStar, and True Value retailers.

Garlitz and Meyers were selected from a group of more than 3,200 from across the country to be honored as two of only 2,000 local winners who will now advance to the state judging round of the competition. Manor Builders Supply, Mtn. Lake Park, is sponsoring both of the local winners.

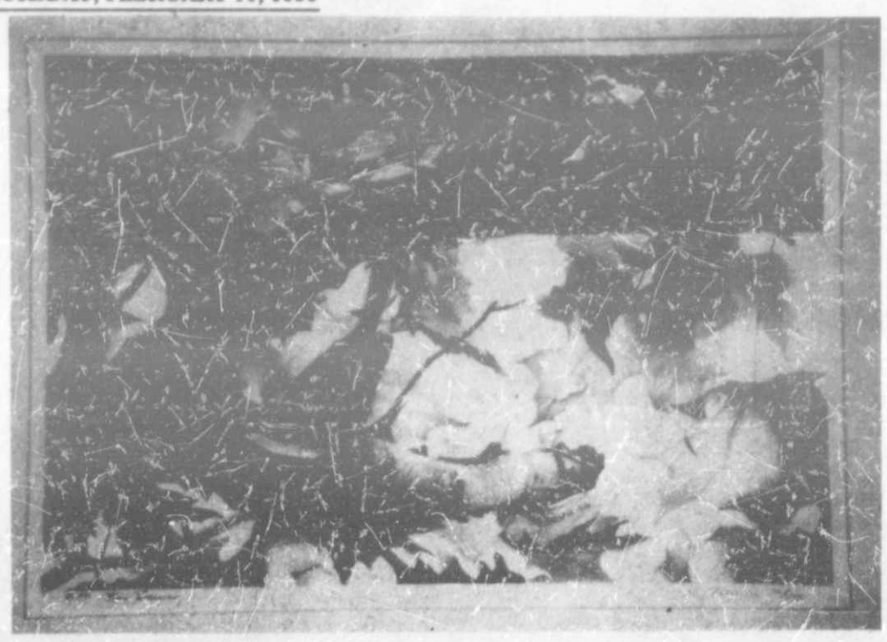
"We are proud to sponsor these young women," said Ray Mattingly of Manor Builders Supply. "They represent the high caliber of today's vocational-technical students. From what I can see, the workforce of tomorrow is in good hands."

Since its inception in 1992, Tools for Tomorrow has honored more than 12,000 students with over $1.5 million in scholarships and awards. This year, more than $270,000 will be awarded to outstanding vocational-technical students on local, state, and national levels. The All-American Vocational Student Awards recognize high school students who achieve standards of excellence in vocational and academic skills, and who exhibit leadership in their communities.

A nationally acclaimed program supporting vocational-technical education, the All-American Vocational Student Awards is only one part of Tools for Tomorrow. In addition to sponsoring winners in the awards competition, participating Coast to Coast, ServiStar, and True Value retailers provide discounts and donate materials to vocational students, offer internship opportunities, and spearhead community service programs.

Following the local judging round, one All-American Vocational Student Award winner will be chosen in every state, territory, and the District of Columbia. Each state winner will receive a $1,000 Career Advancement Award and move on to the national judging round. This award can be used for post-secondary training and education or toward the purchase of equipment and/or tools from a Coast to Coast, ServiStar, or True Value retailer. State winners will be announced in March.

In early March, the Tools for Tomorrow Advisory Board, composed of executives from national vocational and leadership organizations, corporations, and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, will meet in Washington, D.C., to select 10 national winners. The national winners will receive a $2,000 Career Advancement Award and an all-expense-paid trip in late April to Atlanta, where they will be honored at Coast to Coast, ServiStar, and True Value's spring convention.



"CAROLINA WREN," a limited edition print by local artist Ken Bauer, with framing provided by Artworks in McHenry, will be just one of the many items available for auction at this year's Habitat for Humanity Sparkles and Sweets benefit. In addition to the silent auction, Sparkles and Sweets, scheduled for February 19 at 8 p.m. at the Will O' the Wisp, will feature a wide assortment of desserts provided by area restaurants, bakeries, and caterers, and musical entertainment by DJ Dave "Mr. Z" Zimmerman. Advance ticket holders may enjoy one of three selected dinner options for two at the Will O' the Wisp for $25 per couple. Tickets are $10 per person and are on sale at the Book Mark'et, Water Street Market Place, the Habitat office at 104 E. Center Street, and at the door. Proceeds benefit Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, which strives to provide decent, low-cost housing in Garrett County for those in need. For more information, persons may call Dana Winters, executive director, at 301-334-9431, ext. 113.

Police Arrest Oakland Man In Cumberland

Maryland State Police, Barrack C, LaVale, arrested Gary Allen Ferguson, Oakland, following a motor vehicle accident in Rawlings on Monday around 11 p.m.

The police officer reported that he obtained a warrant for the arrest of Ferguson on charges of driving while intoxicated, hit and run, destruction of property, driving on a suspended license, and reckless driving.

An attempt was made by police to serve the warrant on Wednesday at a residence along Old Willow Brook Road. Ferguson reportedly resisted arrest. Subsequent investigation of the residence led to the discovery of CDS/paraphernalia, police said.

Following his arrest Ferguson was taken before a district court commissioner.

Grantsville Man Faces Charges Of Assault, Stalking

Troopers from the McHenry barrack and the state police Family Violence Unit served an arrest warrant February 3, on Ernest E. Shugars, 36, Grantsville. The suspect was charged with first degree burglary, two counts of second degree assault, three counts of harassment, three counts of violation of a protective order, and stalking.

Investigating officer Sgt. James Hovis of the Family Violence Unit reported that Shugars was taken into custody without incident and ordered held in the Garrett County Detention Center on a bond of $25,000.

The charges stemmed from a domestic violence incident, which occurred between January 1 and January 25, Hovis reported.

MLP Man Charged With Felony Theft Of Payroll Check

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation yesterday in connection with the theft of a payroll check from Browning's Foodland in December.

James Gregory Ford, 19, has been charged with two counts of felony theft, forgery, and uttering a forged document. After allegedly stealing the check from the Weber Road grocery store on December 29, Ford then forged the owner's signature and cashed it at the Mid-Towns branch of First United Bank and Trust, according to the charging statement.

Ford was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting a $1,000 bond.

In other ongoing investigations, GBI personnel are seeking information on the theft of a variety of power tools from Sisler Lumber Company that occurred between January 23 and 25. Three Stihl chainsaws, several Chicago pneumatic air wrenches, two grinders, a number of Snap-On tools, a circular saw sharpener, and a log chain were stolen from the Maryland Highway business.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is investigating the theft of a pair of Dynastar 3.1 skis from the Wisp ski resort that occurred on the night of January 20. The skis are valued at $450.

Any persons with information about these or other incidents of criminal activity are urged to call the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911. The Garrett Bureau of Investigation may be reached at 301-334-1909.

Special Seminar Scheduled For Local Retailers

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is coordinating a seminar designed for local retailers on the challenges and strategies facing rural retailers in the 21st century. The seminar, to be presented by three Frostburg State University Department of Business Administration professors, is designed to provide insight into competing with large, discount retailers, as well as other conditions facing rural retailers. It will address the changing environment of retail merchandizing, the impact of large, chain discount retailers on small, independent stores, and some strategies available to the independents to help offset initial losses to the chain discounters.

"Any retailer knows the problems a local merchant has when large chains enter a small local market," said Chamber President David Moe. "Sole proprietors cannot purchase their products at anywhere near the same price that major discount chains can and some of the time they can't even buy products for the price the discount chains are selling those products."

The three professors leading the presentation have more than 73 years of combined practical and academic experience in the retail industry. They will alternate between the History of Discount Retailing, Business Environmental Changes Nationally, What Draws Customers to Large Organizations, and Strategies to Respond to the Changing Retail Environment.

"If local retailers try to compete by price alone, they will not survive." Moe said. "The historical lessons show that, to survive and prosper, local independent retailers must create a niche or provide a service that major chains and discounters don't have. In that way they can benefit and capitalize on the customer draw that major national chains attract."

The seminar will be held Friday, Feb. 19, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Oakland City Hall. A $25 per person fee will be charged at the door to cover the cost of the seminar.

Car Fire Leads To DWI Arrest Of Oakland Man

An Oakland man was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) and violation of an alcohol restriction after his vehicle caught fire south of Loch Lynn early Saturday.

Frederick Edward Helbig, 18, was driving his vehicle eastbound on Steyer Mine Road just east of Gorman Road at approximately 12:10 a.m. when he noticed fire coming from the rear of his Subaru Legacy. He was able to stop and exit the vehicle safely, and the Gorman Volunteer Fire Department responded to extinguish the fire.

Deputies from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office investigated the fire, and after determining that Helbig was apparently intoxicated they placed him under arrest. He was subsequently released on his own recognizance.

funds, and accumulated repayments.

According to Criss Kepple Sweitzer, chairperson of GCDC, the corporation has served as a catalyst for the allotments of over $4,000,000 of owner equity and private investment; $3,382,000 from local banks; $471,000 from the Tri-County Council Revolving Loan Fund; $1,710,000 from the Small Business Administration's 504 Program; and $75,000 from Maryland's Defense Adjustment Loan Fund.

Sweitzer said this funding helped in the creation of three new local businesses and the expansion of four companies, potentially yielding 183 new jobs and retaining 107 existing jobs. She noted that no other local financing program has contributed as much to the growth of Garrett County's economy.

"The recapitalization was essential to the ongoing economic development efforts of the development corporation and the county," Sweitzer said. "At the time of the recapitalization application, there were no local funds available for new or expanding businesses until the current outstanding obligations were repaid.

"I believe that the establishment of glass maker Simon Pearce in Garrett County and the recent expansion of many existing companies is evidence of an emerging positive economic trend," Sweitzer continued. "With the recapitalization of the ELF, the development corporation can continue to help meet the funding needs of these new and existing enterprises."

tion from state and federal officials, which created the ongoing relationships we have today."

The committee also reported that the recovery sparked regional economic development discussions and served to spur Garrett County's active participation in "One Maryland," a legislative proposal of Speaker Casper Taylor aimed at developing better funding strategies for distressed counties.

The Garrett County Community Partnership Project, known as Vision to Scale, is a locally driven strategic plan for improving the lives of children and families in Garrett County. The project team was reportedly able to secure funding and support for seven goals for local families: gainful employment with benefits, family-based systems coordination, early childhood home visiting, after-school child care and recreation, mental health service monitoring, school drop-out prevention, and information technology planning.

Current programs either initiated or supported as a result of Vision to Scale include MicroWorks, Healthy Families Garrett County, Individual Development Accounts, the Garrett County Summit, alternative high school classes, interagency data collection, Family Violence Coalition Data Mart, and a child care recruitment plan.

The Ecumenical Youth Ministry (EYM), a group funded by the Episcopal, Catholic, and Lutheran churches in Oakland, involves youth in yearly programs in which Christian ministry is woven into performing and visual arts activities. The ministry's membership is drawn from diverse segments of the population because of its appeal to young people from all walks of life. EYM projects help to develop leadership skills, preparing young people for their future, the committee reported.

Since the beginning of the project in the fall of 1995, over 15,000 people have attended performances or have participated in EYM events. Each of the projects selected by EYM attempts to improve the community's social and economic situation.

If Garrett County would win the All-American City Award, the planning committee members have stated that the achievement would "capitalize on civic pride."

New Director

Texas A&M University. His first professional position in his field was an eight-month stint beginning in 1974 as the economic development planner for the Kiamichi Economic Development District, based out of Wilburton, Okla., a town of 2,500 in the heart of the Choctaw Indian nation.

"I prepared the Choctaw tribe's first overall economic development strategy plan," Wishnick recalled, "helping their members find ways to capitalize on land owned by the tribe while preserving their way of life. We subsequently secured over $5 million in implementation funds from the U.S. Economic Development Administration that we used for industrial park development and tourism-related programming.

Among Wishnick's subsequent positions, he served as executive director for the Department of Planning, Development, and Government Affairs for Cumberland County, N.J. A mixed rural/urban county in the southern part of the state situated between Atlantic City and Philadelphia, Pa., Cumberland County had an unemployment rate of over 18 percent of its 130,000 residents when Wishnick arrived in 1977, and he was instrumental in whittling that figure down to 7.4 percent over a three-year period.

"We were hit pretty hard when a number of large glass factories were forced to close because of environmental regulations. We went after and got over $10 million in grants for county initiatives, one of which involved matching our suddenly unemployed workers up with the booming casino hotels of Atlantic City.

"We created training programs that provided folks with the skills they needed to compete for a variety of jobs at the hotels and casinos, the majority of which were not on the gaming floors, but more oriented to public relations, security, and housekeeping. This program had an overwhelming response, and we found jobs for over 2,000 people through it.

"Another major strategy we undertook was to implement a training program for our small and medium-sized retailers to show them how to make connections with, and actually introducing them to, purchasing representatives for large public and private institutions, including the U.S. military and the casinos of Atlantic City.

"We also created a working relationship with Sweden, capitalizing on our history of Swedish settlements and the heritage of many of our residents. 'New Sweden USA' helped a number of Swedish firms and businesses come to Cumberland County and employ our residents."

After departing from the county government position in 1985, Wishnick entered the private sector as a divisional vice president for Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI), one of the east coast's major solid waste disposal and recycling firms.

Acknowledging the challenges of such work, especially in environmentally conscious times, Wishnick said "In my work with BFI, I showed that I can work well in controversial situations. As company spokesperson in eight states and eastern Canada, I had to negotiate resolutions to issues concerning legislation and regulation, facility/neighbor disputes, activist organizations, and the media. I successfully sited seven solid waste facilities, each of which involved bringing together very divergent groups, communicating honestly and directly, and offering the integrity needed to give people the faith that we would conduct our operations just as we had promised."

Wishnick left BFI after 12 years in 1997 to purchase Imprintations, a promotional products and uniform making factory in Owings Mills. He and his wife Fran took the struggling business and built it up, "relying on creative marketing strategies," and making the connection for his customers, many of whom were operating family businesses, that his business was a family-run company as well.

Arriving on Monday for his first day on the job here in Garrett County, and interviewing with The Republican that same afternoon, Wishnick declined to comment on some of the more controversial aspects of recent Chamber activities, saying he needed time to study the issues of highway proposals and mega-retailers, as well as tourism promotion, job creation through new businesses, and development of existing businesses.

"I have some ideas of my own, and I want to hear what other people, Chamber members as well as all others who are interested in Garrett County's future, have to say about our development issues," he said. "My role as executive director is to advise and counsel the Chamber's board of directors, and they'll be setting desired outcomes based on my and my staff's advice and guidance. Ultimately, they will set the Chamber's course."

Married for 26 years, Wishnick and his wife Fran have two children—Lindsay, who begins college this coming fall, and Craig, who is currently in the ninth grade. Fran Wishnick is a founder of the Howard County Conservancy, a preservation group that acquired donations of land for conservation purposes, and she also made a run for the Howard County School Board at one point.

"Garrett County is beautiful," said Wishnick as he looked out his office window to observe skiers coming down the slopes of the Wisp. "We're excited to have the opportunity to come here and start a new life."

Defending Philip Morris...

The tobacco industry took a major hit yesterday when a California jury ordered the Philip Morris Companies to pay $51.5 million to a woman who suffers from inoperable lung cancer as a result of smoking cigarettes. The plaintiff became a smoker at age 15 and was smoking three packs per day when she finally kicked the habit two years ago at age 51. Part of her allegation was that the tobacco company "misled her" about the dangers of smoking.

Never before would this writer believe he could ever or would ever utilize this column to defend a powerful, cold-hearted, interested-only-in-profits company whose products kill thousands of people every day. Tobacco companies have always been such a no-holds-barred target for us.

However, we have also written several times about how our society is rapidly taking on a blame-someone-else attitude for our own deeds. Too many of us see ourselves as nothing but victims of someone else's actions toward us, thereby absolving us entirely of our own responses and responsibilities. The woman involved in the above case knew full well two years ago about the extreme dangers of smoking; it said so right on the pack, and the information about the dangers of using tobacco products was absolutely voluminous. But she kept right on buying and using the product. No one held her down and put the cigarettes in her mouth. It's similar to a Russian roulette player deciding to sue the gun-maker after a bullet shatters his skull.

We realize that nicotine addiction is far more powerful in some people than in others, meaning that quitting the habit of smoking is extremely difficult for those with the most severe addiction. But millions of people, with varying degrees of addiction, have quit the habit.

Even though we conclude that Philip Morris should not have to pay Patricia Henley over $50 million, we do believe our government can do a whole lot more in working toward the eradication of tobacco products. The industry continues to target young audiences, which should be illegal, and the government continues to subsidize tobacco farmers when necessary. It also does nothing about the immoral exportation of billions of cigarettes to third-world nations, where millions of other young people are getting hooked, becoming sick, and dying because of it.

In all probability, yesterday's award will be overturned upon appeal. Perhaps a better approach would be to pass legislation that would force the tobacco industry — rather than insurance companies and, ultimately, us consumers — to cover the medical expenses of those persons who become ill because of smoking, with the smoker picking up at least part of the tab. Putting things entirely in monetary terms is something the tobacco industry clearly understands.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The Grantsville folks need to be writing and calling the following people to let them know that they want a new library for Grantsville: Martha Makosky, director of Ruth Enlow Libraries of Garrett County; Mayor Gerry Beachy; Garrett County Commissioners Fred Holliday, Ernest Gregg, and Wendell Beitzel; and Governor Parris N. Glendening. Let these public officials know your concerns about desperately needing a new Grantsville library. Let's have some teamwork, Grantsville, instead of complaining to each other all the time.

Thank you,

To the Editor:

This is to the handful of people in Oakland who are against the Wal-Mart coming to town. I was in N. Versailles, Pa., last weekend where they just happened to have opened up a new Super Wal-Mart. I checked with management and found out they employed 400 people, 60% (240) of which are full-time. I don't think that small group of protestors could even begin to come close to claiming they have anywhere near that kind of impact on this county's employment picture. The majority of people drive out of the county to do Wal-Mart and mall shopping on a regular basis. How can anyone deny this county the revenue and jobs from this major company?

I think it is safe to say that we could count on Wal-Mart staying once it got here, which is not something you could say for Simon Pearce (not that we're not glad it is here - right now).

Nancy Clayton

Dear Mrs. Clayton,

The "handful" of people to which you refer features an enourmous hand.

To the Editor:

First, let me express my appreciation to you and your staff for the excellent paper you put out every week. My family and I look forward to Thursdays, and sometimes wish you would publish bi-weekly. (With Garrett County growing at such a rapid rate, could that be in your future?)

But today I am writing to express my disappointment with the lack of pictorial coverage of the Southern Mat Club. Although I have seen numerous photos of the older wrestlers, there has not been one picture of the younger boys. These young lads work their hearts out, and they and their coaches deserve some recognition in the community. (Yes, I have an ulterior motive. You see, I am a grandmother who has promised to keep a scrapbook of my grandson's accomplishments, but to date I have been hard pressed to find anything good to put in it — not because he hasn't excelled, because he has, but because of lack of coverage.)

How about some nice photos of the Southern Mat Club members before the season ends?

Bertha Stevens
Swanton

Dear Ms. Stevens,

First of all, thank you for your compliment of our newspaper. We're pleased that you look forward to receiving it each week.

As to your disappointment about the lack of photos of the Southern Mat Club, we must explain that we have a relatively small news staff and only one full-time photographer. There are also scores of youth athletic teams in the county, all playing/competing simultaneously, depending upon what particular season it is. Right now, there are numerous youth basketball and youth indoor soccer teams playing, plus the Southern and Northern youth wrestling teams, plus the girls' and boys' basketball teams at Northern, Southern, and GCC, plus the wrestling teams at Northern and Southern. Soon we will add the baseball, boys' and girls' track and field, girls' softball, and boys' and girls' tennis teams at both high schools, plus baseball at GCC. We routinely publish photos of all of these teams/players.

We also work extremely hard to be fair in our coverage. For example, we try to have as many photos of youth in the northern area of the county as those of youth in the southern area of the county. We simply do not have the staff, the time, the financial ability, nor the space in the newspaper to be able to cover each and every local youth athletic team. As the younger athletes mature, however, and eventually reach the high school ranks, they ultimately do receive photo coverage if they stick with their sport.

We also accept as many photos as possible taken by other people and mailed or dropped off to us. Last year a number of photos of the Southern Mat Club winners were provided to us and I believe we published every single one of them. If you or another parent/grandparent could provide such photos, we would gladly publish them provided we have the space that particular week.

Sincerely yours,
Editor

P.S. We have no plans at this time to go bi-weekly.

To the Editor:

This is a letter in regard to most of the businesses in Garrett County and surrounding areas. I have applied for many jobs in and around Garrett County for the last few years. I am unable to get hired and to be able to prove myself in any of the jobs that I have applied for because no one will give me a chance. I am willing to work and work hard if given the opportunity. What does a person have to do to get hired in Garrett County?

Many of these businesses claim to be an "equal opportunity employer," but I don't think they are. If they were, I would not feel like I am getting discriminated against because of my size and my weight. For the people that don't know me, I am about 250 pounds overweight. Put yourself in my shoes. What would you do if you were my size but wanted to work? I am a person who wants to work and is willing to work, but cannot get hired.

I would like to have a chance to prove myself in the workplace. I would like to work and to have some of the things I want, such as a family. I would be willing to so any kind of work. So, to the employer, please look through your application, find my name, and give me a call.

Sincerely,
Stewart Otto

To the Editor:

I have read time and again about the state and federal governments imposing tax after tax on cigarettes.

These taxes are going to be used for everything but what they should be used for — helping the smokers kick the habit. Do you know how expensive these different "helps" are? If the smoker is lucky enough to have insurance that covers Zyban prescriptions, then he or she might be well on the way to kicking the habit. If not, the smoker must pay out-of-pocket costs of approximately $100 a month, for three months, and hope that it works. Take that cost and add it to the $2.00-plus for a pack of cigarettes, and smokers alone are helping to reduce a good chunk of the national debt.

The patch was prescriptioned, but isn't any longer. The smoker can only hope the approximate $30 spent for the patch as often as it is needed will work.

Since we have clinics that help people get off drugs and alcohol, why isn't there help for any smoker who wants it? It is an addiction, one that requires help to conquer. Taxes on top of taxes are not being put on alcohol because drinking is socially acceptable. Yet alcohol kills a lot of people, and so many young people are drinking because it is what everyone else does.

Why don't we help the smokers kick their habit with all the cigarette taxes so that we can all breath a little better, instead of taking one segment of our population's addiction and building federal highways, state buildings, and other political projects? Our governments seem to be shopping until the smoker drops. Then who pays?

Sincerely,
Virginia Hensley
(a non-smoker)

To the Editor:

Every year over 20,000 Maryland children become addicted to tobacco, of whom more than 7,000 will die prematurely because of this addiction.

The Maryland Children's Initiative, a grassroots tobacco-free youth movement endorsed by 350 state and local organizations and 93 elected officials, has targeted its efforts at increasing the state's excise tax on cigarettes and extending the tax to other tobacco products. This tax will significantly decrease the number of children who become addicted. Studies have shown consistently that increasing the cost of tobacco products is the single most effective way to reduce youth tobacco consumption.

Experts note that for every 10% increase in the cost of cigarettes, the number of teen smokers drops by 7%. In addition to reducing teen smoking, the measure will help to recoup the $1.5 billion spent annually caring for addicted smokers. According to Vincent DeMarco, executive director of the Maryland Children's Initiative, "For every dollar of cigarette taxes paid by smokers, the state chips in an extra twelve dollars to care for smokers who are sick and dying."

Governor Glendening, pledging to endorse the Maryland Children's Initiative early in the gubernatorial race, has been loyal to his campaign promise by allocating a proposed $1.00 increase in the 1999 Budget plan. This tax legislation will be heard on February 17, at 1:30 p.m. before the Senate Budget and Tax Committee. Successful implementation of the proposed increase will bring an estimated $3 million per year in additional state revenue.

Several local organizations have been leaders in the statewide initiative and will clearly advocate that revenues be directed to tobacco and drug cessation, accessible and affordable after-school programs, and community managing for results. Local endorsers will have their voices heard through testimony and a letter campaign. The public can join in the local efforts by writing Senator Barbara Hoffman, Chair, Budget and Tax Committee, at 100 James Senate Office Building, Annapolis, MD 21401.

PRESIDENTS' DAY REFLECTIONS: I

It seems that the scoundrel who has presided over one of the most corrupt administrations in American history will complete two terms in office as one of the most popular presidents in American history. For the first time in my life I am proud to be a Republican while simultaneously being ashamed to be an American.

Whether by plan or happenstance — from the human point of view — the coincidence of President Clinton's trial with Lincoln's birthday is deeply ironic, colored by tragedy. Slick Willy lives today in the same house in which Honest Abe once lived.

The American people have consented in the protection of Clinton and, by the poll results anyway, are furious with those who have presumed to prosecute the president for what nearly everyone agrees are wrongdoings. What has happened to us? My two conclusions are that 1) moral relativism now prevails and 2) Americans are drunk with prosperity.

Lincoln has always loomed large in my imagination. I recently listened to a biography of Lincoln by Stephen B. Oates, titled With Malice Toward None.

As the Clinton trial has lumbered toward conclusion, I have been thinking a lot about Lincoln, and, specifically about Oates's portrayal of him. I thought I knew a lot about Lincoln, and, in certain ways, I did. Other pieces of his history eluded me.

How was it, for example, that someone who was basically a state legislator with only a single two-year term in the U.S. House of Representatives became president in one of the most critical moments of our history? The Lincoln-Douglas debates, however significant, fail to account adequately for Lincoln's sudden emergence as leader of the republic.

The answer is that, though he held federal office only briefly, through his partisan activities, first as a Whig and later as a Republican, he was active on the national stage. Party stalwarts in all the states which were to make him president knew him prior to 1860.

The other two parts of the answer also have their roots in partisanship. There was resistance to the front-runner for president in his own party. In the Democratic party there was an out and out split between the northern and southern branches of the party.

Those are important points for me to acknowledge because, besides Clinton's own abysmal character, what I have disliked most in the impeachment process has been the rabid partisanship shown on both sides. I am one with the opinion of Washington, who held that the interests of party are nearly always inimical to the interests of the nation as a whole.

To realize that these two greatest of our presidents, Washington and Lincoln, disagreed fundamentally on the issue of party is important. Washington would almost certainly not have become president in a partisan context and Lincoln, clearly, could not have become president without it.

What would Washington and Lincoln have thought about the impeachment and trial of Bill Clinton? Both men would have been appalled at Clinton's abuse of the presidency for his own self-protection. Washington would have condemned the partisanship of this Congress just as he condemned partisanship then in his farewell address.

What Lincoln would have thought about the partisanship I am not so sure. He understood and used party loyalty to advance an agenda for the common good as he understood it. How would he have regarded senators such as Trent Lott, whose half-heartedness in these proceedings has been frustrating, or such as the many Democrats who once said that Clinton should resign, but then pronounced he should not be removed from office?

Bill Clinton is no Washington and no Lincoln. Clinton is popular as maybe only a genuine scoundrel can be. Once again I am out of step with the majority of my countrymen. On the subject of Bill Clinton, I am proud of the company I keep. That is little consolation, but for the moment it will have to do.

To the Editor:

I've read articles about the actions of the county commissioners — editorials about the commissioners' actions. People are talking and asking questions.

Questions like, how come they turned down the Dove Center when they asked for help? Where did the "mismanagement of money" come from? Who gave out this information? Was there a question and answer period with the people from the Dove Center? Didn't any of the other commissioners ask questions?

It sounds to me that the commissioners need to examine things closer, ask some questions, and talk to people currently in charge of the Dove Center — Get the straight story, not a one-sided story; talk to people around town; talk with the local police, sheriff, and state agencies about the Dove Center.

In the meantime, the three sitting at the big desk in this big office in our building — that's right, our building; we the taxpayer, paid for it. We also paid for the big desk, and we pay your salaries. I think you work for me. That's what you said when you ran for office.

If a person's vote places a candidate in office, does it work in reverse? Wouldn't it be nice if a person could remove his or her vote and the elected official would be removed from office?

All I ask is for the commissioners to be fair. Give the people coming before you a fair shake. Listen to them, hear their plea, ask inquiring questions, and take the time to listen. We, the taxpayers, listened to your plea for votes. We endured campaign commercials. But we, the taxpayers and voters, listened. You know we, the voters, heard you because you've been elected to office.

So when the people from the Dove Center arrive or ask for an audience, listen to the person or persons before you. They're not asking for the world. All they want is a fair shake.

William Taylor

Dear Mr. Taylor,

The Commissioners did meet with the director of the Dove Center, and they did ask questions. Whether or not they really listened remains unclear.

To the Editor:

The 11th annual memorial service commemorating people in Maryland who died as a result of domestic violence was held February 8. The theme for this year's event was "Reaffirming the Power of Community."

In Garrett County, this power and sense of community has revealed itself in the outpouring of support for the Dove Center, the county's domestic violence shelter. In the past quarter, the Dove Center has been home to six families — families who otherwise would not have been afforded safe refuge in Garrett County.

The affirmation and power of community must be a continual process as we assure safety for our community's families. And, as so aptly put in last week's editorial, we have a long way to go.

According to December's police reports, the Sheriff's Office received one domestic complaint, five domestic assaults resulting in four arrests, two arrests for violation of protective orders, and a total of 12 ex parte and protective orders were issued and served. The State Police report that during the past quarter, there were a total of 16 cases with five arrests.

While these numbers might be surprising to some readers, consider that this is only a small glimpse into the total family violence problem in Garrett County. Factor in child abuse and neglect, elder abuse, exploitation of vulnerable populations, and overall emotional abuse, and you get a little closer to a focused picture of family violence.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES AND "WHOLEWHEAT WORDS" were shared last Thursday morning at a legislative breakfast in Annapolis. Hosted by the Garrett County Development Corporation (GCDC) and the county commissioners, the event was attended by numerous state and local officials, who met to discuss issues related to the 1999 legislative session. Shown above at the breakfast, left to right, are Senator John Hafer, former commissioner Gary Fratz, and Delegate George Edwards. Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend was a special guest of the event, and she is pictured in the above right photo as she addressed the crowd. She spoke about the leading role Garrett County often takes in such areas as child and family services, noting her appreciation of Bob Stephens at the county's Office for Children, Youth, and Families. She said she loves to visit the mountaintop to take her children hiking, skiing, and canoeing. "There are great opportunities for tourism and for manufacturing in Garrett County," she said. "Obviously you've had some very tough times, though," she went on, mentioning the closing of B&L as well as infrastructure needs and unemployment troubles. Townsend said she is pleased about the Simon Pearce plant opening and proud to have been part of the state's decision to offer $500,000 from the Sunny Day Fund to make the plant possible. She spoke about several developments in the county and about the potential for growth. "Garrett is an incredible gem in our state," she said. In the photo with Townsend, seated left to right, are Commissioner Fred Holliday, Speaker Casper Taylor, Edwards, Commissioner Wendell Beitzel, and James Hinebaugh, director of the Garrett County Department of Economic Development. Criss Keppie Sweitzer, chairperson of the GCDC, coordinated the event and stated that she and the corporation members were pleased to see such an impressive turnout at the breakfast and were appreciative of Townsend's attendance and her "willingness to hear questions and comments about the promotion and well-being of Garrett County." Sweitzer said the GCDC hopes to make the breakfast an annual event, as it was in years past. She noted that the program, held in the Loew's Annapolis Hotel, was complemented by several displays of local projects and companies, including Simon Pearce, Mountaineer Log and Siding, the Deep Creek Brewery, the Rock Winery of Friendsville, and the Chamber of Commerce. The speakers for the program also included James Hinebaugh and Dr. Stephen Herman. "We've heard nothing but positive comments about the breakfast," Sweitzer said. Garrett County Chamber of Commerce UPDATE

Home of Deep Creek Lake

A TIME FOR NEW BEGINNINGS
by David Moe

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce begins 1999 with a beautiful view of the slopes at Wisp in the new Garrett County Visitors Center. The past 18 months have been challenging, as we've reorganized and moved into our new building. Our new executive director, Ken Wishnick, is now on board and has begun organizing for promising activities in the coming months.

Mr. Wishnick has an excellent background in administration, marketing, and economic development. We believe he will be invaluable in helping this organization reach our goals. One of the core values and goals of the Chamber, and one we believe we share with other community leaders and the community at large, is the need to promote the continued improvement in the quality of life for all citizens of Garrett County. Equally important, the Chamber leadership understands the need to preserve those assets that make our county a great place to live and work.

A number of new initiatives will help our organization reach these goals. First, this Chamber Update column in The Republican will keep the community informed about the goals and current activities. Secondly, we are sponsoring a "Chamber on the Move" radio spot in coordination with WKHJ Radio on a monthly basis to announce plans, events, and matters of public concern. Thirdly, we plan to promote community involvement and participation by sponsoring periodic events at the Visitors Center and other locations in Garrett County, specifically designed for those in the county.

For example, we are coordinating a seminar designed for local retailers on the challenges and strategies facing rural retailers in the 21st century, to be held at the Oakland City Hall February 19 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at a cost of $25 a person. The evening of March 10 at Garrett Community College, we are co-sponsoring with the Small Business Administration (SBA) and Senators Barbara Mikulski and Paul Sarbanes an educational seminar on the new federal program that designates Garrett County as a Historically Underutilized Business Zone (HUB-Zone). This program can provide significant benefits to businesses seeking to do business with the federal government. And lastly, a program for middle school students is now under way at the Wisp to promote the value of tourism in our county, while giving each student a chance to experience the great sports opportunities our unique county affords.

We encourage any business in our county to join our efforts to promote economic development, strengthen the county's tourism destination profile, and support local, state, and federal initiatives designed to help business succeed and prosper in Garrett County. If you are interested in learning more about the Chamber or chamber committee involvement, please call the office at 301-387-6171.

Help Needed To Prepare, Deliver Easter Dinners

Volunteers are being sought who are willing to share Easter dinner with a frail elderly person by preparing and delivering the dinner to a homebound person within the community. The project is sponsored by Community Action's Area Agency on Aging.

The frail elderly individuals would be identified by staff at the Agency on Aging and the names given to volunteers. The volunteers would take the dinner to the older person on Easter Sunday. This would provide a hot meal and company for the homebound person on a holiday when he or she might otherwise be alone, explained Ronnie Padmos of the Agency on Aging.

This is the second time the agency has organized the holiday meal delivery by volunteers. "The program was very successful at Christmas for our isolated home delivered meal clients, so we decided to extend it to Easter Sunday," Padmos said.

To volunteer for this program, persons may contact the Area Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431 or toll free at 1-888-877-8403.

ports and services we have realized some success; however, this success is undervalued and undermined by the perpetuation and sanction of myths concerning family violence. These myths include:

MYTH: Most family violence occurs in lower class or minority communities.

FACT: Family violence occurs at all levels of society, in all classes and communities, regardless of social, economic, or cultural backgrounds.

MYTH: Family violence does not occur in predominantly religious communities.

FACT: Family violence is prevalent in all social institutions. Some religious communities may even incite family violence through their misguided "legalisms" and inappropriate application of scripture (for example, "spare the rod..." translates into it is okay to beat your child and "women submit to your husband" translates into wives, accept everything).

MYTH: Battered women can and should leave their violent relationship.

FACT: Many battered women do leave violent relationships. However, many factors come into play in that decision: economic dependency, children, love, fear, and the support of friends and family. Perhaps the most serious factor is the increased risk to a woman's safety once she has decided to leave. More than 50% of serious injury and 75% of murders happen at or after the point of separation.

The incidence of family violence occurs more than any one of us wishes to admit. Family violence is not a women's issue, it is a human issue. The only remedy is through prevention and intervention. And, the very best each of us can do is something.

Sincerely,
Susan Athey-Oxford

Avoid Infections and Misuse of Antibiotics

The improper use of antibiotics such as penicillin, ampicillin, erythromycin, or clairithrocmycin can lead to the creation of new strains of bacteria that do not respond to these medicines. Another misuse of antibiotics occurs when outdated antibiotics are used indiscriminately at home for new problems such as a runny nose or a continuing cough.

It is always best to have a physician evaluate each illness independently to determine the cause and best treatment. If antibiotics are needed, take them as prescribed. Complete the entire course of therapy to prevent a reoccurrence of the infection.

The best way to avoid infections is to stay healthy by eating well-balanced meals, drinking plenty of fluids, and getting adequate rest. If dietary habits are less than ideal, ask your pharmacist and physician about a good vitamin and mineral supplement. Also, remember to wash your hands often.

Oakland Update

by Mayor Asa McCain

Guess Who's 150?

We are. That's who. This is the 150th year that our town has been in existence, and I'm hoping that some of you will loan your time and expertise to help us decide how best to celebrate. We've set a meeting for Thursday, Feb. 25, at City Hall to come up with plans for a big birthday bash. If you join us at 6:30 that evening, we can all put our heads together and plan for a birthday worthy of our history. It would be great to have some of you who have always wanted to help a town celebrate itself be a part of this planning. It's a good year to have a celebration. We're about to start work on the train station that has long been a part of us. So join us and help us with ideas for this unique event.

And For The Next 150 Years?

The night before we meet to plan celebrating our history, we want you to help decide our future. Join us on Wednesday, Feb. 24, for a 6:30 p.m. meeting in the Oakland fire hall, where we'll all lend a hand in shaping how we want our town and its environment to look for the next 150 years (or at least form our vision of what we want to be for the next 10 years). We need your input. This gathering is sponsored by the Oakland Main Street Program and the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA). It will feature a presentation by Cindy Stone, coordinator of the Main Street Maryland Program. The Garrett County Economic Development Corporation, the Garrett County Commissioners, and the mayors of all of our region's towns have been invited. You're invited as well. We need ideas and visions of our future from everyone.

Marching Towards Election Time

March is Oakland election month, so it's getting to be time to start thinking about the next town election, scheduled for March 8, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The last day to file to run for one of three town council seats is Feb. 26 by 4 p.m. Any resident of Oakland, age 18 or over, may register to vote for the municipal election at Oakland City Hall during regular office hours until 4:30 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 26. The town of Oakland maintains a separate register of voters; however, if you have registered at the Board of Election Supervisors after January 1, 1990, and are a resident of Oakland, you are automatically qualified to vote in the municipal election.

Deadline for obtaining absentee ballots is Monday, March 1, at 4 p.m.

I'm Not The Cable Guy

There has been much frustration expressed over increases in cable rates. Much of these rises in basic cable service have come about on the heels of deregulation in the industry (which ironically was supposed to have just the opposite effect). My suggestion is to contact the folks who make the laws overseeing the communications industry. And here's a brief list of where to start:

Hon. Barbara A. Mikulski, U.S. Senate, 709 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510. Phone: 202-224-4524, Fax: 202-224-1651. E-mail: senator@mikulski.senate.gov

In Memory of
Leroy J. Guthrie
Feb. 10, 1931 - Sept. 4, 1997

Dad, you weren't only my father,
you were my best friend.
There isn't a day that goes by that I don't recall the fond memories of you.
You worked hard all of your life paving the roads for me to run on.
Now, I wait my turn, for God to bring me home, to walk the golden road you are building for me in Heaven.

Happy Birthday, Dad

Lakers Win Two Of Three As Fields Breaks 1,000-Point Mark

The Garrett Community College Lakers won two of three games this past week, and in a 79-75 Maryland JUCO loss to Montgomery-Rockville Saturday at GCC, sophomore Michael Fields became only the fifth player in Laker history to break the 1,000-point level. After that defeat, the Lakers came back to whip Potomac State College on Monday for the fourth time this season, 87-75, in Keyser, and record a 100-91 victory over visiting Essex Community College at McHenry last night to avenge an earlier loss to that team.

Fields, who was a standout at Allegany High School in Cumberland, led the Lakers' scoring in all three contests and now has a total of 1,052 points for his career at Garrett.

A pair of free throws by Lungi Okoko with just eight seconds left in the game secured Montgomery-Rockville's four-point win over the Lakers on Saturday. The score was knotted at 32-32 at halftime, but the Lakers fell behind by as many as 14 in the second half and, despite several rallies, could never quite regain the lead.

The visitors carried the momentum halfway through the second half and were up by a 59-45 margin with about 10 minutes to play. The Lakers then chipped away at the lead and, when Benitez Jackson connected for a three-point bucket with less than two minutes to play, Garrett trailed by just three, 73-70.

Rockville baskets by Dan Scott and Okoko put Rockville back on top by seven, 77-70, but Michael Fields drained a long-range shot for the Lakers and Dexter Levi followed with a two-pointer to make it 77-75. With just 10 seconds to play, the Lakers went for a steal and fouled Okoko in the process, setting him up for his winning free throws.

Okoko led Rockville in scoring with 18 points, Adrian Stewart recorded 14 points and nine rebounds, and Scott finished with 10 points. Hollis Johnson dished out five assists and had five of his team's 15 steals.

Fields paced the Lakers' scoring with 17 points, and Charles Somerville had 16 points, 13 rebounds, and four blocks. Also reaching double figures were Jackson with 13 points and Levi with 12. Lioneil Sewell was credited with six assists.

The win gave Rockville a 16-5 record.

"Mistakes at crucial times really cost us, just like in the game against (nationally ranked) Dundalk last Wednesday (which the Lakers lost, 78-76)," stated Coach Dennis Gibson. "We didn't play well against their press, and didn't get back on defense fast enough."

Monday's victory over Potomac State College halted a nine-game winning streak for the Catamounts, as Fields and Lionell Sewell led the charge with 22 and 21 points, respectively. Twenty-nine of their points were recorded in the second half, after the Lakers were down at intermission, 42-34.

The Catamounts came into the game with an impressive 17-4 record, but three of their four losses were all to the Lakers in previous encounters this season, meaning Garrett recorded a four-game sweep over the Keyser team.

The Lakers took advantage of a cold spell by the Catamounts in the early minutes of the second half, as the home team didn't score a point until five minutes were expired. The Lakers maintained a lead of six to eight points most of the rest of the way. PSC cut the lead to three points on a bucket by Chad Drennen and a steal and a jam by Drennen late in the game, but the Catamounts could get no closer.

The Lakers actually won the game at the foul line, from which they converted 25 of 29 attempts (86 percent), with Fields making good on 12 of 13. Fields also pulled down 12 rebounds and had four steals, while Sewell had 10 assists to go with his 21 points. Levi also grabbed 12 rebounds and blocked a pair of shots.

Pacing five Catamounts in double figures was Fred Jackson with 16 points. Mike Gibson recorded 14 points and 10 rebounds, Drennen had 13 points, 12 rebounds, five steals, and three blocks, Corin Turner finished with 12 points, six steals, and six assists, and Chad Branson contributed 10 points and 11 rebounds.

Last night's game was the final home contest for Garrett's four sophomores, and Michael Fields decided to go out with a bang, as he poured in 29 points. Coach Gibson started the game with all four sophomores — Fields, Lionell Sewell, Josh Bunnell, and Tucker Fry — on the floor.

The contest was close from the opening tip-off, with Garrett up by just a point, 45-44, at halftime and the score knotted at 82-82 with about three minutes to play. But that's when the Lakers went on an 18-9 spurt to seal the victory.

Fields hit 11 field goals and went 7-for-10 at the foul line for his total. Benitez Jackson and Charles Somerville finished with 15 points each, Sewell netted 14, and Dexter Levi contributed 10.

Pacing Essex, a team that defeated the Lakers by one point earlier in the season, was Antoine Martin, who scored 26 points. Robert Hall and Dante Penniz were right behind with 24 points each.

"This was a big win against one of the best offensive teams we've faced this year," said Gibson. "It was a great way for our sophomores to conclude their home careers."

The win improved the Lakers' overall record to 14-9 and their JUCO mark to 7-8. They will play a make-up game this evening against Montgomery-Takoma Park and travel to Charles CC this Saturday to conclude their regular season. The Maryland JUCO Tournament will get under way next Wednesday at Baltimore City CC.

Preston Places Second In W.Va. Gymnastic Event

Local gymnast Laura Preston traveled to West Virginia's state capital last weekend to compete in the Maverick Invitational at the Charleston Civic Center.

Preston captured first place, with a 9.15 and 9.025 on floor exercise and bars, respectively. She also earned third place honors on both vaulting and balance beam events, scoring 8.05 and 8.55. These scores, combined, gave her second place in the all-around standings.

The West Virginia Gymnastics Training Center G-Force Optional Team, based in Morgantown, will travel to the Northstars Invitational in Pittsburgh in two weeks.

Lakers Bomb Baltimore CC, But Fall To CCAC-Allegheny

The women's basketball squad of Garrett Community College stretched its win streak to five games with a 79-38 pasting of Baltimore City CC on Saturday, but the streak was snapped two nights later at CCAC-Allegheny when the Lakers were downed 52-44. The week's action leaves Garrett with a 12-7 overall mark, and a 9-5 standing in JUCO play.

In routing their visitors from Baltimore, the Lakers jumped out to a 38-12 halftime lead on the way to the 41-point victory. Erica McBride led the way with 20 points, hitting for 14 points in the second half. McBride's scoring tally included a pair of three-point buckets, and she pulled off four steals as well.

Chrissy Lambert scored 13 points and dished out six assists, while Anna Shelton added 10 points for Garrett. Mindy Sypolt scored nine points, and Andrea Barrick pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds and blocked five shots.

"I was pleased with this effort after a week's layoff," commented Lakers coach Ann Wellham. "McBride's leadership took charge in the second half for us."

Baltimore's Chevilla Crenshaw and Rhonda Harris each scored 10 points for the Red Devils, while Katina Johnson contributed nine points.

At CCAC-Allegheny Monday night, the Lakers scored a season-low total of 44 points in the losing effort. GCC scored only 20 points by the end of the first half, yet were down by only a five-point margin at the opening of the third quarter; yet the Lakers stayed cold as the hosts began finding their range in the second stanza.

"We came out flat and stayed that way for both halves," Wellham said. "We had trouble taking charge and played very timid."

Lambert led GCC with 13 points, while McBride scored 12 points. Barrick snagged eight rebounds and Tasha Blackmon had six rebounds. Shelton had five steals and three assists.

Kathy Pflueger scored 13 points and took down 11 rebounds for the Allegheny.

THE NBA HAS JUST BEGUN its season, and many sports fans are also looking forward to the upcoming high school and basketball post-season tournaments, but the Garrett Community College baseball team is busy preparing for its season opener, slated for February 20 at Bridgewater College. Over the past 25 seasons GCC has fielded many successful teams and individual players, as over 20 have signed professional contracts and two have received NJCAA All-American honors. For the past seven seasons, the Lakers have posted 25-plus wins per season. Three of Garrett's alumni are currently pitching in the minor leagues, including Tom Darrell, pictured below with GCC coach Ed Wildesen. Darrell is playing in the California Angels organization. Coach Wildesen attributes much of the Lakers' success to the program's "rich history and alumni support." This past fall, former GCC players competed in the annual alumni game under the newly erected lights at the McHenry campus. Pictured above from left, kneeling, are: Ed Wildesen, Lawrence Nesselrodt, Aaron Cook, Richard Goad, Bruce Erminio, Phil Carr, an unidentified player, and John Helmick. Standing, same order, are: Paul Fisher, Jason Fitch, Tom Darrell, Rick Swanger, Brad Dillinger, Clinton Wybel, Allen Reed, Kevin Bloom, unidentified, Tom McDermitt, D.G. Largent, Ted Sova, and Phil Caruso. Pre-season information about the Lakers' 1999 squad will be published soon.

Nicole Bey had 11 points and 17 rebounds. Kathy Symechak had 11 points and three steals.

The Lakers are scheduled to travel to Hagerstown for a Saturday night match-up, and Wellham noted that her squad is attempting to work out a make-up date against Montgomery-Rockville as well.

Pen-Mar League Will Consider Wood-Bat-Only

The Pen-Mar Baseball League is considering adopting a wood-bat-only proposal in its 51st consecutive baseball season. The league will be holding a meeting on February 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Keyser's Ridge McDonald's. Team and league officials will consider the wood-bat-only proposal at this meeting.

The Pen-Mar League consists of seven teams from three states. The Maryland teams are Cumberland, LaVale, and Oakland. The Pennsylvania entry is from Hyndman, and the West Virginia teams are Bridgeport, Fairmont, and Morgantown. Oakland was the 1998 champion, with Fairmont taking the runner-up spot.

"Tradition plays a significant role in the success of the area's oldest semi-professional baseball league. The Pen-Mar League has an impressive list of former players that have been or are now in Major League baseball. John Kruk, Leo Mazzone, and Sam Periozzo are three of the most prominent former Pen-Mar players," stated league president John Culp.

Long-time league officer Terry Helbig commented, "The prospect of the Pen-Mar League going to a wood-bat-only league has some promising potential. The league presently has a lot of college baseball players and, with many conferences already going to wood bat only, if the Pen-Mar League elects to make this change this season, we would be on the forefront of a significant change in the game."

Culp added, "This is just a proposal now. We will be discussing this matter at the February 17 meeting and decide if this proposal is feasible for the 1999 season. With or without a wood-bat-only change, the season promises to be another competitive and exciting one."

Anyone interested in the league or the wood-bat-only proposal may contact Helbig at 800-662-6573 or Culp at 301-334-6023.

219 Motors And Condoerr Win In Mt. Top Contests

The Aquatic Center was unable to contain 219 Motors' Joe Refosco in the paint Sunday afternoon in a Mt. Top Unlimited Basketball League match-up, as Refosco recorded 29 points to lead 219 to a 64-57 victory. Center Jared Beckman paced the Aquatic Center with 28 points, while Mike Fazenbaker led 219 Motors' outside game by nailing six three-pointers for his 18 points.

The second game pitted league leaders Midas and Condoerr against each other, but the game proved to be an easy win for Condoerr, as Dennis Gibson led the way with 28 points. After building a 38-28 lead by halftime, Condoerr kept Midas at arm's length the rest of the way and finished with an 83-70 win. Poke Winters netted 20 for the winners, while Jason Brenneman paced Midas with 28 points. Midas had to play without its top scorer, Greg Inglese.

The schedule for this Sunday calls for Dawson Trucking to play Condoerr in the 3 p.m. game, and Aquatic Center to meet Midas in the 4 p.m. contest.

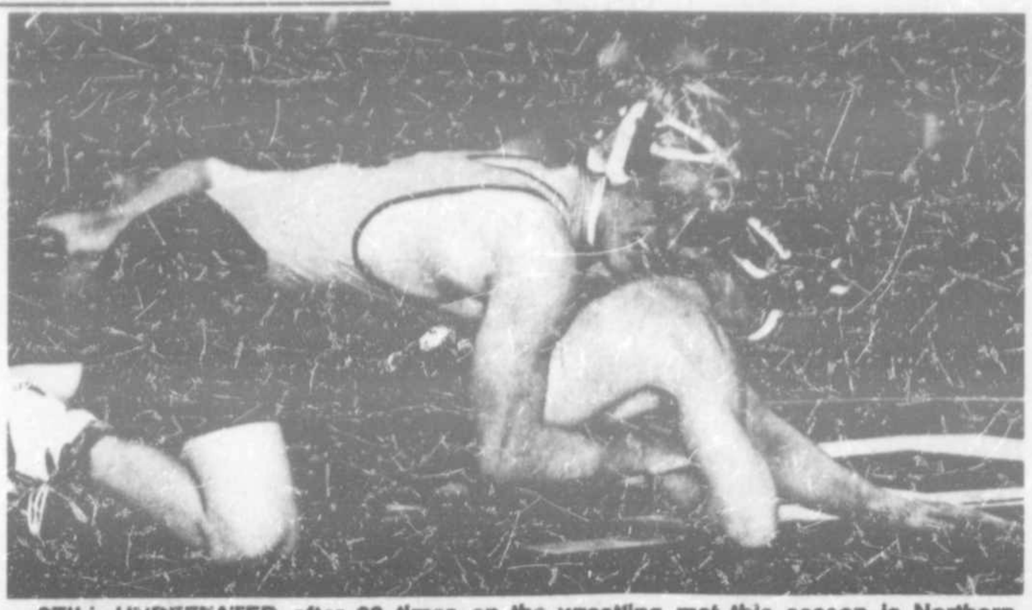
Huskies Eighth At Bedford, Win Dual Meet Championship

After wrapping up a second straight 14-0 regular season with an easy win over Fort Hill last Thursday (see separate story), the Northern High School wrestling team captured eighth place among 23 outstanding teams that competed in the annual Thomas Chevrolet Bedford Tournament on Friday and Saturday, and then garnered first place last night at home in the Maryland West Region Dual Championships.

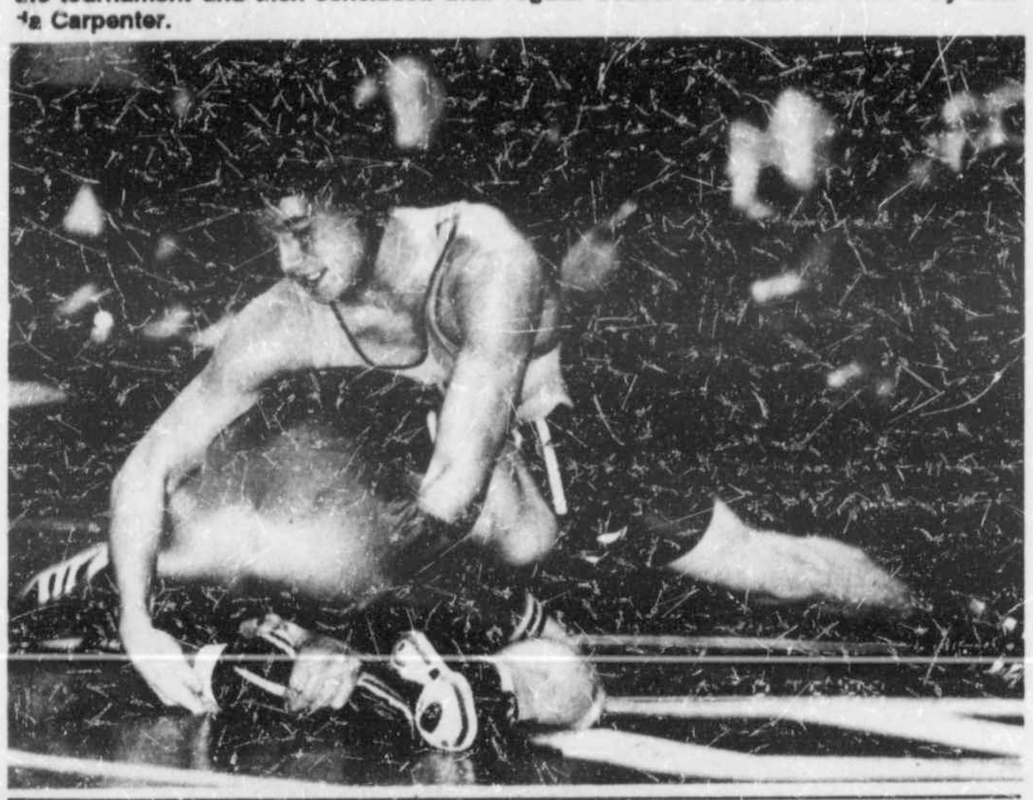
Coach Scott Stough's Huskies will be favored to win next week's Bi-County title (Feb. 20) and will be the top-ranked team going into the Regional 1A/2A Tournament Feb. 26-27.

Jesse Shimrock, who has gone unbeaten in 26 matches this season, was the champion in the 140-pound division at the Bedford Tournament, while teammate Mark Wolf, who is only a sophomore, finished second in the 152-pound division.

Shimrock was only the second NHS wrestler to ever win a title in the Bedford tourney, as Cody Brenneman was the first two seasons ago. Shimrock pinned Aaron Peterson of North Star in 2:33, pinned Thayer Paxton of Berlin High School in 3:30, recorded a 5-2 decision over Patrick Dennison of Beth Center, and finally earned a 9-4 decision in the championship round over New Oxford's Bruce Clabaugh.



STILL UNDEFEATED after 26 times on the wrestling mat this season is Northern High School's Jesse Shimrock, pictured above, who captured first place in the prestigious Thomas Chevrolet Tournament in Bedford, Pa., last week when he decisioned Bruce Clabaugh of New Oxford High School in the finals of the 140-pound division. At right is Northern's Matt Wolf, a sophomore, who has also had an excellent season and earned the runner-up award at Bedford in the 152-pound division. Below, Husky Brandon Stein controls Luke Vitolo of West Greene High School a 125-pound bout and goes on to earn fourth place in that division. The Huskies placed eighth as a team in the tournament and then concluded their regular season undefeated. Photos by Wanda Carpenter.



Wolf just missed winning the 152-pound title by a single point, 2-1, as he lost to Adam Paronish of Penn-Cambria High in the finals. To reach the championship round, Wolf earned an 8-2 decision over Mike Kemock of Central Cambria, decisioned Matt Villdeneuve of Berlin, 8-3, and won by a 6-4 margin over Brent Onstead of Chestnut Ridge in the semi-finals.

Other Huskies who placed among the top eight were: Brandon Stein, 125-pound, fourth place; Roy Holliday (112), Adam Brenneman (145), and Matt Kauffman (160), all in seventh place; and Matt McNees (119), eighth place.

New Oxford won the team title with a total of 135 points, followed by Lampeter-Strausburg with 129, Somerset with 126.5, Tri-Valley with 125.5, Penn-Cambria with 119.5, Northern Schuyikill with 118, West Greene with 114, and the Huskies with 109. Berlin finished ninth with 105 points, followed by Beth-Center with 94.5, Cambria Heights with 86, Forest Hills with 80.5, Chestnut Ridge with 78.5, Fort Cherry with 75, Conemaugh Township with 65, Bedford with 62, Central Cambria with 55.5, Hyndman with 53, Richland with 47.5, Newport with 42, North Star with 40, and Jefferson-Morgan with 35.

In last night's Dual Championships, the Huskies rolled over Williamsport, 44-21, in the semifinals and then got by North Hagerstown in the championship round, 34-27.

Against Williamsport, Northern pins were recorded by Blake Huber (103), Holliday (112), Shimrock (140), Wolf (152), and David Wampler (189), while Stein (125), Paul Beitzel (135), Brenneman (145), and Kauffman (160) were all decision victors.

Earning pins for Williamsport were Wayne Boward (130) and Jared Myers (171).

North Hagerstown was one of the best teams faced this season by Northern, but the Huskies built a large lead by winning seven of the first nine matches and then held on for the seven-point team victory.

Getting pins for the Huskies were Huber, Matt McNees (119), and Shimrock, while Holliday, Beitzel, Brandon Kamp (135), and Wolf all won on points.

North Hagerstown finished with just one pin, by Jeff Seidman (189), and decision wins by Paul Toomey (125), Mike Dempsher (145), and Thomas Horton (160). Winning by injury default were Ryan Romberger (171) and E.B. Wallech (275).

The Huskies went on to finish in eighth place in the prestigious, 23-team Thomas Chevrolet Bedford Wrestling Tournament, and finished first in last night's Dual Meet Maryland West Region Championships, held at the Cove. (See separate story.)

Fort Hill got pins in the final two matches from Chris Barb (189) and Nathan Weaver (275).

The Huskies will be the favored team going into the Bi-County Tournament on February 20.

ries were a 61-31 rout of host Westmar and a big 50-39 win over a talented Romney Junior High squad.

The Rams led Preston most of the game, and had an 11-point advantage going into the fourth quarter. The Knights came out in that final stanza with a zone press that frustrated the Ram offense and resulted in a Preston lead with just eight seconds left in the game. They held on for the one-point victory.

Bryson Meyers and Mike DeWitt combined for 23 points for the Rams, while Harry Hayes led the Knights with 10 points.

Ricky Reams netted 21 points to pace the Rams over Westmar, and Sid Bittinger and Kenny Peck each finished with 10 points for the Wildcats.

The Rams, coached by Jon Hegeman, wrapped up their 1998-99 campaign with their best effort of the season against Romney, as the West Virginia team was the dominant freshman squad in the area. Chad Panther and Joel Helbig combined for 26 points to lead the Ram offense, while D.R. Parsons and Eric Martin paced the defense.

"This was a great team win," Coach Hegeman said. "Our practices, led by Brian Hauser, Jeremy Durst, J.B. Murphy, and Ryan Upole, enabled us to prepare well for a quality team like Romney."

Rams Lose Heartbreaker To Fort Hill, Dominated By No. 1 Alco

It was a tough week of WMIL play for the Southern girls' varsity basketball squad, which was gunned down by a last-second basket at Fort Hill last Thursday that put the hosts up 44-42, followed by a 64-31 shellacking at the hands of Allegany's Campers Monday in Oakland. The action gives the Rams a 7-10 overall mark and a 5-5 WMIL heading into tomorrow night's home 7:30 p.m. match-up with the number one Class AA team in West Virginia, Tucker County. The junior varsity game will begin at 6 p.m.

It was nip and tuck throughout the contest with Fort Hill, as the Rams dueled their opponents to a 20-20 tie at the half before the Sentinels took a 34-31 lead into the fourth quarter. With 45 seconds to go in the game, Ashley Liller's free throw put the Rams up 42-40, then Jennifer Vance hit a jump shot for Fort Hill to knot the score once again.

With 17 seconds remaining and the score still tied, a Southern turnover put the ball in the Sentinels' hands, and the hosts worked the clock down to 8 seconds before calling a timeout to plan out their inbounding strategy. Emily Coyle took the inbound pass, cut down the lane, and dished off to Jessica George along the baseline, who sank the game-clincher with less than one second to play. The Rams were left in a hopeless spot, as they took possession with 9/10 of a second remaining, and their hopes expired with the clock.

Jessica Saturday led Southern with 12 points and five rebounds, Charlena Reeves added seven points, and Becca Gangler and Liller hit for six points apiece. Fort Hill's Coyle scored 10 points, while her teammates Vance and George each scored eight points.

The Rams' junior varsity team fell by a score of 43-31, despite the fine play of Jennifer Bosley, who racked up 17 points. The undefeated Sentinels' squad was led by 15 points by Stacey Simpson.

Allegany came into Oakland on Monday night riding an 11-game winning streak, but were met with stiff Ram opposition in the Huskies Trounce Hancock, Beall; Winners Of Last Four Of Five

The girls' varsity basketball team of Northern High School have put together a three-game winning streak after downing Hancock 59-46 and destroying Beall 50-31. The Huskies, who have won their last four of five contests, are one game away from a .500 mark, with an 8-9 overall record and a 4-6 tally in the WMIL.

Northern pulled away from Hancock early in its Thursday night contest in Washington County, going up by a 14-6 margin at the end of the first quarter, increasing its lead to 28-18 at the half, and going up 45-30 at the opening of the final stanza. The hosts' futility in stopping the Huskies' onslaught was exemplified, as three Hancock players fouled out during the evening, while not a single Northern player was benched by the referees whistles.

Heidi Frazee led all scorers with 22 points, as the junior Husky guard connected for nine field goals and hit all four of her free throws. Classmate and fellow guard Heather Nugent scored 14 points as she hit three field goals, two from three-point land, and sank six foul shots. Junior guard Mimi Harvey and senior forward Jackie Brenneman scored eight and seven points, respectively.

Hancock's Lauren Younker led her squad with 16 points, followed by 11 points from Karla Golden.

The Huskies blasted the Beall Mountaineers back to Frostburg Monday night by 29 points, as Heidi Frazee and Nugent combined for 40 of Northern's 50 points. The hosts, who only led by a 17-12 margin at the half, exploded in the second half by outscoring Beall 33-19.

CELEBRATING OUR NINTH ANNIVERSARY!

THE BEST EFFORT OF THE SEASON by an individual player against the Southern High School Rams was recorded by Northern High School's senior center Dustin Long last Friday night, who is pictured above putting up two of his game-high total of 32 points in the second meeting of the year between the two county rivals, played in Oakland. His points, plus a game-high 13 rebounds, were not enough though, as the Rams recorded a 73-61 victory. Also in the photo above, from left, are Northern's Jed Wilhelm (#11) and Southern Rams John Andrews (#20), Mike Paesani (#24), Mike Pamepinto (#33), Mike Browning (#44), and Nathan DiSimone (#10). The Rams, who also defeated Beall Tuesday, are undefeated in Western Maryland Interscholastic League play (11-0) and have an overall record of 13-3, while the Huskies, who topped Westmar on Tuesday, are 5-5 WMIL and 11-7 overall.

Rams Still Perfect In WMIL With Wins Over Huskies, Beall

Still perfect in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League are the members of the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team, as Coach Tom Bosley and the Rams recorded two more WMIL victories this past week, including a 73-61 win over visiting county rival Northern on Friday and an easy 63-30 drubbing of Beall on Tuesday, also in Oakland.

The pair of victories upped the Rams' overall record to 13-3, and guaranteed them at least a tie for the WMIL championship. Southern shared the league title with both Allegany and Fort Hill last year, which was the first season that the Rams ever participated in the league. A loss by Fort Hill at Allegany this Friday, or a win by the Rams over Fort Hill the following Friday, will give the Rams sole possession of the 1999 WMIL title.

The Northern Huskies, who gave the Rams all they could handle the previous Friday at the Cove, came to Oakland with upset still on their minds, and they were competitive from the opening tip-off. Cold shooting was displayed by both sides early, as the Rams hit only two of their first 16 shots and the Huskies connected on only one of 11 attempts in the first quarter, which ended with Northern on top, 5-4.

Both teams calmed down in the second stanza and began to find the mark, with senior center Dustin Long leading the way for the Huskies, and seniors John Andrews and Mike Paesani pacing the Rams. Southern built a 29-24 advantage by halftime, and led 44-38 after three quarters.

The Huskies were forced to foul late in the fourth period, and the Rams took advantage of that situation, making good on 14 of 16 free throws in the quarter.

Andrews and Paesani led Southern in scoring with 20 points each, while point guard Nathan DiSimone finished with eight points.

Long, the area's second leading scorer, had the best individual performance by any player against the Rams this season, as he ripped the nets for 32 points and grabbed 13 rebounds. Craig Kamp also reached double figures with 15 points.

The loss dropped the Huskies WMIL record to 4-5 and their overall mark to 10-7, but they broke a three-game losing skid Tuesday with a win over Westmar (see separate story).

The Southern junior varsity won its 11th game in 15 starts in the first game, 37-21, over the Northern jayvees.

Coach Bosley gave all of the Rams an opportunity to play against Beall on Tuesday, and all of the Rams scored in the contest, with Paesani leading the way with 16 points and being the only player in the contest to reach the double-figure level.

The Rams led by only two, 10-8, at the end of the first quarter, but out-scored the Mountaineers in the second stanza, 17-2, to take a 27-10 lead into the locker rooms at halftime. They kept the momentum in period three to build a commanding 49-18 advantage by the end of the quarter.

Leading Beall in scoring were Jeremy Smith and Tom Leasure, who finished with eight and six points, respectively. The loss was the ninth in 17 games for the Mountaineers, who are 3-6 in the WMIL.

again by hitting for 22 points for the second game in a row, Frazee also pulled down 10 rebounds, had 10 steals, and hit one three-pointer. Nugent complemented her teammates' efforts by scoring 18 points, two baskets coming from three-point range, and recording game high totals of an amazing 16 assists and eight steals.

Cheri Simmons scored eight points, and Sarah Lashley and Angel Spataro scored seven points each for the visitors.

Beall won the junior varsity game, but details were not available.

Northern takes to its Accident court at 7:30 p.m. tonight against Flintstone, then the Huskies will host Mt. early going. Unintimidated by the guests' number one ranking, Southern went up 12-10 after one quarter, but a 20-9 run in the second stanza put the Campers up 30-21 at the half. A 20-2 Sentinel run in the third quarter took the score to 50-23 at the opening of the final quarter.

"That was a tribute to their defense and our cold shooting," commented Southern coach Don Stemple. "You make just one little mistake, they're good enough to capitalize on every little mistake."

Liller's nine points led the Rams in scoring, followed by eight points from Jessica Lemley and six points contributed by Saturday.

Allegany's Tracey Little led all scorers with 18 points, and her seven rebounds put her over the top as she broke the career rebounding record for the Campers. The 5'10 junior finished the contest with 601 career rebounds, surpassing the previous school record by a single pull-down. Fellow Camper Cassie Murray added 16 points, seven rebounds, and six assists.

The Rams also fell in the junior varsity contest, 57-39. Bosley put on a Jordan-esque performance on both ends of the floor, hitting for 15 points and clearing the boards for 18 rebounds, but Alco's Kathy Corthron led her team to victory with 26 points.

After taking on Tucker County tomorrow night, the Rams travel to Frankfort for a Monday night contest, host Beall Wednesday night, then close their regular season on the road at Preston on Friday, Feb. 19. Varsity tip-offs are at 7:30 p.m., preceded by the junior varsity contests, which begin at 6 p.m., except for the Preston game, which will pit each school's freshman players against each other, also at 6 p.m.

Huskies Rebound After Loss To Rams By Caging Wildcats

After dropping a game to the home-standing Southern Rams last Friday evening (see separate story), the Northern High Huskies broke a three-game losing streak this week by defeating host Westmar, 75-69, in overtime Tuesday evening. The Western Maryland Interscholastic League victory evened the Huskies' league mark at 5-5 and upped their overall record to 11-7.

The Wildcats led at the end of the first two quarters of the game, 16-11 and 24-23, before the Huskies slipped in front, 46-44, by the end of the third period. The game was knotted at 58-58 at the end of regulation, but the Huskies outscored the home team by a 17-11 margin in the extra period to earn the victory.

Eleven of the Huskies' overtime points came on 21 free throws, with the other six recorded on three buckets. Craig Kamp paced the Huskies' in scoring with 19 points, including 12 from three-point range, while Rob Dozier was right behind with 18 and Tim Umbel finished with 10.

The Westmar defense did an outstanding job against Dustin Long, the area's second leading scorer, as he was limited to just eight points, well below his average of about 25 ppg. Long ultimately fouled out of the game.

The Wildcats, who are 4-13 overall and 2-9 in the WMIL, were led in scoring by Josh Glass with a game-high 21 points. Luke Thompson and Rick Parish each finished with nine.

The Northern junior varsity was edged in the preliminary game, 40-37. A.J. Thomas scored 15 to lead the Huskies, while Bubba Wills netted a game-high 21 for the jayvee Wildcats.

The Huskies will play again this Friday at Turkeyfoot and will host Bishop Walsh next Tuesday.

PAYBACK

Rated R - Running time: 1:41

I'm not usually a fan of movies whose main element is gunfire, but I have to admit that Brian Helgeland's background as a writer (L.A. Confidential, Conspiracy Theory) helped him immensely in his big-screen directorial debut. Payback is his adaptation of the novel The Hunter by Donald E. Westlake, which was also the inspiration for 1967's Point Blank. Starring Mel Gibson playing another tough guy with a strange sense of humor (his trademark), Payback is not just a showcase for Gibson's one-liners and marksmanship. It is populated by quirky characters who are more than a little fleshed out. Though not as off the wall as the type of folks who populate Quentin Tarantino's films, and not as well developed as those in films by Coppola or Scorsese, this group is actually fun to watch, and the story is complex enough to be interesting.

Gibson is Porter, a professional thief and all-around bad guy. We are shown this by an opening sequence where he steals from homeless people, uses stolen credit cards to purchase illegal weapons, and has lunch in a diner without leaving a tip. After collaborating with a friend named Val Resnick (Gregg Henry) to steal $140,000, he prepares to split the money 50-50. But Val wants more than $70,000, because he has an outstanding loan with the crime syndicate of which he is a member, so he shoots Porter and leaves him for dead. But Porter is not dead, and that is Val's mistake.

Porter spends the rest of the film working his way up the corporate ladder of the syndicate to get his 70 grand. After finding Val (with a high-priced, sado-masochistic prostitute named Pearl, played to the hilt by Lucy Alexis Liu), he reunites with an old girlfriend (Maria Bello) who helps him find Val's bosses. He meets the cool and collected Carter (William Devane), the brash and countrified Fairfax (James Coburn), and finally, the top tamale himself, Bronson (Kris Kristofferson). Regularly eluding the henchmen and brazenly threatening the bosses, he amazes everyone by his relentless pursuit of a mere $70,000. Meanwhile, he also must evade the guys from whom he and Val stole the money, and a couple of crooked detectives who demand part of the booty in return for not blowing the whistle.

Gibson, like many actors, has made a profitable career playing the same character over and over. Though William Wallace (Braveheart) was a nice departure, his Porter is a warmed-over version of Riggs (Lethal Weapon), who was a cleaned-up version of Mad Max. But maybe the fact that his company, Icon, produced Payback made him see to it that the film had a well-balanced cast. Helgeland's script has him performing super-human stunts when he has been beaten, shot, and blown up, but the careful balance between action and humor does a great deal to make it a film that is worth watching.★★★★

SIMPLY IRRESISTIBLE

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 1:35

Though he has a reasonably respectable resumé as producer, including such quirky films as Serial Mom and The Man Who Knew Too Little, Mark Tarlov made a grave error when embarking on Simply Irresistible, his first outing as director: He collaborated with two people on their first outing as writers. Though the film contains some tasty visuals and slightly amusing characterizations, its script (by freshmen Judith Roberts and Elisabeth Robinson) is clearly its weakest link. And star Sarah Michelle Gellar isn't much stronger. A graduate of the head-tossing school of acting with no depth and the emotional palette of a tunafish, Gellar is not suited for the romantic lead--I don't care how cute she is.

She plays Amanda Shelton, the chef at a floundering New York restaurant called The Southern Cross. Though the place has been there for ages, originally owned by Amanda's mother who made it a success, it is doomed to closure for lack of business. See, Amanda just isn't the cook her dear departed mom was, and the bills are soon going to force her to declare bankruptcy. Even so, when she meets a nice guy in the marketplace named Tom Bartlett (Sean Patrick Flanery), she can't resist trying to impress him by bragging about her Crab Napoleon, which she has never actually made. Since Tom just happens to be the manager of Jonathan's, a new posh restaurant that is about to open, he is intrigued, so he and his obnoxious girlfriend Chris (Amanda Peet) stop in for lunch. And that's when the crab hits the fan.

The day Amanda saw Tom in the market, she also met a mysterious fellow (Christopher Durang) who convinced her to buy a basket of crabs. In that basket was a special crab apparently endowed with magical powers. She doesn't cook him, but he's there when she makes lunch for Tom. Though she has little ability as a chef, she turns out a dish so incredible it makes Tom fall for her. Meanwhile, Chris's lunch makes her throw dishes around the place and stomp out. Sound silly? It is.

Though my first thought was that she was simply putting LSD in the food, the explanation is different: When Amanda has the animatronic crustacean in the kitchen, she is able to pass her emotions on through her culinary concoctions. But no one discovers this until much later, when she has been asked to step in for the chef who quit Tom's restaurant on opening night. All the beautiful people (and all the high-powered critics) are there when she goes to work, and soon they are all laughing, crying, loving, etc., with each new course.

It is astonishing that Gellar, apparently unable to produce any range of emotion at all, was chosen by director Tarlov as the lead in this highly emotional story. But perhaps it was intentional; maybe we're supposed to guess her feelings by her food, in the absence of any other clues. Some of the supporting characters, like Jonathan, the self-absorbed restaurant owner (Dylan Baker), and Lois, his amorous assistant (Patricia Clarkson), add frivolous fun to the proceedings. Amanda's pragmatic sous-chef, Nolan (Larry Gilliard Jr.), provides the necessary stability to counterbalance the silliness. Meanwhile the food, which plays a major role itself, is gorgeous; it is surely the most appealing aspect of the movie.

The love story of Simply Irresistible is satisfying in an offbeat way, and the film is visually mouth-watering, but the terribly juvenile script and Gellar's lackluster performance bring it down several steps from what it could and should be. ★★½

Two Promoted By Network One

JOE SCHROYER

BOBBIE WOLFE

Network One, a locally based provider of telecommunications services, has announced the recent promotion of two employees at the company's operations headquarters in Bruceton Mills.

Joe Schroyer, Oakland, has been promoted to the position of director of operations. Schroyer joined the company in January 1990, starting out as a field service technician. He continued to progress through the company in various capacities, holding the position of customer service manager prior to his recent promotion. In his current position, Schroyer is responsible for the direct management of the company's operations workforce at the West Virginia facility.

During his years with the company, Schroyer has received numerous telecom training accreditations in the areas of technical network service and customer care. He most recently achieved Bellcore Digital Technology certification in Chicago.

Bobbie Wolfe has been promoted to the position of director of support services. Wolfe began her career with the company in June 1993 as a service order provisioner. She advanced to the position of provisioning manager, which led to her recent promotion. She is now responsible for the development of the newly created Support Services group, which will be responsible for providing budgetary results, sales support, and service applications support for the entire company.

During her career, Wolfe has completed telecom training in a variety of areas. She is currently completing her bachelor of science degree in information systems management with the University of Phoenix. She and her husband Ducan reside in Bruceton Mills.

Network One, founded in the early 1990s, provides local, long-distance, and Internet services to business and residential customers. The company distributes its services through its own direct sales force, a nationwide independent agent sales force, and strategic alliances with selected wholesalers.

CRAFT SHOW

A craft show is being planned by Union Ambulance at the squad hall in Aurora on May 8. A number of crafters have been contacted, but others interested in participating may contact Ellen Harsh at 304-735-5468. A silent auction is also being planned for that date, and organizers are soliciting good used items for this occasion. Those who have something new or used to contribute, and especially those who need pick-up service, may call the above number. One-of-a-kind crafts would also be suitable.

EGLON HOMEMAKERS

Although the county organization has assumed the CEOS designation, the Eglon group will remain Homemakers. On Feb. 2 they met in the home of Ruth Teets, Eglon, and began the meeting with display of pictures — Linda Lewis introduced her daughter, son-in-law, and grandson, Julie, Gary, and Grayson Baker, and Nina Layman showed her great-grandsons Charles and Jonathon Layman.

Rebecca Teets led the group in devotions using a reading concerning love in the home, a prayer, and the reading of "What Is A Home?" by Ruth Teets. She concluded the period with a discussion.

Minutes of the December meeting included the addition that two lights had been lighted on the Hospice Christmas Tree, one honoring Ruth Teets, the other, Helen (Hinkle) Roth. A donation was made to Church World Service for their blanket fund in November and a certificate of appreciation and accompanying letter were received from them.

A birthday cake and ice cream were provided by Avenell Parsons and Sandra Hauser and used to celebrate the February birthdays of Linda Lewis and Jean Winters. The meeting concluded with viewing carvings sent to Mrs. Teets by her nephew, Rick Lantz of North Pole, Alaska.

Club members then adjourned to the home of Lectie Bonner, where they visited with her and shared refreshments. Attending were Sandra Hauser, Mary Rembold, Avenell Parsons, Nina Layman, Rebecca Teets, Jean Winters, and Linda Lewis, plus the two hostesses.

PERSONAL MENTION

Paul Stemple of Aurora was honored Saturday on the occasion of his 95th birthday with an open house at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building. Family visiting him were Nancy Williams of New Raymer, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Stemple, their son and daughter, of Basking Ridge, N.J.; Steve Stemple and Marjorie of Elkins; Janet and David Keener of Alexandria, Va.; Dr. and Mrs. Alan Stemple of Phoenix, Ariz.; and Sharon and Mike Hinchman and two children of Elkins. Michael Stemple and the following were Saturday afternoon visitors only: Kathryn and Ross Harvey of Clarksburg and Jim Harvey, their son, of Dover, Del.

The Aurora Volunteer Fire Department answered a call for an early morning flue fire, Feb. 2, at the Stemple Ridge residence of Charles and Connie Blamble.

On Feb. 3, Doyle Harsh was driving his pickup en route to Elkins when he apparently became blinded by the sun and traveled off the highway and into an electric pole. He and his passengers, Stanley Harsh and Bernard Harsh, were trapped in the vehicle for approximately 45 minutes until they could be extricated. The "Jaws of Life" were used to cut down the cab and remove Bernard. He was transferred to Ruby Memorial Hospital with a fractured pelvis, and surgery was performed there on Friday. The driver and other passenger were treated at Davis Memorial Hospital and released with minor injuries. They have returned to their homes at Eglon, and Bernard is expected to be released early this week.

Floyd Bolyard of Lantz Ridge underwent quadruple bypass surgery last Friday at the Pittsburgh VA hospital. He is expected to return home this week.

Floyd Knapp of Amboy was a patient at Ruby Memorial for three days. He is now improving at his home.

Shirley Kight of Mt. Grove was treated Monday at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Clifton Arnold of Aurora was admitted to Ruby Memorial Hospital last week and underwent bypass surgery there after suffering a heart attack.

Ron and Avenell Parsons were notified Sunday that their granddaughter, Janet Marceau, and her children, Tasha and Jonathon, were involved in an accident as she returned from church to their Martinsburg home. The automobile was reportedly totaled, but the passengers escaped with minor injuries. Marceau's vehicle was hit by another vehicle and pushed into a wall after the other driver failed to heed a stop sign.

Emily Lewis of South Charleston was a guest this weekend of her parents, Tom and Linda Lewis, and sister Sara, of Eglon.

Sunday dinner guests of Leonard, Tammy, and Daniel Parsons on Mt. Top were Ron and Avenell Parsons, and John, Shirley, and Steve Parsons, all local.

Bessie Heckert of Eglon observed her 92nd birthday Friday at her home with a small family party. She had many visitors during the week also.

Jessie Winters of Eglon remains ill at her home.

Deep Creek Realty, Attn: Ruth

Miriam and myself wanted to write this letter of appreciation concerning Dawn and Dave Monahan's help in purchasing our dream house on Cemetery Road in Friendsville. . .

Without Dawn and Dave's professionalism, courtesy and just their overall cheerfulness, this probably would never have happened. We were able to contact them at anytime day or night and they responded ASAP. . . If it hadn't been for their help with questions and all the leg work involved, I honestly don't think the purchase would have been possible. Their commitment to do their best helping us went far, far beyond what usually occurs. For this our sincere thanks! . . If or when the opportunity arises and someone else wants information on purchasing property we would not hesitate to highly recommend Dawn and Dave. . . Again thank you! You made a dream come true. . . Thanks Dave and Dawn from our hearts.

We make it a point to listen to the people who rely on us for their health needs. For, times have become almost too impersonal and we believe that everyone who comes into our pharmacy is a friend as well as a patron.

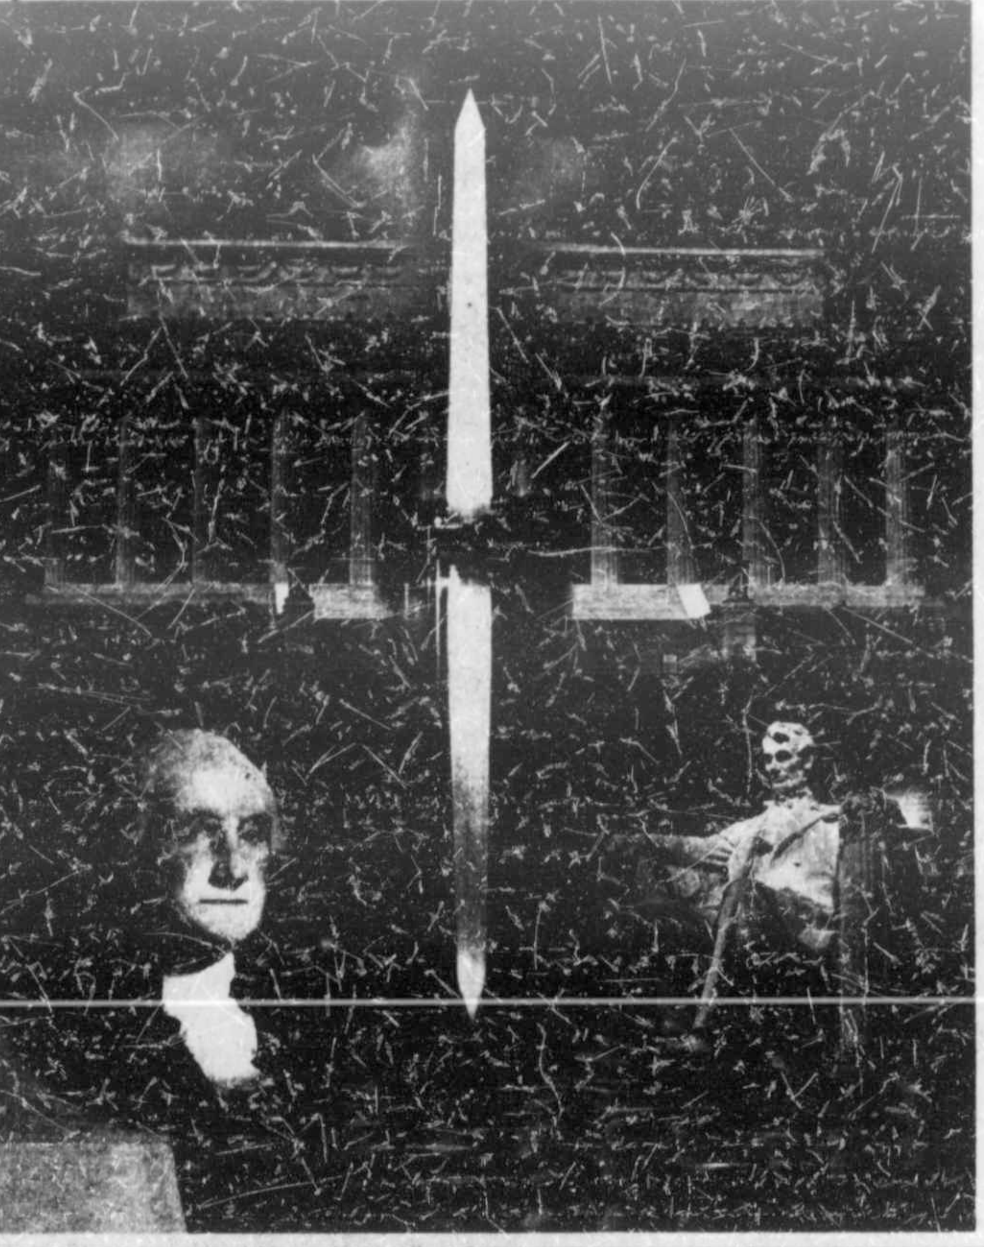
Pray for Our Presidents

This month as we celebrate the birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, what can we do to honor the memory of these great Presidents who played such an important role in our country's infancy and youth? What is our gift to them? Our government seems to have lost its innocence since those early days of our country. Doubts have put cracks in the foundation of our nation and rumors rot the timbers that support it. Yet, there is the Power to rebuild solidity in our society.



In Psalm 31:14-15, we read, "But I trust in you, O Lord; I say, 'You are my God' My times are in your hands." God is the only Power strong enough to restore our nation.

As you worship this week, pray for our President. Pray for His courage and His wisdom; that God will continue to give Him the physical strength and moral fortitude needed to direct the path of our country, for it is only through God that there is any Power at all. God bless our Presidents.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HANDLING HOLY THINGS!
February 14, 1999

Background Scripture:
I Corinthians 11:17-34
Devotional Reading:
I Corinthians 12:14-27

At first glance, the situation in Corinth to which Paul addresses himself in 1 Corinthians 11:17-34 seems almost totally irrelevant to Christian life today. I'm sure none of us can identify with the problem which leads Paul to write this passage.

It appears that in the Corinthian church, members gathered from time to time to share a common meal that included a celebration of the Lord's Supper. Paul learned that the more prosperous members of the church arrived first with generous amounts of food and drink. The poorer members apparently arrived later because they worked longer hours. When they arrived, they had meager provisions and found that the more prosperous Corinthian Christians had not waited for them, nor did they share their provisions with them. In fact, Paul learned that some of the early arrivers ate and drank to excess, making a shameful travesty of the Lord's Supper.

AN 'UNWORTHY MANNER'

Paul concludes that the Corinthian Christians did not really understand what the Lord's Supper was all about. They may call it the Lord's Supper, but it is not. "When you meet together, it is not the Lord's Supper that you eat" (11:20). Instead of a Holy Communion, the Corinthian experience is a very dangerous practice. There can be, and perhaps there already have been, fearful consequences: "Whoever... eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be guilty of profaning the body and blood of the Lord...For anyone who eats and drinks without discerning the body eats and drinks judgment upon himself" (11:27,29).

As I have already said, this specific situation is probably not applicable to us today, but the burden of Paul's message is pertinent to Christians in any day and age: do not handle holy things in a careless or unmindful manner! To do so is to invite God's judgment upon us and may be spiritually, mentally and physically unhealthy for us as well.. "This is why many of you are weak and ill, and some have died" (11:31).

When I first read that verse many years ago, I was very dubious that consciously or unconsciously profaning holy things could have any affect upon us physically. But many scientific studies in recent years have demonstrated that there are often physical consequences of our spiritual lives. Dr. Carl Jung said that spiritual problems lay at the heart of the physical and emotional complaints of a large proportion of the people who came to him for psychotherapy.

HOLY EXPECTATION

So Paul sets about to explain to them what the Lord's Supper meant the night that Christ shared it with his disciples and what it should mean to his followers today. Both the bread and the cup are to be taken in remembrance of Christ's betrayal and sacrifice for them. (How could the Corinthians remember Christ's supreme sacrifice and yet practice discrimination and hardheartedness at the Lord's Table?) There is also to be a remembrance of the "new covenant in my blood"—the new relationship with God through Christ. "For as often as you eat the bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes" (11:26.). The Lord's Supper is intended to help us to live in holy expectation of our Lord's return and the kingdom of God.

Some have pointed to this passage as proof that the Lord's Supper was intended to be only a memorial, a remembrance of what Christ did and promised. Yet, Paul also implies that the bread and the wine have a meaning beyond remembrance. In a mystical sense, these common elements become, at least spiritually if not physically, the body and blood of our Lord.

So the Lord's Supper vitally defines the very nature of our relationship with Christ who gave himself for us. Consequently it also defines our relationship with other Christians as a caring and sharing that rises above petty differences. For the follower of Jesus Christ the form of Holy Communion is optional, but the experience of it is not.

Expanded Tax Credits Offer Extra Income

At least 330,000 individuals could benefit from expanded earned income credits on their Maryland and federal income tax returns this year, and thousands more could qualify to get up to $4,132 in federal and Maryland benefits for the first time, according to Maryland State Comptroller William Donald Schaefer.

Schaefer joined officials from the Internal Revenue Service, the Maryland Committee for Children, the United Way, and the Maryland Department of Human Resources at a February 5 news conference to inform low-income families about the special tax breaks available to them on their federal and Maryland tax forms. The news conference was held at the RETS Technical Training Center on South Caton Avenue in Baltimore.

Schaefer stated that Maryland's income credit can eliminate the state tax liability for eligible taxpayers and, for the first time, even generate a tax refund for some individuals. "Some folks are eligible to get the benefit even if their income isn't high enough to require them to file a tax return. However, you need to file a tax form to get the benefit," he said.

Last year, 189,592 taxpayers claimed earned income credits totaling $61 million on their 1997 Maryland returns. Approximately 331,651 federal returns filed by Maryland residents last year claimed a total of $481.6 million in earned income tax credits. IRS also received 52,526 federal returns from Washington, D.C., residents claiming earned income credits worth $77.9 million.

To qualify for the earned income credit, an individual must be a worker whose adjusted gross income in 1998 was less than $26,473 while maintaining a home for a child for at least six months of the year; less than $30,095 with two or more children; or less than $10,030 with no children and at least 25 years of age.

"If you're eligible for the federal earned income credit, you can qualify for Maryland's earned income credit, which is equal to 50% of the federal credit," Schaefer noted.

To claim the Maryland earned income credit, taxpayers must complete their federal return first and calculate the amount of their federal earned income credit on line 59a of their federal Form 1040 or line 37 of federal Form 1040A. Next, they should enter 50% of that amount on line 24 of Maryland Form 502.

A special worksheet is included in Instruction 18 of the Maryland tax booklet to help taxpayers figure their Maryland earned income credit correctly. Individuals eligible for the refundable Maryland credit have an alternative calculation in instruction 18. They should use whichever amount is greater as their earned income credit.

Individuals can get help in determining if they qualify for the earned income credit by calling United Way's First Call for Help referral service 24 hours a day, seven days a week toll-free at 1-800-492-0618.

IRS Assistance

The IRS offers a free Publication #596, Earned Income Credit, which fully explains who qualifies for the credit and how to claim it. Publication #1235, Advance Earned Income Credit, and Form W-5 explain how to claim the Advance Earned Income Credit throughout the year. These publications are available at any IRS walk-in office or by calling toll-free 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676).

More information about the federal Earned Income Tax Credit and the Advance Earned Income Tax Credit may be found on the IRS website at www.irs.ustreas.gov.

Free walk-in federal tax assistance is also available at any of the IRS walk-in offices located throughout Maryland. The offices are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and on Saturdays from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. throughout the tax filing season. Taxpayers can also call the IRS for telephone assistance 24 hours a day, seven days a week, at 1-800-TAX-1040 (1-800-829-1040).

Maryland Tax Assistance

The comptroller's office offers an easy-to-read brochure called "Families and Maryland Income Taxes," that explains both the earned income tax credit and a separate poverty level tax credit available only on the Maryland return. The brochure is available free of charge at any of the comptroller's 20 taxpayer service offices or from the comptroller's website at www.marylandtaxes.com.

Free, in-person state tax assistance is available at any of the comptroller's taxpayer service offices Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. The telephone numbers and addresses are listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet as well as in most local telephone directories. Taxpayers can also call 410-260-7980 from Central Maryland (or 1-800-MD TAXES from elsewhere) for free state tax assistance weekdays from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m.

"We'll even complete your Maryland tax return free of charge if you bring a completed federal tax return and your W-2 statements to any of our offices," Schaefer stated. The comptroller's website at www.marylandtaxes.com also offers state tax forms and publications, answers to commonly asked questions, and directions to the 20 taxpayer service offices. Taxpayers can also e-mail their tax questions to the State Comptroller's Office 24 hours a day, seven days a week at taxhelp@comp.state.md.us.

Tuition Funds Available For Training Program

The New Horizons, New Dimensions, and the Caring Connection programs and the Single Parent/Displaced Homemaker and Single Pregnant Women projects of Garrett Community College, in cooperation with the Continuing Education Division of GCC, will provide tuition assistance for the Employment Skills Training Program, to begin March 1 at GCC. Employment Skills Training is a 630-hour, 19-week program designed for the individual who is interested in short-term vocational training in the areas of nursing assistant, office skills, and small business management.

All students will participate in the 300-hour classroom training, featuring "core" classes that include: math, language, computer applications, problem solving, fitness, and interpersonal and job-keeping skills.

Students will then focus on specialty instruction in either nursing assistant training, office skills training, or small business management training. During this training period, students will learn the skills needed to enter on-the-job training.

Each successful program completer will be awarded a certificate and will be ready to seek gainful employment in his or her chosen specialty field.

Tuition assistance through application for the Pell grant is available for this training. Additional tuition/book costs not covered by Pell may be covered for individuals who meet the eligibility requirements of New Horizons or its sister programs, New Dimensions, and The Caring Connection.

Interested persons may contact the New Horizons office at 301-387-3071 weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for further information or to determine eligibility for the programs, or stop by the New Horizons office in the Continuing Education building at GCC in Room 302.

The New Horizons Program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College. Grants funds made available to the program through Career and Technology Education comprise 89% of the total program budget, with GCC contributing 11% of the program budget. The Caring Connection is 100% funded by the Maryland State Department of Education. The New Dimensions program is 100% funded by the Department of Human Resources, Office of Transitional Services.

"Share Your Good Name": Adopting Through the Dept. of Social Services

by Monica Barnett
Adoption Worker
Department of Social Services

Qualities to look for in adoptive families include flexibility, an understanding of individuality, a commitment to the child, a sense of humor, strong family/social supports, communication skills, problem-solving skills, a nurturing attitude, patience, tolerance, mental health, and good coping skills.

The Adoption Process in Garrett County:

1. Contact the Garrett County Department of Social Services (DSS) at 301-334-5412 to have your name placed on list.
2. DSS will notify you in writing of an evening informational meeting on adoption/foster care, held at DSS.
3. Foster care/adoption training classes are held at DSS usually from 6 to 8:30 p.m. one evening a week for 5 to 6 weeks.
4. If you are still interested after you receive the pre-service certificate, a homestudy will be completed.
5. The homestudy consists of four in-home interviews, a criminal background check, fire safety and water approval, references, and medical report.
6. Once the homestudy is approved, you are licensed for foster care/adoption.

Additional Points:

Most children who become legally free for adoption are in foster care. Their foster parents may adopt (if they are a licensed adoptive home) or the child may be placed in an adoptive home.

Maryland Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) is a computerized system that matches children throughout Maryland who are free for adoption with adoptive families throughout the state of Maryland. Matches are made based on characteristics and needs of the child, along with the family's ability to provide for those needs.

There are hundreds of children throughout Maryland who are in need of a permanent home. Many children have been abused, neglected, drug exposed and/or had multiple placements. Many of these children have special needs due to their life circumstances.

During fiscal year 1996 (the most recent year state-wide records are available) there were 448 adoptions finalized in Maryland. The majority were African-American boys between infancy and the age of 4.

Eight adoptions were finalized in Garrett County during 1997.

COVER STORY

Randall and Klugman back on ABC this Friday

Randall and Klugman

Tony Randall and Jack Klugman, the original stars of TV's The Odd Couple, return to their old time slot in "An Odd Couple of Days" the Friday, Feb. 19, episode of the ABC sitcom Brother's Keeper.

The freshman series stars William Ragsdale as ultra-responsible single dad Porter Waide and Sean O'Bryan as his party boy brother, Bobby, a professional football player who requires more baby-sitting than Porter's son, Oscar (Justin Cooper).

"We proposed the series to ABC as The Odd Couple with a kid," series creator Donald Todd recalls.

Dozens of Odd Couple-type shows are suggested each year, executive producer Jonathan Axelrod says. "Nothing has been more referenced than that play, certainly in the TV world."

Yet it never occurred to them to put the Odd Couple in their show. Never, that is, until a production executive suggested it.

Though Randall and Klugman have not worked together on a half-hour series in nearly 25 years, the actors remain close. Lately, they have been on tour in Neil Simon's The Sunshine Boys.

Appearing on the series meant returning to the Universal Studios lot, where Randall co-starred in Rock Hudson-Doris Day comedies and Klugman made the TV drama Quincy.

The actors play brothers-in-law in their guest appearance. Klugman's character is a mechanic; Randall plays his bookkeeper.

"We own a garage and we fight all the time," Klugman explains. "(Randall's character) wants to turn the garage into a bookstore, make it a lounge."

Forget its ultimate use; the pair can't even agree on a paint color. "I want to paint it white, and he says white is not a color; white is the absence of color," Klugman says.

The Brother's Keeper siblings recognize the drill. "(Porter and Bobby) come to our garage and watch our behavior, which mirrors their behavior. And we both learn," Klugman says.

The TV veterans say they looked forward to working with a studio audience.

"The first year of The Odd Couple," Randall recalls, "we didn't have an audience. And we didn't get good until the second year."

The audience served as a creative stimulus. "When you shoot in one night, you rehearse all week," Randall explains. "The writers see it and improve it. And you end up with a much better product."

Todd says he relished the give and take of rehearsal time. "I got notes from both guys that were great," he reports. "I often dread getting notes from stars, but these notes all came from trying to make their characters more real or honest."

Both men agree that one week on a series is enough for now.

"It's like one good meal that lasts you a lo-o-ong time," Klugman admits. "Like a good French meal. You really don't want any more for a while."

Deep in My Heart is an unusual valentine

By Suzanne Gill

Deep in My Heart is a love story more tender than most.

This drama of broken hearts and joy deferred includes a quartet of gifted actresses, any one of whom could star in her own TV movie. The film airs Sunday, Feb. 14, on CBS.

Anne Bancroft, Lynn Whitfield and Alice Krige play three women, strangers to one another, each of whom is a mother to the same fatherless girl. Gloria Reuben co-stars as the young woman with three mothers and a thousand questions – a character utterly unlike her role as Jeanie Boulet on ER.

The story begins in 1961 Boston. Bancroft's character, young Catholic mother Gerry Cummins (played in the early scenes by Cara Buono), is raped. She has a child, Barbara Ann, fathered by her black assailant. Gerry and her husband (Kevin O'Rourke) agree to give up the baby, believing she will be better off if she is not in an all-white setting.

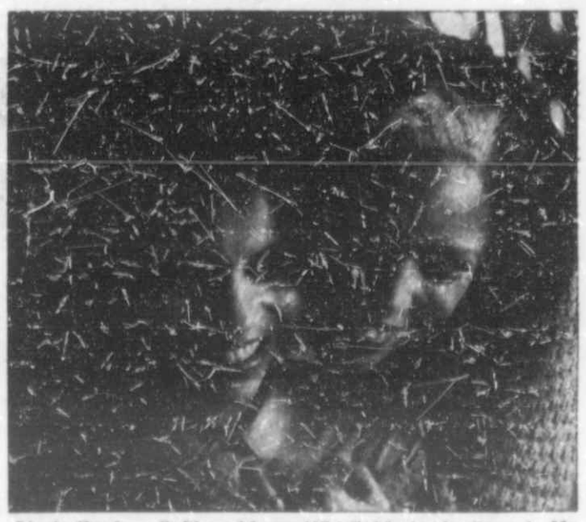
For seven years, Barbara Ann is placed in foster care across town with a loving divorced woman (Whitfield) who comes to believe the child will never leave her.

Then a liberal white couple in Wisconsin (Krige and Albert Schultz) adopts the child.

The new parents are undemonstrative, and Barbara Ann feels lost until, as a teenager, she starts a family of her own.

Deep in My Heart taps into the strong undercurrent of the civil rights struggle, yet it is just as much the story of an adoption, with all its pain and joy. It also is the story of four marriages and the tests that try them.

Bring a hankie.



Gloria Reuben (left) and Lynn Whitfield star in Deep in My Heart, airing Sunday on CBS. The TV movie co-stars Anne Bancroft and Alice Krige.

Pizza Party Celebrates Test Score Increases

To celebrate class-wide test score gains between 1996 and 1998, a group of Accident Elementary School graduates met last week at Smiley's Pizza for a party. Organized by principal Sandra Nesline, members of the fifth grade class of 1998 were rewarded for their accomplishments on the MSPAP (Maryland School Performance Assessment Program).

The students had taken the MSPAP tests in 1996 while they were in third grade and again in 1998 as fifth graders. The scores earned by these students reflected gains in the number who met the satisfactory level from grade 3 to grade 5. In the four subject areas tested, Accident Elementary students showed the following increases of those scoring satisfactory in 1998: reading — a gain of 24.6%; math — a gain of 25.7%; science — a gain of 20.1%; and social studies — a gain of 24.1%.

During last year's testing, math teacher Christine Ashby had suggested a pizza party celebration as an incentive to the children. When the state earlier this school year recognized Accident Elementary for its success in MSPAP testing, it was time to begin planning the festivities.

Businesses in the community joined with the school to make the celebration a realty, Nesline said. "Smiley (Jonathan Kessler) rewarded the kids with free video games and Lazer Tag. Kathy Kessler (owner of the Tourist Trap) donated five groups of Beanie Babies™ (28 in all) to be raffled as a fund-raiser," Nesline said. The money earned from the raffle went into the principal's General School Fund, which enables her to provide the students with celebrations such as the pizza party and to subsidize field trips for students in need.

Nesline noted the progress made at Accident and spoke of future challenges. "We are thrilled with the progress we are making at Accident, but we still face many challenges. Student motivation during the actual testing is very important. No matter how well we prepare them academically, we still need students to have a positive frame of reference," she said.

CELEBRATING ACHIEVEMENT - It was a festive evening at Smiley's at the Fort in McHenry when former Accident Elementary students held a reunion last week with their fifth grade teachers, to celebrate the gains made in their MSPAP test scores. The students' scores showed significant growth between the testing periods in 1996 and 1998. A pizza party was the reward for the students who had demonstrated such progress. Principal Sandra Nesline also thanked the teachers for their efforts. "I want to give credit to my excellent staff for the growth we are having at Accident. Excellent instruction throughout the grade levels is needed to prepare students for the future," she said. The students, who are now in middle school, received invitations to the party, which featured video and Lazer Tag games. In the photo above are the students and teachers who gathered at the restaurant for pizza and games.

FSU To Host Winning Poet

Frostburg State University will host Reggie Gibson, 1998 Individual Poetry Slam winner, in a return engagement Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 8 p.m. in the FSU Ort Library, Room 237. The presentation is free and open to the public.

Known as a poet, percussionist, actor, and activist, Gibson has lectured and performed at numerous schools, universities, and assembly halls both nationally and internationally.

Gibson's use of "word speak" has been labeled as "rhythmistical" because of his combination of the time-honored mystical weaving of the African griot tradition and the often hard-edged rhythms of the African experience in America.

During the poet's FSU visit, he will facilitate a writing workshop in the "Fantasies and Phobias Freshman Project" course and address several English and African American studies classes on campus. In addition, he will be performing for the public at Gandalf's Restaurant, Frostburg, on Wednesday, Feb. 24.

For information on this event or on Gibson's FSU visit, persons may telephone 301-687-4389. Persons with disabilities may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office at 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

MSP Officials Pushing Laws To Stop Child Porn.

Criminals involved in child pornography are the target of legislation introduced by Maryland State Police that will toughen penalties and assist police investigating this serious crime against children, according to information from the MSP Pikesville headquarters.

Senate Bill 39, heard Tuesday before the Judicial Proceedings Committee, will include child pornography in the crimes in which a judge can order a search warrant affidavit sealed for up to 30 days to enable police to continue their investigations. This is especially important in the investigation of child pornography crimes committed over the Internet, a spokesperson said.

Detective Sergeant Barry Leese, commander of the Maryland State Police Computer Crimes Unit, testified today that criminals using computers to perpetuate child pornography can be part of an intricate network that involves significant follow-up investigation. If a search warrant served on one suspect becomes public, communication to other suspects in the network is immediate via e-mail. By keeping the information confidential, investigators will be able to continue to identify members of the network who are sending and receiving the child pornography.

"Child pornography involves some of the most helpless victims in our society, who are preyed upon by adults who exploit them for profit and their own sexual perversions," Lt. Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend said. "Many of these criminals have used computers to advance and expand their criminal enterprise. We are committed to protecting our children, and this legislation will significantly help us do that."

"Our investigators need the ability to serve a search warrant and continue their efforts without the fear that other suspects will be able to mask their involvement," said Maryland State Police Superintendent, Colonel David B. Mitchell.

Other legislation being introduced by State Police will toughen the penalties for possession of child pornography. House Bill 100, also being heard this week, would change the penalty of possession of child pornography from a misdemeanor to a felony and increase the punishment for the crime. A person convicted of a first offense would be subject to a fine of up to $5,000 and up to two years in prison. A person convicted of a second or subsequent offense would be subject to a fine of up to $10,000 and up to five years in prison.

The state police budget request for FY 2000 also includes an increase of $250,000 and three additional police positions to strengthen the Computer Crimes Unit, which investigates Internet-related child pornography, business crimes, and other offenses.

Her accompanist is Noel Lester, professor and chair of the Department of Music, Hood College, Frederick. Lester has distinguished himself as a recitalist and chamber pianist, specializing in the performance of American music.

This event is free and open to the public. For more information, persons may telephone 301-687-4109. Persons with disabilities may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office at 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

Residents Spend $132 Million On Entertainment

Marylanders spent about $132.2 million on taxable entertainment during the second quarter of fiscal year 1999 (October, November, and December 1998), about 2.3% less than during the same period of the previous year, according to State Comptroller William Donald Schaefer. Spending for holiday movie tickets increased dramatically, but spending on athletic events declined by nearly 53% to about $13.1 million. The decrease is attributed to post season play that took place in 1997, but not in 1998, and to changes in location for some professional teams. However, spending for athletic facilities and equipment rentals increased by 9% to $4.5 million.

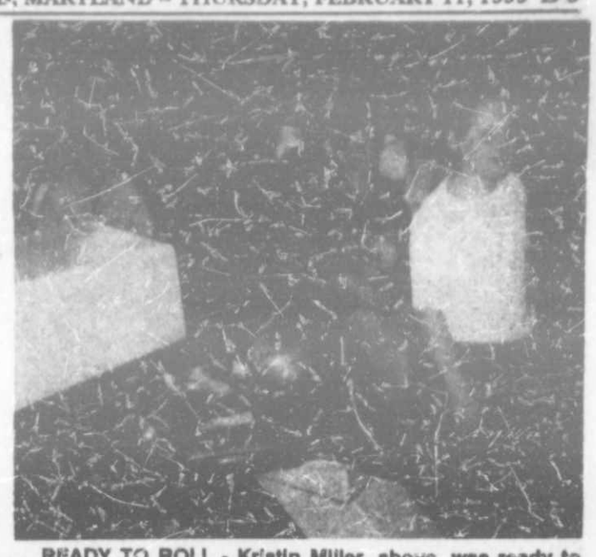
Golfers took advantage of the mild weather in October and November and spent more than $26 million on golf greens fees and cart rentals, up by 36.4% over the same period a year ago. Spending at miniature golf courses and driving ranges also increased by 8.2% compared to the previous fiscal year and totaled about $2.4 million.

Spending on the types of indoor activities traditionally popular in the colder months also increased. Marylanders spent about $21.8 million on movie tickets during the second quarter of fiscal year 1999, a 16% increase over the same period last year, reflecting the box-office success of many movies released during the holidays. A variety of hit movies appealing to different age groups boosted ticket sales.

Statewide spending for skating and skate shoe rentals also increased by 24%, to $1.6 million. Spending for boat rides and excursions increased by 10.8%, to more than $4.3 million. Arcades benefited from a 13.8% increase in spending for coin-operated amusement devices, to almost $14 million.

The comptroller's office collects the admissions and amusement tax at rates set by local officials and returns the money to Maryland's counties, cities, and towns each quarter. Schaefer noted that individual payments totaling $8,728,950 are on their way to local governments and the Maryland Stadium Authority for their share of admissions and amusement tax receipts.

The current distribution is 11.2% less than the $9,825,967 returned to the local governments for the October-December period of 1997. Garrett County received $56,374 for the second quarter, up significantly from the $40,643 received for the same quarter the previous year.



READY TO ROLL - Kristin Miller, above, was ready to pick up her bowling ball and roll a strike at Par-Matt Lanes recently, as was one of the 36 participants of a parent/child activity sponsored by the AmeriCorps After-School Program at Southern Middle School. The group divided into six teams which pitted their skills against each other. The winning team consisted of Samantha Cavalier, her mom Theresa and sister Sara; Aiysha Noble and her grandfather, Fred Sharpless; and AmeriCorps member Karen Frankhouser. Nominations Being Sought For Annual Tawes Award

The Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) and the Maryland Petroleum Council announced today that nominations are being sought for the 1999 Tawes Award for a Clean Environment. The award is named in honor of the late governor and former secretary of natural resources J. Millard Tawes (1959-1967).

The annual environmental awards are presented in late spring in two categories—youth and adult, and organizations—and recognize individuals or organizations that contribute to protecting Maryland's natural resources. The activities can include recycling, spill prevention and response, school or education projects, animal habitat, community clean-up, and beautification, among others.

Winners and runners-up and their guests will be honored at an awards luncheon in Annapolis. A donation will be made to the recipient's favorite non-profit organization, and recipients will also receive either an engraved plaque or commendation certificate.

For more information and nomination forms, interested persons may contact the Maryland Petroleum Council by telephone at 410-269-1850, or by fax at 410-269-8330, or call Christine Plummer at MDE at 410-631-3012.

Panelcraft Building Systems

The time to be concerned about how to keep from using so much heating fuel is when you build. Use Panelcraft's Structural Insulated Panels (SIPs).

SIP structures are known for their structural integrity. Nature's storms, earthquakes, tornados, etc., just need a little greater force to do the same amount of damage to SIP structures versus conventional.

Q. I just bought a small rustic house in Southern California. Someone told me I should furnish it with "Monterey" furniture. Is that a style, a company or a generic name? What does the furniture look like?

A. Monterey furniture is a rustic furniture style produced from 1929 to 1943 by the Mason Manufacturing Co. of Los Angeles.

The furniture, made from Oregon alder wood, was sold in department stores in Los Angeles, Chicago, Boston and Miami. Mason made Monterey bedroom and dining room sets, end and coffee tables, desks, bars and bar stools, upholstered sofas and chairs, lamps and novelties.

Early pieces were treated to look dark and old. They had heavy, visible iron hinges or straps.

The company later used an orange stain and other "California palette colors" such as deep red, olive green and a dark yellow called "desert dust."

Pieces were marked with a horseshoe design and sometimes the word "Monterey."

Q. I drove a car in the 1953 inauguration parade that was held after President Dwight Eisenhower's swearing-in ceremony. I still have the two special inaugural license plates from the car. There are photos of Eisenhower and Richard Nixon on each plate with a license number and the words "Inaugural, District of Columbia." What are the plates worth?

A. The District of Columbia has issued a limited number of special license plates for every scheduled Inauguration Day since President Truman's in 1949. The plates sell for a premium to license-plate collectors. A pair from Eisenhower's second inauguration, in 1957, was offered last year for $350.

Home Tips

OUT DARN SPOT! – I'd like to share my tip for treating grease or sweat stains prior to washing or dry cleaning an item.

I use the cheapest baby powder I can find and rub it into the soiled area. After regular washing or dry cleaning, you should see an amazing difference. It works great on my husband's caps! Jeannie V., Plantation, Fla.

RECYCLE – I save all the rubber bands that come on our morning and evening daily papers, and when I get a sandwich bag full, I return them to the paper delivery person. Last time he said, "Thanks so very much. I have to pay for those and that helps me a lot to have them returned."

I don't think people realize that is an expense of the paper person, so we are saving him money, besides keeping all those rubber bands out of the landfills. Carrie M., Central Point, Ore.

GROUND MEAT TRICK – One of my most helpful tips is to use a hand potato masher for breaking up ground meat when cooking it. It works great for mashing the meat when you make tacos or chili. Rita K., Suffern, N.Y.

Biography®

GENE KELLY: NOT JUST SINGIN' IN THE RAIN

It's one of the purest expressions of joy in motion picture history and one of the most famous: Gene Kelly, singing in the rain. But in later years, Kelly tired of the movie that somehow overshadowed his many other accomplishments in front of and behind the camera.

As chronicled in March's Biography magazine, Kelly was one of the two greatest song-and-dance men in Hollywood, along with Fred Astaire. He was one of movie musicals' most innovative talents, giving himself, as choreographer and director, unprecedented challenges and changing the nature of dance on film. Handsome, athletic and sexy, he portrayed dance as masculine as football. In virtually every movie, Kelly played a variation on the same character – macho and brash but warm and tender underneath.

Dance was an important part of Kelly's life since his childhood – when his mother sent him to classes against his wishes. Puberty and girls increased his interest. Still, he planned on going to law school and only danced to pay for his schooling. But dance consumed him and soon he was running two successful schools.

His breakthrough stage role, "Pal Joey," led to a film debut opposite Judy Garland in "For Me and My Gal." To compensate for film's two-dimensionality, Kelly created routines impossible for the stage, such as in "Cover Girl" where he dances with his reflection. His favorite was "On the Town," the first musical that totally integrated the choreography into the story, filmed a portion of a musical on location and created a new opening effect by cutting rapid-fire instead of dissolving from scene to scene. "An American in Paris" won him a special Oscar, and "Singin' in the Rain" reconfirmed his brilliance. Despite this prodigious output, Kelly said in 1985, "I just wish I had done more dances. But that's all right. I'm satisfied with what I did."

Garrett CC Sets Honors Program For Fall Semester

The Garrett Community College Honors Program will be available to qualified students in the fall semester, according to Dr. Lillian Mitchell, GCC's dean of academic affairs. The program is designed to provide a learning environment that will heighten intellectual curiosity, encourage scholarly study, and sharpen critical analysis.

The challenging honors courses in English, philosophy, math, psychology, speech and science will require students to do scholarly research and will provide the experience of interactive learning. The Honors Program will also provide intellectual and cultural activities, seminars and Honors Symposia.

Students who enter the program will take the honors English course and at least nine additional honors credits during their two years. A capstone project involving scholarly research, field study, internship or service projects will be required in the fourth semester.

To qualify for the Honors Program, students must satisfy any one of the following criteria: high school transcript with a minimum 3.25 GPA; SAT score of 1100 with neither Math nor Verbal score below 500; ACT score of 22 on Verbal and Math tests; and evidence of considerable creative ability in writing, art, music or theater.

Second semester students who have taken 12-18 credits must have a GPA of 3.25 to enter the program.

Applications for the Honors Program are available in the Student Assistance Center of Garrett Community College and in high school guidance offices. Applications must be received in the office of the dean of academic affairs by August 1.

Circles Program Slated To Begin In Grantsville

The Circles Program, interactive parenting program, will begin an eight-week session at Grantsville Elementary School, Wednesday, Feb. 17, 5:30-7:30 p.m. The program draws together parents and children from all grade levels to spend one evening each week at the school.

The plan for the program includes physical activities, reading strategies centered around the Partners in Print program, computer projects, and two family math nights.

Principal Linda Buckel, who will be one of the Circles reading teachers, describes the goals of the program. "Circles prepares and enables parents to help their children to become more confident, successful readers. It also encourages children to become active language learners," she said.

In the Circles program, teachers, parents, and children work together to become "partners" in reading, Buckel explained. "It nurtures kids to become lifelong readers," she said.

In addition to Buckel, the program staff will be: coordinator Rhonda Maust, reading teacher Rose Lee Folk, physical activities director Jeff Rice, and computer activities director Lisa Lantz. For more information on the Circles program, persons may contact Grantsville Elementary School at 301-895-5173 or 301-746-8662.

Drugs Found On W.Va. Man Being Admitted To Jail

A Bayard, W.Va., man who had reported to the Garrett County Detention Center to begin serving a DWI sentence was found to be carrying drug paraphernalia during a routine search by the jail's correctional officers.

Benjamin Lewis Lower, 37, faces charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia after two items of drug paraphernalia were discovered on his person. Both items had suspected marijuana residue on them. Lower posted a $500 bond for the drug charges as required by the district court commissioner.

Lower then commenced serving his DWI sentence, which stemmed from his guilty plea before District Court Judge Ralph Burnett earlier that day. The judge had handed Lower a 60-day sentence, all but seven days of which were suspended, imposed a $300 fine, and placed him on two years of supervised probation.

Thank You

We would like to thank all our family, friends, and the local businesses who helped us after the loss of our home to a fire. We live in a wonderful community and could not have made it through this time without you. Everyone has been more than generous and we are truly grateful. Thanks for everything and may God bless all of you.

Northeast Dairy Project Wins Award For Research Excellence

A team of 19 northeast region land-grant university scientists, representing a wide array of disciplines, has won an award for research excellence in developing a model that will change the way dairy farm nutrient pollution is managed. The dairy farm system model will help farmers manage their dairy herds in a cost-effective way that also is friendly to the environment and consistent with new farming regulations.

The Northeastern Regional Association of State Agricultural Experiment Station Directors (NERA) presented its Award for Excellence to the team during the annual NERA winter meeting, held jointly last week with Northeast Extension directors at the Venue-State Plaza Hotel in Washington, D.C.

The multi-state research project is titled "Environmental and Economic Impacts of Nutrient Management on Dairy Forage Systems" (NE-132). Its members collaborated with three scientists in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service to address the issue of how to enable dairy farmers to stay in business and at the same time comply with tough and costly environmental laws aimed at reducing nutrient pollution associated with milk production — especially nitrogen.

The team, which included Rick Kohn of the Maryland Ag Experiment Station; Dennis R. Buckmaster, Steve F. Ford, Heather D. Karsten, and Larry D. Muller of the Pennsylvania Ag Experiment Station; and Edward C. Prigge and William B. Bryan of the West Virginia Ag Experiment Station, found that nutrient cycling in dairy herds depends essentially on how cows are treated. Factors affecting the nutrient content of urine and manure include supplemental lighting in dairy barns, type of fertilizer applied to dairy feed crops, a cow's chewing time, the way cows are grouped for feeding, number of daily milkings — even use of mobile feeders.

The scientists studied a number of variables and constructed a nutrient balance sheet to reflect the origin of the nutrients, where the nutrients are needed, where they end up, how to stop them from ending up in the wrong place, and cost of the remedy.

After determining herd responses to various grazing management strategies, the researchers created a dairy farm system (DAFOSYM) computer model for calculating the flow of nutrients, especially for small to medium-sized dairy farms. The computer program shows the costs and profits associated with specific farm management options. Calculated values were then verified through farm-level monitoring.

Project scientists now are converting their computer code into a version more suitable for Cooperative Extension county agents/educators to use in advising dairy farmers about nutrient management options. Validation continues.

The USDA's Agricultural Research Service has purchased a real-scale dairy farm in Franklin County, Pa., to study nutrient management strategies. Collaborations with the land-grant university researchers will continue in this new setting. The project's DAFOSYM computer model will be an important part of that research.

The three four hour seminars are focused on sharpening and broadening the management and leadership skills and knowledge of farm managers. Participants will experience strategic and tactical planning, problem solving, time and labor management, and establishing and completing high priority jobs. The final objective will be for the managers to see the "big picture" of the farm business and be in position to successfully guide the business into the future.

The seminars will be held March 3, 12, and 17, 1999, from 10:15 a.m. to 2:15 p.m. at the Garrett Extension Office. Space is limited to 24 people so make your reservations now by calling 301-334-6960.

Dairy Leaders Plan Expansion Workshop

Dairy industry leaders and Penn State Cooperative Extension will be conducting an all-day workshop titled "Is Expansion Right for Me?" on Thursday, March 18. The workshop is designed to help dairy producers who want to expand their current dairy operation. More than ever before, dairy producers are being challenged to become good business managers who can plan an orderly and profitable expansion of their businesses. The dairy industry is changing rapidly, and proactive dairy producers should be in a better position to survive in a turbulent marketplace. The main objective of this program is to provide dairy producers with the resources to help them make the right decision for their own future.

The workshop program will combine the efforts of ag-business professionals, Extension educators, and most importantly, dairy producers who have recently expanded their operations. Workshop topics will include: Overview of Current Dairy Climate, Financial and Operational Benchmarks, The Team Approach to Expansion, Finance Planning for Systematic Growth, Site Evaluation and Facility Layout, BioSecurity and Health Strategies to Control Health Risk, and The People Part of Expansion. A panel discussion with dairy industry representatives and dairy producers will wrap up the workshop program with a question-and-answer session.

The Dairy Expansion Workshop will be held at the Altoona, Pa., Ramada Inn, located on the east side of the Plank Road exit off I-99. The program begins at 9 a.m. with registration, includes lunch and dinner, and will end in the evening around 8 p.m. For more information about the program, those interested may contact Frank Higdon at the Blair County Cooperative Extension office at 814-693-3265.

Noted No-Till Innovator Coming To Carlisle, Pa.

John Bradley, a nationally known, award-winning Tennessee educator with an unrelenting passion for the science and art of soil, water, and agricultural sustainability through both proven and new technology, is coming to Carlisle on Saturday, Feb. 13.

Bradley will be a featured speaker during the Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference at the Embers Inn & Convention Center. Crop farmers, crop consultants, agribusiness representatives, and ag educators throughout the mid-Atlantic region will have two opportunities to hear him speak that day.

And he had previous experience as a county Extension agricultural agent.

Alternating with Bradley at the speakers' rostrum and in separate breakout sessions will be agronomy researchers and educators from both Penn State and the University of Maryland. One session will feature a panel of Maryland and Pennsylvania livestock farmers addressing manure management. All will deal with various aspects of "No-Till: Fine-Tuning an Established Practice."

Sponsors of the daylong event include the conference committee and the Keystone chapter of the National Soil and Water Conservation Society in cooperation with the Cooperative Extension Service at Penn State and the University of Maryland, as well as the USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in participating states.

The day's activities will begin at 8 a.m. with registration, refreshments, and a chance to visit educational and commercial exhibits. For those who haven't already pre-registered, a $30 fee is payable at the door. It includes refreshments, lunch, and handout materials. Checks are payable to Mid-Atlantic CTC.

Valentine Cards Program Set For Hospitalized Vets

On any given day there are more than 50,000 military veterans hospitalized in U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) medical centers across the nation. The VA has proclaimed the week of Valentine's Day, Feb. 14-20, as National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans Week, and interested persons are encouraged to send Valentine's Day cards to VA hospitals through the 10th annual Valentines for Vets program, sponsored by nationally syndicated advice columnist Ann Landers.

"Miss Landers, every year America's hospitalized veterans look forward with great anticipation to your Valentines for Vets program," Togo D. West, the VA's secretary, said in a letter published this week. "By sending them valentines from all over the world, your readers show hospitalized veterans that we are still grateful for their service and their sacrifices.

"Last year, nearly a million valentines were mailed or hand-delivered to the 171 VA medical centers across the country. More than 40,000 of your readers took the time to visit nearly 50,000 hospitalized veterans, and more than 500 volunteers were recruited to help year-round at our VA hospitals. Teachers throughout the country have used the program as a way to teach their students about the accomplishments of America's veterans."

Landers responded to West's letter by saying, "This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Ann Landers Valentines for Vets program. Since 1989 my readers have sent over 10 million valentines to our veterans around the United States and Canada.

"These men and women served in World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam, and the war in the Persian Gulf. They represent every race, color, and creed. We can never repay these valiant vets for the sacrifices they have made, but we can do something to cheer them up and let them know that they have not been forgotten.

"Teachers, you have always been extremely helpful and supportive. I'm depending on you once more to make this a class project. Those handmade valentines are real heartwarmers, especially the ones made by the younger students. Please encourage your students to be creative, and let them learn firsthand the satisfaction that comes from doing something for others.

"I know of nothing you can do that would cost so little and bring so much pleasure to the men and women who were willing to lay down their lives for us. They deserve to be remembered. Thank you all and God bless," Landers concluded.

For the location of the nearest VA facility, interested persons may call the VA toll-free at 1-800-827-1000, or consult the department's website at <www.va.gov>.

NOTES FROM JOAN

Valentine greetings and roses to our educational system, to the staff of Accident Elementary School and Northern Middle School, and last but not least, our wonderful bus driver. I am not worried too much about whether my dear daughters are in good hands. I saw a program on television about terrible problems on school buses. They asked, "Do you know your bus driver?" Certainly I do! I know Mrs. Wassell, as she is a neighbor in Bittinger and would do everything to make sure our kids are safe and see to their proper behavior. Most of the big kids on our bus care about the smaller ones.

When Claire and Robbie were in the first grade, they had a substitute bus driver who forgot to drop them off at their homes on the way home from school. A couple of the older kids rushed to their homes and called right away to tell me they were still on the bus. I jumped in my car and followed the bus and found them still on the bus at the end of the line. However, recently a high school boy picked on one of my nephews and one of their older friends wanted to take on the bully himself. But we counseled him not to fight but just tell the principal. However, we did appreciate him wanting to protect his little friend.

Last week we finished our teacher-parent conferences. It was very clear that all the teachers really care about our children. They wrap them in a blanket of love when times are rough. Even their former teachers, when we met in the hall, asked about them and how they were doing now. Mrs. Donna Hinebaugh invited Caitlin for a weekend visit with her. Caitlin just adores Mrs. Donna. Her present teacher, Mrs. Angie Rush, is a former student of mine and I am really pleased how good a teacher she has become. We all look forward to her giving birth to her first child in May. I am selecting a big bag of baby clothes for her. When I was a new mother and teaching at the college, I sometimes needed to take along my new baby to work with me. My students fought to get the chance to carry her around and babysit her.

I remember a gang of girl basketball players who wanted to take Claire from them, but they said, "No, you can't have her! Joan said we can have her for the whole afternoon." They carried her around and showed her off and loved her like she was their own.

Yesterday, I got to have a treat for myself and, since I am crazy about little babies, I visited a former favorite student of mine who just gave birth to an absolutely beautiful little girl with a full head of black hair. I got to hold little Olivia and cuddle her. It was also good to celebrate such a happy time with Alison's sister, her best friend, Sherry Lebowitz and her mother. Little Olivia put up with all the fuss, but finally wanted her mommy or "milk bar." Since we can't have any more babies, thank goodness that I have hundreds of unofficial daughters whom I can share their little ones with. I think we as teachers feel we are underpaid, and rightfully so, but this stuff is an unexpected bonus.

Last Saturday we had a pre-Valentine's Day work session with the second grade crowd of Meredith, Kelsey Morrison, Emma Bass, along with Caitlin, who made their mail boxes for their school Valentine party. They used my craft supplies, my foils, and colored paper. They also made some special handmade Valentines for their mothers, teachers, etc.

Even though teachers are underpaid, I hope they know how much their students love them and will never forgot them — especially from Bittinger are Cindy Stanton, Cynthia Kolbe, 1st grade teachers, Mrs. Sandy Nesline, principal, and Donna Hinebaugh, teacher. When you give a legacy of love, it never ends. This kind of teacher teaches some more wonderful values on how to love one another.

My own second grade teacher, Mrs. Ida Reckner, is loved by my little girls like an extra grandmother. She lives just across the field from us. She is an amazing woman. Most of my wonderful teachers are not still in my life, but I still feel them, and I am so happy to have my favorite teacher from high school days, Mr. Bill Carlson, who is now Claire's principal at Northern Middle School. I know she is in good hands.

Even though he is now dead, there was a special professor from the University of Maryland, Chuck Vogon, who was always there for me in the theater department. In working with him I learned everything I know about art and teaching. I still can hear his voice coaching my painting. He expected only the best from me. I know he is still here with me now, as every picture I paint for him to try to get his approval. My color choices really are his colors. I also thank many of you for your many good responses to my column. Sometimes it is pretty trying to get my notes finished. But anyway, thanks again to my readers. I do appreciate your kind words.

FSU Theatre To Perform The House of Yes

Frostburg State University will present The House of Yes, a play by Wendy MacLeod, in the Studio Theatre of the Performing Arts Center on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 26 and 27. Both performances will begin at 8 p.m.

MacLeod's black comedy is a modern-day "Jacobean tale" of infidelity, fraternal revenge, and murder. The peculiar members of the Pascal family, a dysfunctional, egotistical bunch stricken with Kennedy envy, a fondness for guns, and an immense dislike for one another, have gathered for Thanksgiving in their suburban Washington, D.C., home. What results is a combination of quick-witted humor and perverse sexual tales, a combination of The Addams Family meets Pulp Fiction.

The production is a senior project directed by FSU theatre student Sean T. Cercone. Included in the cast are Melissa Cyr, Nicole Bourque, Andrea Smith, Jeff Keilholtz, and Jonathon Herrera. Senior Kate Hnatio completes the group as the play's stage manager. Admission is $1 per person. Proceeds will help benefit the "Bring Patrick Home" fund.

For more information, persons may call the FSU Theatre Department at 301-687-4145. Persons with disabilities may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office at 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

CARRY ON

Carry on as I would, dear.
Lay your problems down to rest.
Put all bad times behind you and strive to be your best.

Carry on with confidence;
Your hands now hold the reins.
Don't think your talents won't compare,
for my blood runs through your veins.

Carry on with honesty;
You know what's right and fair.
Just call on me when problems strike;
you know I'll be there.

Carry on the dream ,my dear.
Let your conscience be your guide.
Remember when you feel alone,
I'm standing by your side.

Land Conservation Funds Available Through WHIP

The Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP), a nationwide voluntary conservation program, has provided $245,000 to Maryland for cost-share reimbursement to farmers, landowners, and schools that restore and manage wildlife habitat. Funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the WHIP program was created in the 1996 Farm Bill.

Last year's initial WHIP program in Maryland "provided cost-share reimbursement to farmers, landowners, and schools that planted native grasses or restored riparian buffers and streambanks for use as wildlife habitat," said David Doss, state conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), the Agriculture Department's lead conservation agency. "WHIP conservation practices restore and manage upland grass habitat and riparian buffers to benefit game birds, song birds, and other wildlife."

"Maryland enjoyed tremendous success during our first year of assisting landowners in installing WHIP conservation practices," added Anne Lynn, NRCS Maryland state biologist and Maryland WHIP program manager. "Over the next five years, [WHIP] funds will pay for the planned restoration of 325 acres of upland grassland habitat in primarily native warm-season grasses and 43 acres of riparian habitat."

Conservation practices eligible for WHIP funding are restoration of grassland habitat in field borders and entire fields; restoration of riparian buffers with trees, shrubs, or herbaceous plants; stabilization of adjacent streambanks with trees and shrubs; and establishment of shallow water wetland areas for wildlife.

To quality for WHIP, the area must contain at least one acre of grassland, shrub, or tree plantings; at least 150 feet of streambank stabilization plantings; or at least one acre of shallow water/wetland habitat. Outdoor classrooms or educational projects may be exempt from the minimum size criteria.

WHIP participants enter into a cost-share agreement to install specific wildlife conservation practices, as established in their conservation plan. Conservation plans are developed jointly by the landowner, the Soil Conservation District, and NRCS. The WHIP agreement lasts from 5 to 10 years, with NRCS providing technical assistance and paying up to 75 percent of the cost of installing the conservation practices. Cost-share generally cannot exceed $10,000 per contract.

"Ducks Unlimited and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation are again providing additional cost-share funds to WHIP participants," said Lynn. "The additional funds will cover up to 25 percent of the project, and when combined with 75 percent funded by WHIP, there is virtually no cost to the landowner." Other cooperating state wildlife organizations or nonprofit agencies may provide expertise and additional cost-share funds to help the landowner complete the project.

"WHIP is an important conservation program because it restores habitat that was lost due to intensive farming and urbanization", added Lynn. "Private and public schools are encouraged to apply for WHIP funds to create wildlife habitat areas and stream buffers on their school grounds. Conservation practices installed through WHIP provide schools with an excellent resource for developing outdoor educational classrooms where wildlife can be studied and managed."

The WHIP sign-up period will close on Friday, Feb. 26. Landowners interested in filing an application for funding consideration or learning more about WHIP or other conservation programs should contact the Garrett County Soil Conservation District office at 301-334-6951, or the Western Maryland NRCS office at 301-694-9290. Applications will be ranked according to criteria that will determine which proposals offer the most environmental benefits at the lowest cost.

GCC Wildlife Club Gearing Up For Spring

The members of the Garrett Community College Wildlife Club have returned from their winter breaks and are preparing for another semester of raising awareness of wildlife preservation.

The club is currently planning a spring break trip to Arizona and a summer 2000 trip to Alaska. Many fund-raisers have already been conducted to cover the costs of these trips, and more are being planned. Among these are Humanities T-shirt sales, a spring $100 raffle, and sales of pizza and natural bath salts. Current fund-raisers include sales of birdhouses and Wildlife Club T-shirts, and the upcoming Environmental Day concert.

In the past semester, students participated in many volunteer efforts, such as rebuilding of the Cranesville Swamp boardwalk, an animal cruelty seminar, and owl-banding. In addition, they began preparations for Earth Day and the Environmental Day concert. Club members also sold a number of tickets for the club's fall $100 raffle, which was won by Alan Shirley of Keyser, W.Va.

The faculty advisor to the Wildlife Club is Kevin Dodge, director of GCC's Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program.

Hanline Joins Counseling Staff At Dove Center

Heather Hanline has joined the counseling team of the Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic violence/sexual assault resource center. Her main focus will be on the children and youth of the county who have been victims of abuse.

Hanline, who holds a bachelor's and a master's degree in psychology and counseling from Frostburg State University, took on the responsibilities as child therapist for the Dove Center in late fall. In this capacity she counsels children who have witnessed violence and abuse or been subjected to it themselves.

As lead counselor for the Caring Kids Campaign, Hanline's therapeutic duties also encompass preventive education. The program presents a positive model for middle school youth to teach awareness and behaviors that can reduce future incidents of violence and abuse within the family.

"Heather is an asset to the program in her role as child therapist and as counselor for the Caring Kids Connection," said Linda Spassil, executive director of the Dove Center.

Hanline said she believes that reaching youth is an important part of the effort to reduce violence. "I'm thrilled to be working with the kids. This is an excellent way to begin breaking the cycle of abuse," she stated.

Anyone who wishes to receive more information about the programs offered by the Dove Center may call 301-334-9000 or 1-800-894-3872.

Free Seminar On Hiring Set For Feb. 24

The New Art of Hiring Smart is the name of a free seminar that will be presented on Wednesday, Feb. 24, at Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. It will be presented by Phil Schenk of CCHS Consulting, Terra Alta, W.Va., an expert in the field of hiring and selection.

"We will be presenting information about fitting people to jobs," Schenk said, adding that the seminar topics will include: how to hire the right person the first time; how to hire employees who are honest, reliable, drug-free, and hard-working; how to avoid and deal with employee conflict; assessment techniques for better management of existing employees; and the need for procedures that protect against discrimination and negligent hiring lawsuits.

"Hiring is one of management's greatest challenges," Schenk said. "Most hiring decisions are made in the first 4.3 minutes of the interview and many are made instinctively, or on 'gut feel' alone. With the cost of turnover pegged at $3,000 and up per incident, small and large businesses must strive to improve their selections processes, especially with the high number of job seekers competing for fewer jobs."

The two-hour session will be presented twice on February 24, the first beginning at 9 a.m. and the second at 1 p.m. Although there is no charge to attend, pre-registration is necessary, as seating is limited. Reservations may be made by telephoning 1-800-757-6420.

The cost is $171 for tuition and $4 for the registration fee, and payment must be made in full prior to the starting date of the course. Enrollment is limited and registration will be taken on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment is the secret!

OCALA, FL. -- An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred racehorse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx® and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears.

ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some feed stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. ©1997 PGC

Just Walk Away...

It seems to be that easy
Written down on paper
Talk and talk and talk some more.
The spoken word in black-n-white
What's right...
What's wrong...
Maybe it's me?
So just walk away?
See what's on the other side...
How real people live & love & breath.
Is it really that easy?
To risk it all...
To take a chance...
And just walk away.
How much different is your life from mine?
Doors never opened...
And windows remain closed.
Where to find the courage to make a stance?
The fear embedded in my brain...
Carried throughout my life.
From someone...
Always...
Just walking away.
So where does it end?
How do you make it stop?
Seeing the world...
Through my eyes...
Brings a jolt of reality.
The fear you see in me is what I live each day.
So...
Teach me how...
To just walk away.
Slow the pace down...
And walk me through the process,
Each step of the way.
I watch...
And listen...
And may jump off track.
But I've never had the right guidance...
Or freedom to walk my own path.
So just be patient...
And be my friend...
And show me how...
To just walk away

Rentavision

The grand opening of Rentavision in the Grantsville Plaza was held Friday and featured a live remote broadcast by WFRB radio.

One of a chain of 275 stores located in 17 states, Rentavision specializes in rent-to-own contracts on a variety of household appliances, furnishings, large and small electronic items, big screen televisions, entertainment centers, scanners, and video cameras.

Glenn Robinson, a senior supervisor from the Virginia area, was in Grantsville to assist with organizing the store for the opening celebration. "The rent-to-own concept is new to some people. It gives people an opportunity to purchase quality products on convenient terms. There are no credit checks and no down payments to speak of," he said.

Rentavision offers brand name products including JVC, Fisher, G.E., Amana, and Crosley. Payments for rent-to-own contracts can be established on weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly terms. "We tailor contracts to meet the needs of the individuals," Robinson explained.

Five staff members for the store were hired locally and are currently working under the supervision of acting store manager Wade Kinsman. They will be available to help customers visiting the store during business hours, which are Monday-Thursday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Fridays from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"Talking About Faith" Is Theme Of Lenten Series

The community is invited to a series of Lenten worship services and soup suppers on Wednesday nights, Feb. 17-March 24, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland. Each evening will begin with a free soup supper at 6 p.m. The worship service will follow at 7 p.m. and will feature sermons that focus on the important teachings of the Christian faith, according to a church spokesperson.

The sermons will focus on baptism, the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, the Apostle's Creed, justification, the scriptures, and holy communion. According to Pastor Mike Robinson, Lent began in the early church as a time to prepare adults for baptism.

"According to this tradition, people who were interested in becoming Christians were instructed during a 40-day period of fasting and prayer, at the end of which they were baptized and made members of the church," Robinson said. "The material used for this instruction was called the 'catechism,' which usually contained teachings on certain parts of the scripture."

The pastor will supplement his sermons with a booklet written by Dr. Patrick Keifert titled "Talking About Our Faith."

For more information, persons may contact the church office at 301-334-2668. The church is located in Oakland at the corner of Second and Center streets, near the Ruth Ehlow Library.

GCAC Announces Deadline For Grant Applicants

The Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) has announced that March 21 is the deadline for non-profit organizations to submit applications for grant funding. The arts council is making available grants for $500 or more for arts programs or projects scheduled between July 1, 1999, and June 30, 2000.

Requests for funding support must be submitted on approved application forms available at the arts council office. To obtain the forms, persons may contact the office at 301-387-3121.

With primary funding from the Maryland State Arts Council, the Garrett County Arts Council awards grants to non-profit organizations presenting arts programs or projects to the public in Garrett County or presenting them for the benefit of Garrett citizens. Recipients must supply a cash match for all programs and projects awarded funding support. The programs must also meet specific eligibility criteria, including accessibility to persons with disabilities.

According to Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the GCAC, applications will be reviewed according to established criteria for artistic merit, significance for intended audience and participating artists, organizational effectiveness, service to the community, and financial feasibility.

Last year, GCAC awarded a total of $22,400 to 13 organizations requesting funding support. Programs presented with these funds included concerts, festivals, shows, recitals, and exhibits.

Qualifying organizations may apply for funding support for any type of public visual or performing arts activity, including music, dance, creative writing and poetry, drama, storytelling, painting and exhibitions, and other arts events.

Organizations that need less than $500 are encouraged to apply for mini-grant consideration from the GCAC. These grants are available throughout the year, but applications for them must be submitted at least 45 days prior to the program or project for which the funding support is needed.

For more information and complete grant guidelines, persons may call the office at the number noted above or write to GCAC, P.O. Box 930, McHenry, MD 21541.

Chamber's Kids Club Bringing Tourism Home

The Kids Club of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce took to the slopes of the Wisp last Thursday in order to introduce them to the basics of downhill skiing and give them an understanding of how the resort caters to its tourist clientele. Thirty five students from Northern and Southern Middle schools visited the ski resort, the new Visitor's Center, and Pizzazz pizzeria as part of their evening sojourn. (See page C-1 for photos from the event.)

"The weekly adventure will continue as long as the cold weather permits snowmaking," said Jerry Geisler, Wisp manager and vice president of the Chamber. "Parents are also encouraged to participate with their children for a night of family fun."

A tourism promotion activity designed to educate local youth on the value of tourism to Garrett County, the Kids Club acquaints participants with the varied career possibilities of the tourism industry by taking them to some of the area's outdoor resources that make the county a tourist destination. The club is a collaborative effort of the Chamber and the Garrett County Board of Education.

The snow-skiing outings are the first of many planned sports and recreational activities for the Kids Club. Future opportunities will include boating, hiking, and canoeing experiences, and nature education at the Department of Natural Resources' Discovery Center, tentatively set to open this June at Deep Creek Lake State Park.

A number of generous individuals, organizations, and businesses have assisted in bringing the Kids Club concept to life. The co-chairs of the Chamber's Tourism Promotion Committee, Doug McClive of McMclive's Restaurant and Cathy Clocker-Brant of WKHJ radio, have been instrumental in the club's formation. Travel arrangements have been coordinated with the Garrett County Community Action Committee, and monetary contributions have been received from Bosley Construction, Wisp Ski & Golf Resort, McClive's Restaurant, Smiley's Pizzeria, Railey Realty, and A&A/Long and Foster Realtors.

"The Chamber would especially like to thank principals Bill Carlson [of NMS] and Jack Rickman [of SMS], and the lucky chaperons, [NMS teachers] George Lander and Ed Andrews, who volunteer their time and energy to keep the chaos at bay and the good will abounding," a Chamber spokesperson said.

Businesses or organizations that would like to participate, contribute, or volunteer services to the Chamber of Commerce Kids Club may call the Chamber's office at 301-387-6171 for further information.

Registration is under way for courses in the Bowie State University (BSU) Bachelor of Science in Technology program, according to Terry Norris, Garrett Community College coordinator.

The program is open to students who have an associate in arts or an associate in applied science degree from a community college and who wish to obtain a bachelor of science degree without leaving Garrett County. They will enroll as Bowie State University students in the courses offered through the distance learning network and earn a total of 60 credits required to complete the degree. Students may enter the program at any time.

The next series of courses is scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5 to 10 p.m. at the Oakland Maryland National Guard Armory, beginning March 29 and ending May 23. Statistics for Management (ECON 499) will be offered on Tuesdays, and Human Resources Management (BUAD 490) will be offered on Thursdays.

This coming summer from June 1 to July 23, Intercultural Communications (SPLG 403) will be offered on Tuesdays and Computer Applications for Business (BUAD 309) will be offered on Thursdays, both during the same time frames.

In-state tuition for these three credit courses is $119 per credit hour for part-time students, with fees of $91.50. Out-of-state tuition for part-time students is $325 per credit hour. Students who take six credits in two 8-week sessions in the fall or spring semesters will pay full-time tuition and fees of $1,733.50 in-state and $4,145 out-of-state.

Persons desiring further information about the BSU Bachelor in Technology program may call Dr. Norris at 301-387-3043.

Team One Auto Expands Under New Ownership

Team One Automotive, Oakland, has come under new ownership and management within the last few months, resulting in changes to the business. Seven new employees have joined the staff, and others have moved into new positions.

The new owners of the business are Garrett County natives Larry Sisler and Skip Bernard. They noted their goals to expand service to their customers and add to the staff already employed.

Among those to join the Team One staff under the new ownership is service manager Bobby Lloyd. An ASE-certified master technician, he has worked in the automotive industry for 15 years, during which time he owned and operated his own garage.

Body shop technician Kelvin Bernard brought 25 years of experience to his new job with Team One. Ronnie Edmond, a service technician, holds a Chevrolet certification and ASE certification in three areas.

Ross Savage, who aiso has previous automotive experience, joined the dealership as the assistant parts manager. Joining the staff as service writer and warranty clerk is Mike Hauger, while Eric Uphold has come on board as a technician.

At the front desk now serving as Team One's receptionist as well as finance and insurance assistant is Sandy Wakefield.

Two employees moved into new positions at the start of the year. Rose Watts has taken on the responsibilities of business office assistant and Rick Livengood had been name sales manager. Livengood holds certifications from Jeep and Chevrolet/Oldsmobile.

Thanks So Much

I would like to thank everyone for their cards, flowers, prayers, phone calls, visits, gifts, and food. Your concerns and expressions of caring meant so much to me and my family during my eight weeks in the hospital.

Special thanks to you and God Bless you all.

Mabel Griffith

We went looking for you today,
Each of us at our own time and in our own way.
At first we couldn't find you, but then there you were, soaring with the eagles.
Each of us told you how much you were thought of and missed this year.
Each of us laughed with you; and yes, cried.
Each of us shared our special memories with you.
Each of us said goodbye, knowing this time when you go that a part of you is in all of us, your children, and no one can take that from us.

Dedicated to Al "Lem" Lemley, our father, the man who left behind his humor, strong will and knowledge in each of us.

We love you Dad...Don, Denise, Bear and Mary

GARRETT COUNTY

GA98G008/1 - The Garrett County Sanitary District, 313 East Alder Street, Room 200, Oakland, MD 21550 has applied to appropriate an annual average of 42,000 gallons per day (gpd) of ground water and 63,000 gpd during the month of maximum use for a municipal water supply for the towns of Kitzmiller and Shallmar. The water is to be taken from one well in the Alleghany-Pottsville Formation, located on the north side of North Hill Road, 0.5 mile northwest of the junction of North Hill Road and Shallmar Road, 0.3 mile north of Shallmar, Garrett County, Maryland.

The production well, installed in a fractured, consolidated rock aquifer, will be 445 feet deep. Impacts to the resource and nearby users were evaluated using data from geological reports and investigations available to the Water Management Administration, and an on-site, aquifer pumping test. Pumping during periods of maximum use may lower the water table about 0-10 feet in the nearest domestic well. In making the evaluation, it was assumed that all water was pumped continuously at the maximum monthly rate for 60 days with no recharge to the aquifer. Should any unreasonable impacts occur, the applicant will have to adjust its use or replace the affected wells.

HOW BAD ARE YOU?

Many people believe that Christianity is for good people. They believe that in order to get right with God a person must become better than he/she was before. They believe that the more moral a person acts, the more likely that person will go to Heaven. It's odd that people would think this way. It is directly opposite of what Christ taught.

Do you know who Christ came to seek and save? He came to seek and save "The Lost." Christ did not come to Earth to save good people. Good people don't believe they need a complete cure. They think they just need a little fixing up. Christ said that people who aren't sick don't need a doctor. Only people who are sick need a physician. Good people don't see themselves as being sick beyond help. They think that they are OK just as they are. They believe that God must let them into Heaven based on their record of good deeds.

On the other hand, bad people don't have such misconceptions. Bad people know what they have done, and worse still, what they would have done if they had the opportunity. Bad people know that God sees the wicked motives of their hearts. Bad people aren't fooled by a moral exterior. Bad people know what they would do if they could do anything they wanted and never get caught. Think about that. Who would really choose sacrificial good deeds in such a situation? What would you do?

The Bible says that all of our righteousness is as filthy rags to God. We are not capable of earning our salvation. Really, only God is truly "good." The rest of us were born spiritually bankrupt. That is why the Gospel is such good news. If you are not a good person, this is your lucky day. Christ came to save someone just like you. You can receive His goodness to count as yours. You can enter Heaven wearing Christ's righteousness instead of your own. Christ will give you a new heart that wants to obey His Word. And when you see good things coming out of your life you will know, like the turtle on top of a fence post, that you didn't put yourself in that position. It is Christ who gets the credit for the goodness of His people. Call on Him today. He won't cast you out.

And for those of you who think you are pretty good, think again. The difference between you and a bad person is only the clarity with which you look at yourself. We all need the righteousness of Christ if we hope to enter fellowship with God.

I would be pleased to discuss any of this with you. Please call Jon Zeigler at 301-334-6956.

FINAL PREPARATIONS are under way by the members of the Ecumenical Youth Ministry, who will present four performances of the popular musical Oliver! next week at St. Peter's Catholic Church Parish Hall. Tickets for the production are "selling rapidly," according to director Lynn Broderick, and may be purchased for $5 each at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from EYM cast and crew members. The story centers around a late 19th century English orphan who is taken in by a street gang and comes into contact with unsavory, as well as compassionate, individuals. Playing the role of Oliver is Emily Bowman, pictured above, left foreground. Also in the foreground, from left, are: Shannon Martin (center), Gina Powell, Varian Mattingly, Alex Hill, Bryan Pase, and Leah Broderick. In the background, from left, are Adriel and Shanna Clark, Sheila Nolan, and Miriam Sincell. Performances will begin at 8 p.m. next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Feb. 25-27, and Sunday, Feb. 28, at 2 p.m. The EYM is sponsored by St. Mark's Lutheran, St. Peter's Catholic, and St. Matthew's and St. John's Episcopal churches; however, youngsters from over a dozen churches are involved in the organization, which is open to all youth, regardless of church affiliation.

According to a report from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the baby's mother, Deborah Ann Beckman, was driving a 1993 Pontiac sedan northbound on Gorman Road, just outside of Loch Lynn, when she lost control of the vehicle on the snow-covered roadway. The car struck the embankment and then hit a telephone pole on Dr. Tolson Road.

The Southern Rescue Squad transported the driver to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. The baby, who had been secured in a child safety seat at the time of the wreck, was taken to the local hospital by private vehicle, and then RUNNING TO FIGHT LEUKEMIA — Local runner Ellinor Hamilton and her two canine pals are sprinting around Garrett County on a regular basis, training faithfully for the Midnight Sun Marathon, set for June 19 in Anchorage, Alaska. Hamilton has joined Team in Training (TNT), an organization of athletes who raise funds for the Leukemia Society of America while training together for a specific 26.2-mile marathon or 100-mile bicycle ride. TNT raised about $320,000 for leukemia research in its inaugural year (1988). Last year 20,000 TNT participants gathered up over $50 million. Hamilton is the first Garrett Countian to take part in the event. See story.

Local Marathoner Raising Funds For Leukemia Society

Local runner Ellinor Hamilton has joined Team in Training (TNT), an organization of runners, walkers, and bikers who raise funds for the Leukemia Society of America while training together for a specific 26.2-mile marathon or 100-mile bicycle ride. Founded in 1988 by a woman training for the New York City Marathon, TNT raised $320,000 for leukemia research in its inaugural year. Last year 20,000 TNT participants nationwide contributed $50 million.

The Accident resident is the first-ever participant from Garrett County, according to Carrie Gittings, TNT's Maryland Chapter coordinator. Hamilton's team of some 60 Maryland runners and walkers are training for the Midnight Sun Marathon, set for June 19 in Anchorage, Alaska.

"Each of us is required to raise $4,000 for the Leukemia Society's work by the end of May to be eligible," Hamilton explained. "At first I thought it would be impossible; then I started thinking that Garrett Countians and neighboring area residents might really appreciate being part of this. My own 'patient hero,' an 11-year-old Hagerstown boy, is my inspiration: He fought it with over two years of chemotherapy, and now he's on his local swimming, soccer, and little league teams.

Oakland Area's Future Growth To Be Public Meeting Topic

A community meeting to develop a 10-year vision of Oakland and the surrounding region is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 24, 6:30 p.m. in the Oakland fire hall. Sponsored by the Oakland Main Street program and the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA), the evening will be hosted by Cindy Stone, coordinator of the Main Street Maryland Program.

All interested citizens are encouraged to attend and participate in this visioning process, according to Oakland mayor Asa McCain, who added that the gathering represents a unique opportunity for the many interests involved in the future of the entire area to get together to begin developing a coherent vision and a plan to implement that vision. Along with the general public, representatives of the county's Chamber of Commerce, Economic Development Corporation, and Board of Commissioners, and officials from all of the region's townships and municipalities have been invited to attend as well.

"The evening is designed to get input from the public about what people want their community and their region to look like in the coming years," explained Stone, who works out of the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development's Neighborhood Revitalization division. "The timing is perfect for this type of discussion because while Oakland is in the midst of a major revitalization effort, there is talk of big discount stores wanting to move in while other topics being addressed include new highways and bypasses."

The meeting will attempt to guide participants towards an agreement on the major issues and themes faced by the town of Oakland and the area as a whole, including the possibility of the development of a new comprehensive plan for the area, and the setting of guidelines for future growth within a vision plan. Timetables for actions on these plans may be esta-

Finzel Man Charged With Child's Murder

Garrett Eldred Wilson, 42, Finzel, arrested Monday and charged in the 1981 death of his infant daughter. Previously Wilson was charged with murdering his infant son in 1987 and pleaded innocent to the charges.

Initially the deaths of both children were attributed to SIDS — Sudden Infant Death Syndrome. However, according to recently published reports, an investigation has led the medical examiner to change the cause of death for Garrett Michael Wilson in 1987 and of Brandi Jean Wilson in 1981 to smothering. Wilson collected insurance moneys totaling $190,000 from the deaths of the two children.

It was Wilson's third wife, Mary Anastasi, who accused him of murdering their son and prevailed upon police to reinvestigate the case, the reported noted.

Wilson was arrested at his home near Long Stretch, where he lives with his fourth wife and young son.

GBI Arrests Nine This Week For Crimes Involving Theft, Abuse

The Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI) has logged a variety of arrests this week involving crimes such as theft and child abuse. The GBI consists of investigative officers from the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the Maryland State Police, the county's Narcotics Task Force, and the State's Attorney's Office for Garrett County. With one case, the GBI worked in coordination with the C31 Unit of Allegany County. In another involving three local juveniles, the GBI worked with the Oakland City Police Department.

CHILD ABUSE

John Samuel Barone, 36, McHenry, was arrested by the GBI on Thursday, Feb. 11, on three counts of child abuse, two counts of sexual offense in the third degree, two counts of sexual offense in the fourth degree, and two counts of assault.

Barone is accused of sexually abusing a young female in his home for the past two months. The GBI investigation was prompted by a complaint from the Department of Social Services, according to reports.

Barone was apparently released after posting $25,000 bond.

BURGLARY

A coordinated investigation between the Allegany County C31 Unit and the GBI has resulted in the arrest of five individuals implicated in the burglaries of two Garrett County residences. Arrested were Cumberland residents Leanna R. Owens, 18, Ronald A. Greene, 21, Randy J. Frye, 18, John F. Sarver, 20, and one 17-year-old male.

Two homes on Vista Ridge Road in Friendsville were burglarized sometime between Jan. 5 and 22, with one of the residences broken into twice during that

Chamber Proposes Shuttle Service Trial Program

The Deep Creek Lake Affairs Committee of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce is planning to test the waters for a trial summer shuttle service to provide public transportation through the corridor between Deep Creek Lake State Park and the McHenry area. The service would be a joint effort of the Lake Affairs committee and the Garrett County Community Action Committee, with the hope that the project will qualify for state or federal transportation funding assistance in the future.

"Our goal is to organize a shuttle service with a route from Deep Creek Lake State Park to the McHenry area, with shuttle stops purchased on the route [by participating businesses] to fund the transportation system," a Lake Affairs committee spokesperson said. "We foresee a time when additional shuttles offer connections to the Lake Shuttle from Oakland and Grantsville, among other towns, several times a day as the system grows."

Projections for the trial shuttle season include a proposal to utilize a 22-passenger Community Action vehicle seven days a week, Fridays and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 a.m, and Sundays through Thursdays from 10 a.m to 10 p.m. Under one proposal the service would operate over the Memorial Day holiday week, then take short hiatus, resume on Thursday, June 10, and continue through Sunday, Aug. 29.

The proposed shuttle service will operate for a 12-

Dunkers Can Still Register To Support Md. Special Olympics

There is still time to sign up for the great Deep Creek Dunk and support the Special Olympics of Maryland (SOMD). Registration will begin Saturday at noon at Uno's, followed by lunch for the dunkers. The fund-raising dip into the frigid waters of the lake will take place at 2 p.m.

Pledges of $50 qualify a dunker join in this ice-breaking event. As of yesterday about 100 people had pre-registered to go jump in the lake, according to information from Dave Gel at the Columbia office of SOMD. "We will probably have a number register on the day of the event. We've already surpassed our expectations," Gel said. He noted that the organizers of event are very pleased with the public response.

Capt. Greg Shipley of the Public Affairs Unit of Maryland State Police said yesterday that the dunk would take place rain, snow, or shine. "And I think the snow will be falling lightly," he noted.

A disk jockey will provide music to further increase the party atmosphere, Shipley said. "The Maryland State Police dive team will check the area for safety before the dunk," he added.

Registration brochures are available at following county locations: The Grantsville and Oakland offices of The Republican, Uno's, A&A Realty/Long & Foster Realtors, and Maryland State Police, McHenry barrack.

Those participating in this first-ever event in Garrett County will be required to don protective footwear of some type while dunking. An old pair of "sneakers" would qualify.

The Special Winter Olympics, in which Garrett County residents will participate, will begin Sunday at Wisp and feature alpine and cross country skiing events. See separate story.

Dr. Teets, Board Seek Funds From State For Schools

Garrett County school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets and members of the board of education continue their efforts to secure funding for county schools. In pursuit of funds for construction/renovation projects at the county's high schools, Dr. Teets sent a letter last week to Gov. Parris Glendening requesting money for these specific projects.

Dr. Teets explained to the governor that funding previously allocated for gymnasium facilities at Northern and Southern high schools had been inadequate to complete the work. "Our schools have the same needs for basic facility space as the urban schools," Dr. Teets stated in his letter.

Noting the state budget surplus as a possible source of the requested funds, Dr. Teets urged the governor to approve his request for funds. "It seems only fair and justified that our stu-

Rural Legacy Program To Be Topic At GGBA

Maryland's Rural Legacy Program will be the subject of a presentation to members of the Greater Grantsville Business Association during the group's monthly meeting Tuesday. The director of Maryland Mountain Trust, Mick Womersley, will speak to the business group about this and other programs offered to encourage historic protection and conservation.

A non-profit conservation organization, Maryland Mountain Trust was formed last year to assist landowners and communities in Garrett, Allegany, and far western Washington counties to receive benefits from a variety of state programs. "Some of them are directed specifically to rural communities and community economic development," Womersley said.

The information that he will give to the GGBA will provide suggestions on using techniques of the Rural Legacy program to further economic development in the Grantsville area which is compatible with the heritage of the community.

GGBA meetings are held the last Tuesday of each month at Penn Alps Restaurant, beginning at 8:30 a.m. Full membership is open to any business with a Grantsville address or phone number or located within the voting districts of Grantsville, Avilton, or Bittinger. Affiliate membership is open to any business outside this area. Guests are welcome at meetings.

Four Injured In Accident; Speed Noted As Cause

An accident on Route 219 Saturday resulting from uncontrolled speeding caused injury to one driver and three passengers of another vehicle.

Maryland State Police at the McHenry barrack reported that at 11:40 a.m. Humbied Offutt, 43, Sterling, Va., was southbound on Route 219 near Jasper Riley Road and slowed to turn into a private drive.

A juvenile driver following the Offutt vehicle allegedly failed to give full time and attention to operating his car and rear ended the vehicle driven by Offutt.

Southern Rescue Squad responded to the scene and transported the juvenile, and three passengers in the Offutt vehicle to Garrett Memorial Hospital for treatment. The juvenile driver was charged by police with failure to control speed.

Traveling Too Fast

Speed on an icy road was noted by police as the cause of an accident Saturday on Turkey Neck Road.

According to the report, Justin C. Hepner, 22, Virginia Beach, Va., was traveling northbound too fast for road conditions at 3:30 p.m. when he lost traction and control of his vehicle.

Hepner's vehicle then crossed into the southbound lane and struck a vehicle driven by Andrew M. Carlisle, 16, Mtn. Lake Park. A passenger in the Carlisle vehicle, Joe Ann Sunny, 39, was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospitai by Southern Rescue Squad for treatment of injuries.

Hepner was charged in the incident.

Strikes Embankment

Three people were treated for injuries following an accident last Thursday at 5 p.m. Police reported that a 1994 Escort station wagon traveling westbound on I-68 east of Finzel, drove across the rumble strips, skidded across all three lanes of westbound I-68 and struck an embankment and ditch.

The driver, Emily G. Sager, 24, Waynesburg, Pa., and two passengers, Austin F. Sager, 23, and Richard A. Sager, 19 months, were taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries.

Failed to Yield

An accident on Friendsville Road near the ramp onto I-68 last Friday at 5:34 p.m. occurred when Benita L. Hillery, 39, Great Cacapon, W.Va., reportedly failed to yield right of way to another vehicle when driving across the roadway. The other vehicle, driven by Eric Deboni, 33, Friendsville, struck the Hillery vehicle.

Hillery was transported along with a passenger, Amy R. Smith, 8, to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va., for treatment.

K-9 dog "Hanno" was released to chase the youth and was able to stop him a short distance into the trees, according to the report.

The youth was returned to the camp, where he was treated for injuries sustained during the scuffle with Hanno.

Eating Disorders Seminar, Support Group Scheduled

SUZANNE E. TOMB

Next week is Eating Disorders Awareness Week. Recognized as posing a major health risk to many young people, eating disorders will be the subject of a presentation at Garrett Community College next Wednesday by Suzanne E. Tomb, LCSW-C. In the weeks following this information session, she will facilitate a support group for families and friends of people struggling with eating disorders.

A Garrett County resident who has worked previously in both urban and rural areas, Tomb noted the universality of eating disorders. "In rural areas there may be less awareness of the problem and a lack of services. The problems are just as prevalent in rural areas as anywhere else," she said.

Tomb will present the characteristics of anorexia nervosa and bulimia, two major forms of disorder. "I will talk about how to identify these problems and how to respond to a person who has one of these disorders," she stated.

In her discussion, Tomb will describe warning signs, including eating habits, physical health, and personality traits, which can indicate the existence of an eating problem. Family characteristics also can be linked to these disorders, she explained. "In my presentation I will also touch on the issue of parental guilt. Parents often feel as if they are to blame," she said.

Responding in a helpful way to a person with anorexia or bulimia will be another topic that Tomb will explore during her presentation. "Sometimes they (parents) need to do just the opposite of what they might think to be the best thing to do. They may want to monitor, but the more the parent wants to take control, the more the child will exert herself," she explained.

Tomb's presentation on eating disorders, which is offered free of charge and is open to the public, will be held in the Continuing Education Building at GCC February 24, beginning at 7 p.m.

Support sessions for families and friends of persons with eating disorders will be held in the Continuing Education Building of GCC on the second and fourth Wednesday of each month, 7-8:30 p.m. There is no charge for participation in these group sessions. Though one need not attend all support group meetings, Tomb suggested that persons attending plan to stay for the whole period.

For further information about the sessions or eating disorders, persons may call Suzanne Tomb at 301-387-2996.

Man Sentenced To Three Years For Burglary

An Oakland man was sentenced to three years in jail, having been convicted earlier of second degree burglary. Dwight Howard Clary, 21, faced Judge James Sherbin in a Garrett County Circuit Court sentencing hearing last week. Clary was convicted of the burglary charged after he was implicated in a 1998 break-in of a Kitzmiller garage.

Clary was also sentenced to a concurrent three-year term for the charge of felony theft, and the judge declared him jointly liable for $1,151 in restitution to the victims in the case, according to a report from the State's Attorney for Garrett County.

A jury found Clary guilty of the charges in a trial last year and, according to the state's attorney, sentencing had been withheld pending the outcome of a motion for a new trial, which was subsequently denied by Sherbin.

The burglary took place on Feb. 20, 1998, when Clary and two juveniles apparently threw a cement block through the window of Bob's Garage in Kitzmiller. The Garrett County Sheriff's Office investigated the incident and reported that beer and cigarettes were stolen from the business. The two juveniles have been found to be delinquent and are currently in the custody of the Department of Juvenile Justice, the state's attorney reported.

This sentence for Clary will begin after he finishes serving a current term of 44 months, imposed upon him for other convictions.

In another circuit court hearing last week, Rebecca Ann Deem, 25, Oakland, was sentenced by Judge Fred Thayer to one year in the Garrett County Jail for the charge of marijuana distribution. An additional five days was incurred by Deem for the charge of marijuana possession, according to the report.

Deem had pleaded guilty to the charges in a December trial, at which a presentence investigation was ordered. She was arrested in July of last year after sheriff's office deputies discovered that she had apparently helped a jail inmate obtain marijuana twice in one month.

In a third case last week, an Oakland man entered a guilty plea to a driving charge. Kenneth William Hawkins, 32, was charged with driving while his privilege was revoked. Sherbin imposed a fine of $500 fine and a sentence of two years to the Department of Corrections, with all time suspended except eight months, to be served in the local jail. He will then be on supervised probation for two years.

Hawkins was charged on Aug. 18, 1998, by a sheriff's deputy who had seen him driving in the McHenry area and who knew of the status of the defendant's license. The case came to circuit court when Hawkins requested a jury trial, the state's attorney explained.

"CONSIDER YOURSELF AT HOME" are the welcoming words of the Artful Dodger when he meets the orphaned Oliver Twist in the popular musical Oliver!, which will be presented by the Ecumenical Youth Ministry next week at the St. Peter's Catholic Church Parish Hall. Playing the role of Dodger is Miriam Sincell, pictured left, while Emily Bowman, right, is portraying young Oliver. Tickets for the performances, slated for Thursday through Sunday, Feb. 25-28, are now on sale for $5 each and are "moving fast," according to EYM director and play director Lynn Broderick. They may be purchased at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., or from EYM members. See front page photo caption for more details.

Town Elections Set In Accident

The town of Accident will hold municipal elections on Tuesday, March 2, to fill the offices of mayor and two council members. The polls will be open 4-8 p.m. at Town Hall in the municipal building.

During the town convention on February 2, Richard Carlson was nominated for mayor and Charles W. Hahn and Thomas Georg were nominated as council members.

Accident holds an open registration, and eligible residents may register at Town Hall on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Qualified voters who are unable to come to the polls because of illness, disability, military duty, or absences for business, travel, or school attendance on election day may obtain absentee ballots by contacting town clerk Ruth Ann Hahn at 301-746-6346 between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

State Police Report Local Drug Arrests

A traffic stop on I-68 last Thursday at 9:45 a.m. resulted in the arrest of Christopher E. Smith, 31, Durango, Col., on drug charges.

According to the report filed by Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, when Smith was stopped for a traffic violation, a license check showed that his license was suspended in New York. He was placed under arrest and a search of his person incident to the arrest revealed a container of marijuana.

Arrest On Rt. 40

Mark Novotney, 36, Markleton, Pa., was reportedly traveling 71 mph in a 50 mph zone on Route 40 west of Keyers Ridge last Thursday at 4:33 p.m. when he was stopped by police. A routine check of his license revealed it was suspended. He was arrested and a search of his vehicle revealed marijuana.

Novotny was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana and driving while suspended.

Four arrests were made at Barrack W on Sunday when Guy McCombs III, 18, Vienna, Va., entered the barrack to get a vehicle release. The odor of marijuana on his person and from inside his vehicle led to the request to search the vehicle, police reported.

The search revealed a bag of marijuana and stems and seeds of marijuana in the ash tray. Police arrested McCombs and three other occupants of the car, Daniel C. Pocratsky, 19, Union Town, Pa.; Joseph A. Jupina III, 18, Uniontown; and Heath B. Fordyce, 18, Gararde Fort, Pa.

NRWT Program Restructured At Garrett CC

The Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology (NRWT) program of Garrett Community College has been restructured into a two-tier program which will require students to earn a certificate at the conclusion of their first year in order to be selectively admitted into the program's second year.

Beginning in the fall semester, students who enter the program will complete 35.5 credits of course work during their first year and receive a certificate. "This year will give students an opportunity to explore the field and to develop basic skills that will prepare them for entrance into the second year of the program," stated program director Kevin Dodge.

Courses available during this pre-professional year include natural resources practical skills, backcountry living skills, surveying and map interpretation, introduction to geographical information systems, dendrology, wildlife biology, and general ecology.

To be admitted into the second year professional program, students must earn a minimum grade point average of 2.7 in their first year and must demonstrate traits and attitudes conducive to success in the field. Upon completion of 34.5 credit hours in courses such as water quality assessment, soil and water conservation, forest management, fisheries biology and management, wildlife techniques and habitat management, and environmental science, participants are awarded the associate in applied science degree.

"The graduates of our program are very employable," said Dodge. "We plan to have even more practical application in our courses than before, and the entire program will be oriented toward employment in the private sector, such as in environmental consulting, as well as in more traditional careers with government agencies that manage natural resources. Many of our courses are taught by adjunct instructors who are employed in the areas they are teaching. This gives our students direct contact with professionals working in their field."

Persons interested in further information about the revised NRWT program may call Dodge at 301-387-3067.

State Tax Credit Program Profits Oakland Station

Renovation efforts for the Oakland train station received a boost this week with the announcement by Garrett County Community Action and the Oakland Main Street Program of a $50,000 state tax incentive package. The tax benefit will be available to regional business owners who donate cash and goods to the renovation effort.

The program assures contributors that they will receive 50 percent of their donation back in tax credits alone. By adding the usual state and federal deductions for charitable contributions to the tax credits, the net cost of a contribution can be less than 30 cents for every dollar given.

Under the Neighborhood Partnership Program (NPP) any business that pays taxes in the state of Maryland and offers a minimum $500 contribution in goods or cash to the train station may make use of the tax credits. "This is great news not only for the train station but for local businesses as well, " said Duane Yoder, president of GCCAC.

Local business people will be able to "show community spirit" while getting back much of their investment, Yoder said.

Under a typical scenario for giving money or goods to the train station, a company which gives $10,000 would be returned all but $2,623 in tax credits and state and federal income tax savings, Main Street program manager Glenn Tolbert explained. A company making the same $10,000 donation without the tax credits would only receive $5,673 back after taxes.

"It was definitely good news for us to be notified that the train station project was eligible for these tax credit. We're hoping that all regional businesses will make the best of this opportunity to help out the community and get a major break on their investment," said Oakland mayor Asa McCain.

The Oakland Train Station was selected as one of 21 projects in the state for the tax credit program. The grant application was prepared by Mikal McCartney of GCCAC and Tolbert.

There are guidelines for use of the tax credits. A business must start using tax credits owed for the year in which the contribution is made. But any excess tax credits may be carried over for five years following the year in which the contribution is made until the full credit is used. Tax credits for 1999 are available in return for contributions made between January 1 and December 31, 1999.

Businesses may wish to time contributions for optimum tax benefit, based on their own fiscal year. For more information about how to make use of this tax credit program for donations to the Oakland station revitalization effort, persons may contact Tolbert at the Oakland Main Street office at 301-533-4470.

Thank You

"Thank you" to everyone for all the love and support we've received through the cards, flowers, donations to the Epilepsy Foundation, acts of kindness, food, shoulders to cry on, caring and prayers at the loss of Dee Dee. Knowing there are so many people who care has been a great comfort to us. Everything is greatly appreciated.

We Care...

Just give Garrett County residents a worthy cause and they'll agree to do just about anything. Skeptics of that claim should show up at Deep Creek Lake behind Uno's Restaurant this Saturday afternoon to watch at least 125 individuals go for a swim in Deep Creek Lake, all (and only) for a good cause.

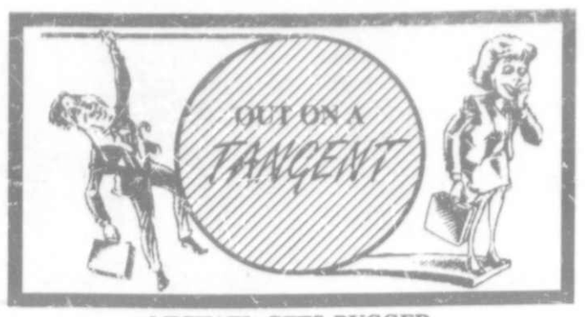
Each of the participants in the first Deep Creek Dunk will raise a minimum of $50 for Special Olympics Maryland; however, to date a couple of the "dunkers" have pledges of over $600. The total proceeds could meet or exceed $10,000.

The overwhelming response to this event is typical of Garrett County residents, who are always anxious to find ways to help other people. What makes this particular example even more special is that the great majority of the ultimate benefactors of this frigid plunge are people from outside the county. They are the athletes of the Maryland Special Olympics, the winter games of which are held at the Wisp Ski Area. For the first time in at least 10 years, Garrett County will be represented in the winter games, by two local athletes.

Even during all the years that we had no county residents participating in the games at the Wisp, we supplied the bulk of the volunteers who make the games possible, serving as time-keepers, presenters of awards, coaches, members of the torchlight parade, and in various other capacities.

In most areas, and always when there is a tragedy, we do a great job of looking out for our own. But it is even more admirable that we also care about people well beyond the county's boundaries.

So come on out and watch us slightly crazy people take a cold dip on Saturday. Better yet, if you haven't already, how about pledging a few bucks for the cause?



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Now that our newly elected officials have had the chance to get their political feet wet, it's about time the public is made aware of activities the county fathers are involved in and how they vote on certain issues. It is somewhat apparent that certain special interests may be served, especially some from previous employers. Tongues wag, tales are told, and the spin goes on.

I'm sure the oath of office did not include being chaste and virtuous, but did include a promise to carry out the duties of their office in a dignified, orderly manner. Full disclosure in your weekly paper would serve to inform the public of all issues concerning the taxpayers at all levels of county government.

A recent article published in the Cumberland paper concerning the hiring of a new county administrator reported his salary of $82,000. Has it ever been disclosed what the Garrett County Administrator's salary is? What are the salaries of our elected officials? The judges, sheriff's office, county attorney, commissioners, etc? Who gives pay increases and how are they arrived at?

I have been a county taxpayer for over 40 years and I voted for all the elected officials except one. It is time for honest county government, moral and ethical values, fidelity, and integrity above reproach. Be a model for all the communities surrounding us. Chamber of Commerce members and others who are responsible should be promoting the welfare of this county.

We need stiffer sentencing for domestic violence and drunken driving. It's our responsibility, and our leadership needs to do its job. The Ten Commandments have not been rewritten. It's time we take a new look at them.

Donald L. Johnston
Deep Creek Lake

Dear Mr. Johnston,

On more than one occasion we have published salary information, including specific numbers, about all of our government/county officials.

Editor

Editor's Note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County Commissioners requested that it also appear as a letter to the editor.

Dear Commissioners,

It is on behalf of the victims who instill in us the strength to pursue our mission to end violence against women and children that I write to you. I am requesting an appropriation in FY '00 for the Dove Center in order to assist in continuing our efforts to reduce violence in Garrett County.

We have work that yet needs to be addressed in our community in order to empower battered women and children so they may regain control over their own lives. We have to educate and challenge a society that fails to acknowledge the brutality and lethality of domestic and sexual violence, and we have to assist in holding abusers responsible for their violence.

A partnership with Garrett County government will tell this community that abuse of vulnerable populations will not be tolerated. Additional funding for our program will enhance our services so that we may adequately respond to the ever-increasing requests for services and safety.

Our needs are diversified to allow you the choice of where you best see valuable tax dollars supplementing our agency's budget. They include the following: 12 months' rent on our shelter facility @ $375 per month for a total of $4,500 a year; 12 months' rent on office space estimated @ $750 per month for a total of $9,000 a year; a full-time bachelor level counselor position @ $24,960 per year plus fringe; a full-time nighttime shelter staff position @ $15,600 per year plus fringe; an administrative assistant position @ $22,880 per year plus fringe; a computer, scanner, Internet connection and printer services of approximately $2,000 for development of brochures, handouts, and newsletters; a photocopy machine @ approximately $5,000; a new phone system @ approximately $2,500; Office furniture for outreach offices @ $2,000; or therapeutic videos, booklets, and printed materials $1,500.

Please consider joining our efforts to make Garrett County an area where life is cherished, fear is unknown, home is sacred, and violence is unthinkable — a county where women and children are safe.

Sincerely,
Linda S. Spassil
Executive Director

To the Editor:

In a small town in New England a few years ago, the residents living there simply said no to Wal-Mart, and displayed their disapproval with negative signs and advertisements aimed at discouraging the developers from impacting their seaside village.

The towns affected were not attempting to thwart "progress" or to intimidate the giant retailer, but their principal aim was to retain the very character of the area. Some of the streets were paved with cobblestone and most of the buildings and shops were centuries old, of Colonial and Victorian style. To allow Wal-Mart to consume the town for reasons of economics and convenience did not sell.

The idea that big is better does not always ring true, and Oakland and its sister towns could do well by deciding once and for all to either improve and expound on its historical heritage and values or allow a mismatch of fast food and modern businesses to mingle with structures built in the late 1800s. While some sidewalks have been improved, some curbs are in need of repair and storefronts need paint and signage appropriate for a designated historical district.

Wal-Mart stores have built a viable, strong chain, particularly around populated areas where the need meets demand. After the portentous ribbon-cutting event (assuming they proceed with an ambitious opening here), how will they explain an empty store six months down the road? And it could happen — It has happened before. Of course we could always use the new complex for a recreational facility for the youth or convert it into an indoor skating rink.

Our destiny needs definitions. Like the empty lot on Second Street, the town seems to wait for a solution to revive its very soul.

To the Editor:

We buried someone very near and dear to us and many others on Wednesday, February 3, 1999 — Homer Friend. Uncle Homer was a very special person who will be greatly missed by many. He was a paratrooper who landed on Normandy Beach on D-Day and was also captured by the Germans, not once, but twice.

Years have passed and, unfortunately, most people today tend to forget our freedoms in the United States have come with a tremendous price from our veterans. We were all very proud of him for serving his country and many other things he has done in his lifetime. Whenever we spoke to him about his World War II experiences, he reminded us that his part in the war and on Normandy Beach was nothing compared to all the young men who gave the ultimate price of their lives.

When we went to Homer's grave for the service, lined up were some of the most dedicated men we have ever seen. These men were veterans from the American Legion Post 71 and the Deer Park VFW Post #10077. They gave their time to honor Homer Friend at his burial. They added much dignity to this service and reminded all who attended of the many sacrifices our servicemen have given for this country. The military ceremony and solemn presentation of the flag that draped Homer's casket were very touching, and we would just like for the veterans who participated in this ceremony to know how much this meant to all who were present. Most of them didn't know Homer personally, but he was their comrade, and they came to give him the respect that is greatly deserved by all men who serve their country.

For this caring service we would like to thank all of those who took time to show their respect and express sorrow along with us.

Sincerely,
Bill and Claudia Spiker

Just as America originally miscalculated gravely with Social Security, Maryland has drastically overcommitted itself to transportation infrastructure, like most other states nationwide. That's bad enough, but now we appear to be headed over the infrastructure cliff with all the abandon and drive of "Thelma and Louise."

As I wrote last October, our massive national infrastructure collectively is deteriorating steadily, with little money available for maintenance. (Source: Road to Ruin, Taxpayers for Common $ense.)

On Jan. 27, House Speaker Casper Taylor Jr. was quoted in the Times-News, "The Transportation Trust Fund, which provides virtually all of our transportation funding, is falling woefully behind in meeting

PRESIDENTS' DAY REFLECTIONS: II

The fat lady sang last Friday over the noon hour. And it gave me indigestion.

I have looked for heroes in the impeachment process. I certainly am proud of Henry Hyde, Asa Hutchinson, and Lindsey Graham, who performed so well in their duties as house managers, especially since so many of my countrymen have blamed them for doing their duty. Acting on conviction in the face of bitter public opposition is heroism of the noblest kind.

The Democrat who approaches heroism is Senator Russel Feingold (Wisconsin), who broke ranks with his party all by himself three weeks ago to vote for witnesses. He was quickly branded a traitor by Democrats. It is a terrible sort of treason, I suppose, to put the good of the country or even one's conscience above partisan politics.

What I never understood and do not understand now is how what Clinton did with Monica Lewinsky can be called "a private matter." If he has affairs on his overnight golf outings with a mature woman in a hotel room, then that is a private matter. When the president of the United States has intimate physical contact with a federal employee in his primary place of work, and then lies about it and gets high government officials, including members of his cabinet, to lie about it on his behalf, then that is not a private matter.

The American people have said — so the liberal press have interpreted our national populace — that because Clinton lied about sex it was all right to lie on any and all occasions. To get away with anything, perhaps it is only necessary to mix up sex with it somehow.

The most repellent aspect of the case, however, was the argument that Clinton is too popular to be removed from office. I agree more than can I say with the fellow on a call-in radio program who expressed his hope if an unpopular president were investigated on the same or similar charges that he would get the same consideration that Clinton has received.

When Senator Edward Kennedy was crowing three weeks ago that the president would not be removed from office, I thought there could be no better herald of the news than he. After all, if you can drive drunk and get your girlfriend killed and still keep a seat in the U.S. Senate for life, you have certainly won the right to defend Bill Clinton by day and by night.

Then there is Senator Robert Byrd of West Virginia, who had said the Sunday before the vote that Clinton had crossed the line into the realm of "high crimes and misdemeanors," but hinted that he might vote for acquittal anyway, which indeed he did. I wonder how much more political pork he took home to West Virginia on the distance between his statement and his hint. Someone called Byrd "the conscience of the Senate" which, if true, accounts for the Senate's difficulty in distinguishing between right and wrong.

I think it was Benjamin Franklin who observed at the conclusion of the Constitutional Convention that under the new constitution Americans would have "a good government under the best of men and not a bad government under the worst of men." I want to believe that we are now experiencing the proof of that axiom.

My fear, however, is that something fundamental has irrevocably changed. Another of our Revolutionary forefathers, John Adams, said that ours is "a government of laws and not of men." After the Clinton impeachment and trial we are more a government of men and less of laws. I hope against hope that I am wrong.

MICHAEL GETS BUGGED
by Mary Sincell McEwen

Michael is our third and youngest child. A big 3-year-old, he is tough and aggressive, fighting often to the defeat of his older brothers in what seem to be hourly wrestling matches. He looks very German — blond, blue-eyed, wide-shouldered. But in contrast to his tough exterior, Michael is also a most affectionate kid. He comes to me at least once a day and says, "Hey, Mom, will you hold me?" and reaches for me to hoist him up into my arms for an extended hug. He tells me he's my baby. If I call him sweetheart or angel, he always corrects me. "I'm not 'angel,' Mom. But I am your baby."

Michael and I were in the basement last week, doing laundry together. He was amiably handing me clothes off the floor when he abruptly screamed. The sound he made went right up my spine.

"A 'pider, Mom," he shrieked, holding his hand. "A 'pider bit me!" I grabbed him up and held him close, my own heart racing from the convincing sound of panic in his voice. I knew we had spiders in the basement — doesn't everyone? I had never heard of anyone getting bitten by one like this, but I could see that Michael's little thumb was swelling already. "Dat 'pider was on dat shirt," Michael wailed, pointing to the discarded garment. "An' it bit me!" Looking where he was pointing, I couldn't see any crawly thing, although chills traveled up the sides of my face as if something leggy were indeed somewhere on my person.

I wanted to stay calm — I think all mothers try to do that when faced with such a situation because we don't want to be fools. We've all rushed to the phone or to the emergency room at least once, I think, to have the medical pros say, "Um, it looks like a nasty scratch, ma'am." But after three boys, I try to keep my imagination in check. The edges of panic did creep into my brain a little, as I saw passing images of him fainting or cramping up from a brown recluse or black widow bite. I could see myself struggling to get him to the hospital in a hurry and trying to explain what happened while my baby grew lethargic. All these stomach-churning thoughts I shoved aside while calmly dialing the Medical Group. The nice lady there suggested the Poison Control number, which I also dialed calmly while Michael got absorbed in the Teletubbies. He had recovered from crying, and only jerked every once in a while with random sobs.

The pleasant man at the Maryland Poison Control was very helpful, telling me there have been no confirmed spider bites in our area for years and years, and that Mikey was in no immediate danger. He gave me lots of good information and then promised to call back in a few hours, which he did. Michael recovered quickly, showing off his swollen thumb and talking incessantly about 'piders. I ambled back to the basement, resuming the laundry that had been left mid-turn, and what do I see straggling along on the floor? Not a 'pider, but a sluggish, feeble wasp. Ah-hah! So that's what bit my baby. In an uncharacteristic move, I smashed the stinging offender. What else would a mother do? When my own doctor called later to check on the boy, I told him what I had found, and he said, of course, that the wasp made a lot more sense than a spider. I was just glad it was something identifiable, and that I didn't have to worry about a spider ambush the next time I switched loads.

The outcome of this event has been interesting for Michael. Mr. Power Ranger, Mr. Beat-The-Stuffings-Out-Of-His-Siblings, the Tough Boy, is now quite wary of all crawling things. In addition to spiders, our house is also well-populated with ladybugs. (What's that all about, anyway? Another column topic, perhaps.) The ladybugs are harmless, of course, but now Michael is sure they are out to get a piece of him. Flies are cause for alarm, dead or alive. And horror of horrors, another stupid wasp staggered into view the other day (I don't know where they're coming from). I certainly knew it was there because Michael went loco. I flattened it, too, and the babe was pleased with this vengeful act from his generally pacifistic mother. Pieces of dirt, stray leaves, bits of dry cat food, little black Legos — these things now make Michael squawk. He gathers his arms up against himself and wraps one leg around the other and cries out, "Bug! Mommy! There's a bug!" And he can't move until someone comes along and identifies the item as a candy wrapper or an old dried up M&M. We assume the boy will overcome his phobia as he learns how harmless most pieces of dirt are. Alex, the 4-year-old sage brother, has eagerly demonstrated to Michael how one can allow ladybugs to crawl all over oneself without consequence, and also how easy one can decimate one's enemies. "I like to squash 'em," Alex says, grinning irreverently.

So now we wait for Michael's fear to subside, agreeably carrying ladybugs outside (that's his favorite remedy for them) or smashing the innocent wasps, or cleaning up the wayward specks of filth. Perhaps the house will be cleaner for a while, at least until our wasp-stung baby becomes intrepid once more.

Conference At FSU To Focus On Local Coal

A one-day conference on coal in western Maryland will be held at Frostburg State University on Tuesday, March 2, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the campus Lane Center.

By bringing together persons involved in all aspects of western Maryland coal development, including mining transportation, end-use, and environment, a comprehensive picture of coal in the local region will be presented. This conference is open to educators, students, and the community.

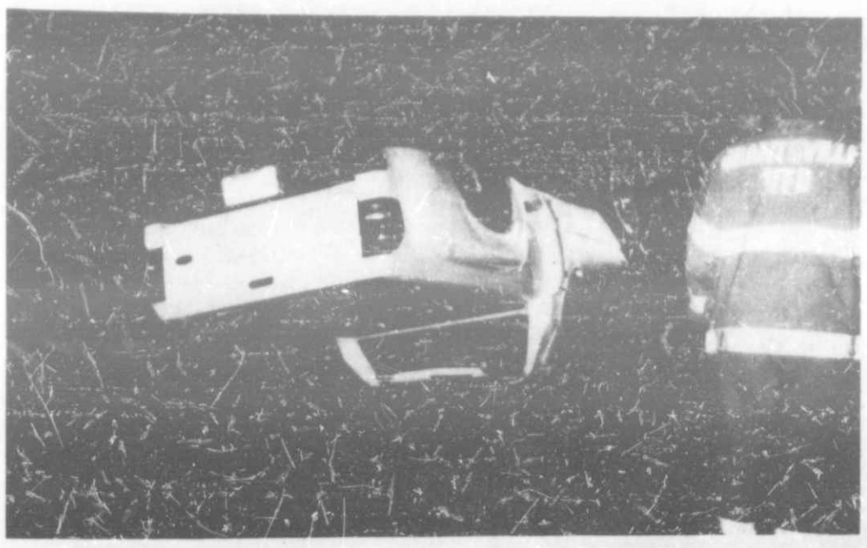
According to a conference organizer, western Maryland has the unique distinction of being an area that has coal from "cradle-to grave." "Our region has coal resources, mining, transportation, energy generation, and disposal of ash, as well as environmental problems associated with abandoned mines and acid mine drainage. Having the historic, social, economic, legislative, and environmental issues associated within coal production within a 20-mile radius of FSU provides an incredible learning resource," he said.

Participants of this conference include personnel from AES Warrior Run, Appalachian Laboratory, CSX-Coal Business Unit, Frostburg State University, Md. Bureau of Mines, Md. Coal Association, Mettiki Coal Corporation, and the Society for Environmental Geochemistry and Health.

The conference will begin with a historic overview of the people who settled in western Maryland and their places of origin. This will be followed by a look at the underlying geology, the type of coal and amount, and changes in mining practices over time. A current study of coal production and use will be presented, and background about the transportation, economic, and end-use of coal will be discussed. Environmental impact and regulations associated with local coal mining and the global perspective of coal use and environmental impact will round out the presentations. A panel discussion with audience participation will be held to examine how "this local treasure" can be incorporated into a comprehensive educational experience for area students, the spokesman said.

There is no fee to attend this conference; however, registration is required. Persons may contact Dr. Betsy T. Kagey at 301-687-4266 or e-mail B_KAGEY @fre.fsu.umd.edu for more information.

Persons with disabilities may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.



EXCESSIVE SPEED was believed to be the cause of this accident on Durst Road near Grantsville at about 2 a.m. Wednesday. Jody Emerick was the driver of the pick-up, which flipped onto its top after Emerick lost control. Passengers included Timothy Kitzmiller, Dallas Combs, and Tara Talbot. Three of the four were transported to Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland for treatment primarily of cuts and bruises. Charges were filed against the driver. Responding to the scene were units from the Northern Rescue Squad and the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department. Photo by Doug Beltzel.

Shuttle Service

week inaugural 1999 season, with funding coming entirely from participating businesses on the route and a rider fee of $1 a day for all-day service. The shuttle stop fee for participating businesses will be $83 per week or $1,000 for the entire first season.

"We see positive attributes [such] as better service to guests, accessing the area's businesses to outlying towns in the county via future intersecting loops, lightening the load of parking at businesses, providing employee transportation, and, most importantly, providing a great inexpensive test of a desire that has been discussed for years," the spokesperson said. "To succeed we need 15 to 20 businesses to participate, and at this point we have already received a terrific response."

Businesses, condominium associations, and other groups interested in participating or in obtaining further information on the trial summer shuttle service may call Jonathan Kessler of the Lake Affairs committee at 301-387-6229.

Rec. Director Idea Relayed To Commissioners

The need for a Garrett County recreation director has been identified by members of the after-school recreation committee, a group formed at the October Garrett County Summit. Asa McCain, chairperson of this committee, met with the Garrett County commissioners this week to discuss the idea of the proposed position. He presented a report prepared by the group.

McCain explained that while after-school activities in the county have grown significantly in recent years, many of these events are school-based. For students who have to ride buses home at the end of the school day, these activities often do not address their needs. Additionally, McCain reported that the committee determined many activities are not well-attended because of transportation problems, prohibitive costs, or lack of publicity.

The 17-member committee's research shows the need for increased or better coordinated recreational activities, the report states, and therefore the group has come to the consensus that a recreational coordinator position at the county level is a "positive and realistic step" toward addressing problems.

Those who attended the county's Children's Summit in 1995 ranked the need to increase the number of opportunities for recreational and other activities as the third most important goal for improving life for children, youth, and families in the county. The report states that information from focus groups with teenagers on the topics of alcohol and drug use, tobacco use, and sexual activity all linked these risky behaviors to a lack of activities for young people.

McCain and the committee thus proposes that a full-time position be created at the county level for a coordinator of recreational activities, specifically those related to youth.

"This would not take away from anything going on now," McCain said. "We want to see new programs develop, but we would also want to help publicize and provide transportation for activities that are already available but are not being attended."

The report states that the coordinator could organize the "maximum use of activities and resources currently in existence and also advocate and seek funding for those services identified as being needed."

Some of the specific job duties of the coordinator would involve the compilation of a needs assessment to determine gaps and weaknesses in current recreational activities, to serve as a liaison to community groups in coordinating county-wide activities, and to work with the Garrett's Promise delegation to develop and maintain a viable community events calendar.

The committee suggests that a youth council, representing the entire county with both adults and youth, would provide guidance to the coordinator.

Commissioner Chairman Ernest Gregg said the matter would take extensive consideration on the part of the board of commissioners.

"There's no doubt about the need," Gregg said. "But funding is always a question."

Seek Funds

dents deserve the requested 2.5-3 million dollars to finish our high schools," he wrote.

Dr. Teets continued to address the funding issue for Garrett County schools with board members at Tuesday night's regular BOE meeting. The state's current funding formula is based on enrollment numbers. This can result in reduced funding for rural counties, he said.

Dr. Teets recommended that the board support pending state legislation, which would protect and increase the flow of state funding to Garrett County schools. He reported on House Bill 34, sponsored by Speaker of the House Cas Taylor. The bill would prevent counties with small po-pulations from losing funding as a result of falling en-rollment.

HB 34 would also provide additional school operating grants to the counties based on levels of local funding to the school system, Dr. Teets explained. He asked that board members send letters to legislators in favor of the bill.

Board members voiced approval of the measure. "It's time. We need to get more of the state money coming in our direction," stated board member Rodney Durst, who serves on the state board of education legislative committee.

Dr. Teets told the board the he will travel to Annapolis next Tuesday to testify before the Ways and Means Committee and requested that the board members go on record in support of HB 34. The board members voted in favor of support.

Retirement Incentive

Dr. Teets recommended to the board adoption of a volunteer retirement incentive program. Last made available to BOE employees in Garrett County in 1992, the program would offer $4,000 per year toward the cost of health insurance. The contribution would remain in effect until the retiree reaches age 65 and becomes Medicare eligible.

Teachers with 20 or more years of service would qualify for the retirement incentive. This program would be made available this year. "We're not in a position now to offer this as a year-after-year option," Dr. Teets commented.

The retirement incentive program would result in a financial savings for the school system. "This would be a good thing for the (local) economy, too. There are young teachers out there who went to high school in Garrett County and would like to get jobs in the county," Durst said.

School Improvement Plans

Board members also reviewed highlights from elementary, middle, and high school improvement plans for the 1998-99 school year. Among the recurring themes in the plans are character development projects, reading enhancement programs, and parent involvement activities.

AND THIS LITTLE PIGGY WENT TO COMMUNITY ACTION - Contributions from two local residents fattened the larder of Garrett County Food Resources at Community Action. Charles Wiland, from the Finzel area, donated a pig and Howard Platter, of Howie's Customer Cuts, Finzel, provided his services as a butcher. Virginia Fike, AmeriCorps member of the Deparment of Emergency Services at Community Action, visited Howie's to recieved the packed meat. In the photo above from left, Platter, Wiland, and Fike look at one of the many packages of pork that will help to feed some of the 830 families and senior citizens served through the Emergency Food Program.

Grantsville Elementary principal Linda Buckel presented information on the School Improvement Plans developed by the team at her school. She also showed a video of student activities and studies.

Administration Of Writing Test

Dr. Patricia Mullinix, coordinator of research, evaluation and information told board members that requests had come from school principals to administer the Maryland Writing Test beginning in grade 7 rather than grade 8.

Positive effects of this earlier testing were projected by the school principals and relayed to the board by Dr. Mullinix. "This will allow the eighth grade program to focus more thoroughly on the kinds of writing that are part of MSPAP," she explained.
